A salvage drive has been approved by the directors with Fred Stemen and Maurice Kline heads for the two communities. Persons having magazines, newspapers or mixed and metal salvaging materials that they will donate to the club, may call 45 at St. Joe, and plans will be made to pick up by truck. Already a nice quantity of paper has been given the club and is in storage for truck delivery.

MIGRATION OF DUCKS EXPECTED TO EXCEED THE PAST YEAR

While shooting is expected to be confined mainly to ducks and geese which remain over in Indiana during the Summer, hunters later may anticipate one of the biggest southward flights of migratory birds since 1910.

This is the opinion of Harrell F. Mosbaugh, director of the Division of Fish and Game, as he called attention to the opening of the migratory waterfowl season in Indiana Friday.

Mr. Mosbaugh based his prediction on a report of the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service. The southward flight of ducks and geese is expected to reach its peak this year in October. The flight from the north, it was said, may consist of as many as 150,000,000 individuals, and Indiana is expected to receive its proportionate share.

Indiana's shooting season will close on Dec. 23, and the opening and closing dates are inclusive. Federal regulations which governed the shooting of migratory waterfowl last year, with a few minor changes, are in effect this season. The most important change is that shooting is permitted a half-hour before sunrise, instead of at sunrise.

Nine hatches of Canadian geese reared at the Jasper-Pulaski Game Preserve will be among the "home grown" birds which will provide early season sport for hunters.

The Fish and Game Division has a timetable for hunters which gives the hours of sunrise and sunset, and the shooting time for each day of the open season, and these are being distributed by conservation officers in their areas.

WAR BONDS

Beans

So long as a soldier can eat and think up disparaging names for his equipment the Army will do all right. Food is either "beans," or "chow."

"Chow" may consist of a well cooked meal or if circumstances demand our fighting men have learned to subsist on "Ration K," the concentrated food that all of them carry into battle.

With millions of men and women in the services it will require a lot of War Bond buying on our part to keep them happy.

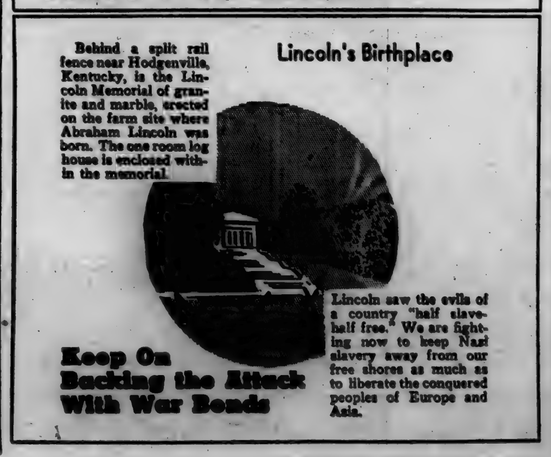
BONDS OVER AMERICA



Fifth and Sixth Grade

Pupils of the fifth and sixth grade listened to a radio program about two o'clock. We located Norway where we are visiting now. The whales in Norway, when they are harpooned give many things to the Norwegians. The skin is used as a covering and other things. Do you know how much oil we get from a whale? 8,000 pounds, just think of that! We get more oil from Norway than any other country. Norway is now occupied by Germany and most of the people are sick. Why are they sick? They are sick because of the lack of food. Before the war the average person of Norway drank a quart of milk a day, now a quart of milk has to go for four persons. Now the question is, "Do the children of Norway go to school?" The answer is, "yes, they did go to school before they were conquered." The Norwegian teachers would not teach them the German ways. Once the children were supposed to go to a German meeting. They marched past the entrances singing their national anthem. So let's buy more stamps and bonds for their freedom. —Jo Bowser.

Safety 8

The eighth grade safety class has made scrapbooks about "Safety In the Home." They find it very interesting to hunt up items about accidents and other material for them. During their study of safety in the home they found out which rooms were the most dangerous. First is the kitchen, then the living room, then the bedroom. —Jane Bragg.

We girls are now getting our pinafore aprons made. When we receive our ration allotments, we can begin our food preparation.

Pipes of Panic

Two new weapons are the bazooka and the flame thrower. They are called the Rocket Gun and the Fire Gun. The Rocket Gun or the bazooka is a tube of steel about 50 inches long, it is open at both ends and it has a shoulder stock, a sight at the front end, and a battery box near the back. It is operated by a two-man team, a loader and a firer. The firer kneels with the bazooka over his shoulder. The loader inserts the rocket into the back of the tube. When the loading is completed, he signals to the firer. The rocket is about two feet long. It has an explosive head and it is very dangerous. It is a bomb ready to be fired. It travels in a straight line. The bazooka costs eight dollars while an antitank cannon costs several thousand dollars, but the enemy considers it very expensive. The Fire Gun or the Flame Thrower is a metal tube about four feet long attached by a hose of three small tanks. The tanks can be carried on a soldier's back. They contain a secret mixture of fuel. The flame from the gun does not have to set things on fire, or even touch them to be effective. The user of the gun is protected by a heavy blanket of smoke that spurts from the flame. The flame throws off deadly carbon monoxide gas. The Flame Thrower was developed by the Army Warfare Chemical Service. —Josephine Baughman.

The plans are now completed for the funeral to be held at the St. Joe Lutheran Church, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

In discussing his Victory garden of the past Summer, a man said it might not have produced much in crops but look at all the scrap iron he dug up when he plowed it, last Spring.

Why is that feeling so pronounced, that of indignation, when someone tells us we look like somebody else?

NAVY SALUTE

The preceding 4 months the Allies had no merchant ship sunk in the Atlantic, Winston Churchill informed the House of Commons, during September. Since this is the way we send hundreds of thousands of troops overseas, since this is how we supply and reinforce this route we send supplies to our Allies, St. Joe is keenly interested in this statement of our victory on the Atlantic Ocean. The U-boat menace has cost us a great loss in life and vital equipment. We are happy to salute the Navy on its official Day, with special praise for its protection.

A long time has passed since 1776 when a makeshift fleet of eight converted merchantmen, brigs and sloops, became the American Navy. In spite of hardships and limitations, thru the years our Navy grew. During the First World War, the United States Navy was not named in the same class as the British and German navies. We had not felt in need of its protection, perhaps. And then, far beyond any hopeful dream of any far-sighted member of the Continental Congress of 1776, the navy expanded. It built to to unbelievable size until now the Navy Department announces that since mid-1940 our U. S. Navy has become "the greatest sea-air power on earth." This means that in spite of transfers, of losses, our country can replace ships with more speed than any other nation. So on this Navy Day of 1943, the people of these United States acclaim the men and the ships, those who man them and those who build them, that this powerful weapon for our defense will not perish but be maintained for the common welfare, is our hope.

AS TO THE FOREIGNER

There is concern in some circles regarding our policy following the war, in permitting the foreigner the emigration rights to this country, of what about restraining laws of quotas and limited percentages. Before we entered this war a large number of people emigrated here from Europe, refugees seeking freedom in a friendly land. We have profited in the type of men and women who have brought to America much in the way of culture with education in lines of art, science and literature. Some of these forced to migrate have become teachers in our schools and colleges. Their persecution has been a lesson to us in offering them understanding and a place in our community as friends and neighbors. We understand that after the war, many of them who have sought a haven here will return to their own country, to take their place again amid their own people, to help in the reconstruction of their land. This nation's history is built on lives of people who came as foreigners to these shores, who came in steerage perhaps, who struggled to reach the land of dreams, hoping to find the pot of gold at the rainbow's end in America. They found hard work awaiting them, a rude awakening from ideas of wealth and grandeur. They settled down to labor and live, to raise families which later became the founders of some of the country's greatest projects, largest industries, finest institutions, worthiest laws and administrations. We are a mixed people within these states and a people who realize that it is only healthy not to be prejudiced against the foreign speech, the foreign face, the foreign manner. We will consequently approach the problem of emigration in the war settlement plans, with a broad and understanding mind.

KNOWING THE ANSWERS

The question used to go in St. Joe, "Where do people get so much money to spend on autos, homes, clothes, radios, entertainment?" As a rule we know today where people are getting so much money to spend. They used to say: "it will have to come to an end before long." That remark holds true perhaps today. With everyone working, getting higher wages and generally spending it as it comes, the matter of "when the end" can well arise. Being well-paid and frequently, as war jobs go, being over-paid, the home market flourisheth. Banks notice rising accounts, but stores notice the steady buying too. But through all of this walks the man who knows the answer. He is saving as much as possible, is buying War Bonds as often as he can. He knows of no finer investment, that saves his neighbor's boy, his government and his home and family. That man probably knows all the answers.

Field In Which Stalks Were Opened to Make Borer Count

A three-weeks survey of the European corn borer situation in Indiana reveals that the pest was slightly less prevalent this year than in 1942, Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist reports.

The survey was conducted jointly by the Division of Entomology and the United States Department of Agriculture, and it covered every county in the state, with the exception of a few in the south central section. The field study has just been completed and all of the results have not yet been interpreted, Mr. Wallace said.

In the northern part of the state a decided increase in the borer was noted, while a decrease was found in the central section. A few counties in the southern part showed a decided increase.

Mr. Wallace said the decrease of infestation in many areas was due to the late planting of corn because of the heavy Spring rains. A rather heavy infestation was noted on oats, with a severe mortality rate for borers after the crop was cut. This contributed to the decrease of infestation in corn.

A field party of six men made the survey, and they divided the state into units of 3 counties each. They averaged 10 fields to a county, with an examination of 25 stalks in each field. This included the complete bi-section of 2 infested stalks to determine the borer population.

WILL THEY LAST?

Are they going to last forever, these critical materials that we are exhausting as we keep on with war, supplying the needs of Allies as well as ourselves, with those important raw materials as oil, steel, minerals and timber? America has been named as a country having the "most." If we keep drawing so heavily on our wealth for say four or five years more of war, we will lose this rating. Bauxite, which is the chief source of aluminum is not able to withstand more than five years of the present rate of consumption. High-grade copper reserves are hoped to last up to 15 years and this is spoken of good grades of coal. There can be a bottom to even a "most," and if we dig unceasingly into our stores, we rob our future of security. Let us plan wisely, use sparingly, utilize substitutes if necessary, but let us use foresight in place of hindsight while we can.

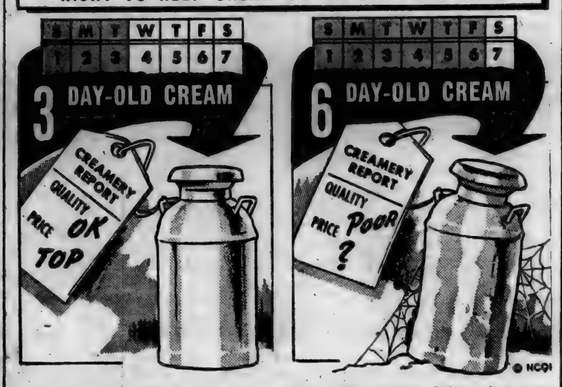
HOME FRONT 'MUST'

The war is not yet won. Although the tide of battle is turning in our favor, authoritative sources are predicting the war will last another year in Europe and probably three more years in the Pacific. Military forces are being steadily expanded. A warning has been issued that there must be no slackening of effort on the home front. Declining manpower resources must be utilized to the utmost, and safety and health precautionary measures must be planned and made operative. This is a home front "must."

To this end the state of Indiana is cooperating with the war department in sponsoring the state's first Safety and Health Congress in Indianapolis, Nov. 4 and 5. Primary objective will be maintenance of wartime production by eliminating delays caused by accidents and illness. Safety and health in the factory, the home, the school, on the farm and on the highway will be stressed by leading military and industrial leaders.

We, here at home are charged with keeping unbroken the supply lines to the fighting fronts. This will become increasingly difficult as men are drained from private industry into the armed forces. Thus, safety and health of all workers remaining on the home front becomes a factor that may speed or prolong the end of the conflict. The forthcoming conference is a step in the right direction. It should have the full support of this community.

RISKY TO KEEP CREAM ON FARM OVER 3 DAYS



The farmer stands to lose everything, and to gain nothing, by holding cream on the farm longer than is absolutely necessary.

Cream deteriorates with age—and a day in the life of cream is equivalent to a decade in the life of a human. The longer it is held the poorer is certain to be its quality and the lower the price it will fetch. On the other hand, the quicker it is taken to market, the better the chances that it will be first-grade. All this explains why dairy authorities are so insistant that cream should be marketed at least twice a week in winter and never less than three times a week in summer.

Old cream takes on a characteristic flavor—even though it is sweet—and this flavor appears after being kept too long. Even though the best methods of clean production and proper cooling have been followed, cream kept for a considerable length of time will become musty and stale and have an off-flavor. Any slight flavor defect that may have developed in the cream is made more pronounced by age, as bacteria are given time to multiply and break down quality. Cream held for more than 3 days is apt to have considerable mold, no matter how it has been stored. Old cream of this kind makes second-grade butter which consumers do not like and will buy only because it is cheaper.

If necessary, a farmer should use a shipping can of a size which he can readily fill in not more than three days.

The problem of getting cream to market frequently enough, even under difficult wartime conditions, can be met by the old-time good neighbor spirit—that is, by taking turns in bringing cream to town and carrying other supplies back home. Such cooperation among producers is in fact being urged by our government. Time, labor, and critical war materials can thus be saved and the quality of cream protected.

ARSON FIGHTERS

These investigators ferret out 'firebugs' and gather evidence to convict them. They help public authorities to put an average of 400 arsonists a year behind bars.

"In 30 years, such services as these have reduced both the rate of fire loss and the average cost of fire insurance by more than 40%! Out of each premium dollar, 97⅓c on the average has been applied to the payment of policyholders' losses, taxes and other necessary costs of operation. Only 2⅔c has remained as 'profit'—to strengthen the companies' ability to pay unusually heavy losses should they occur in the future."

HOOSIERS EXCEEDING 35-MILE WAR LIMIT

Indiana motorists generally are exceeding the 35-mile-an-hour national wartime speed limit by 5.54 miles an hour, S. C. Hadden, chairman of the State Highway Commission announced.

The chairman's report was based on results of a five-day survey made on Aug. 19 and 27, and on Sept. 10, 17, and 24, by the federal-state joint highway research project.

Automobiles bearing Indiana license plates averaged 40.54 miles an hour. with 80 per cent exceeding the 35-mile limit.

Foreign cars, or those with licenses from other states averaged 45.22 miles an hour, with 93 per cent exceeding the wartime limit.

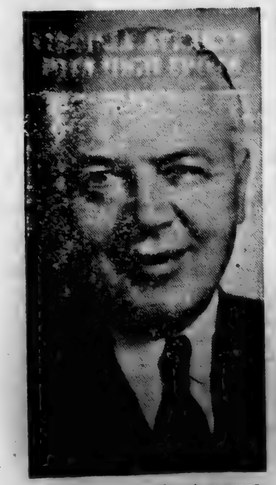
Trucks averaged 39.42 miles an hour, with 87.5 per cent traveling over the Federal maximum.

An interesting sidelight on the survey was the revelation that motorists with "C" gasoline rationing cards are driving their automobiles at higher speeds than the holders of "A" and "B" cards. It was found that 90 per cent of the "C" card holders are exceeding the 35-mile limit, and their average road speed is 43.06 miles an hour.

Holers of "B" cards are more observing of the limit than either "A" or "C" drivers. The survey showed that cars with "B" stickers averaged 40.82 miles an hour with 82.5 per cent of the drivers exceeding the wartime limit, and that "A" cars averaged 41.42 miles an hour, with 87.5 per cent of them traveling more than 35 miles an hour.

A total of 1,406 observations were made during the five-day study. The speeds of 740 Indiana passenger cars, 275 foreign cars, and 391 trucks were clocked.

NEWS PRESENTATION PLEASES LISTENERS



A former prominent newspaperman and radio news analyst in Washington, Arthur Reilly has presented the important 11 p. m. newscast, Monday through Saturday, over Station WLW for more than two years. Possessing a distinctly individual news delivery, his voice is low-pitched, calm and dispassionate — his newscasts are friendly yet authoritative. He enunciates each word clearly and distinctly, with an excellent sense of timing.

LATE SEASON FISHING PROVIDES FINE SPORT

Reports received by Harrell F. Mosbaugh, director of the Division of Fish and Game indicate that Hoosier fishermen are enjoying unusually fine late season sport in northern Indiana waters.

Exceptional catches have been reported with artificial lures, as well as live bait.

October is regarded as one of the best months for fishing in Indiana, according to Mr. Mosbaugh. Cooler temperatures tend to create greater activity among fish and stimulate appetites, he said.

There have been unusually fine hatches of insects in the last week of September and the fish have been feeding heavily upon them.

Fly-fishermen are reporting good catches of bluegills and red-eared sunfish in shallow water, and many bass are being taken on plugs. The fish are now feeding in shallow water.

Small-mouth bass streams in the central part of the state are clearing up, but falling leaves are making the angling difficult in the smaller creeks.

Pike fishing is reported good and word has been received by Mr. Mosbaugh of many large fish being caught in Pike Lake at Warsaw an in other nearby waters. These pike are being taken on large minnows and some have been reported as weighing 20 pounds and over. Many have been taken weighing from 12 to 15 pounds.

Late season fishing should be good, Mr. Mosbaugh believes until the weather becomes too cold for the comfort of the fisherman. However, it is reported that live bait is not to be found in the quantities of former years.

River fishing has developed into perhaps the best in years. Pike, pickerel, bass and catfish have been caught in good numbers during the past few weeks, and the largest bass up to 5½ pounds was caught by Roy Koch last week. Live bait and worms are being used. Fishing at the Spencerville dam is good as reported by Maurice Hollabaugh.

OIL WILL HELP YOUR ELECTRIC MOTOR KNOCK OUT THE SCHICKELGRUBER

MOST motors that are adequately lubricated and protected against weather and dust require little care ... but it is wise to take the following precautions ...

Make sure the motor is stopped, then lubricate the bearings according to manufacturer's instructions. Avoid using too much oil or grease—it may get into the windings and ultimately break down the insulation. Check at intervals to keep both exterior and interior free of dirt and grease.

Protect the motor from overload. Consult an electrician as to proper overload protection for your motors. Check all belts for proper alignment and tension. Tight belts put excessive load on the bearings; loose belts slip and cause driven machines to operate below normal speed.

VOL. I — TO OUR BOYS IN THE ARMED SERVICE — NUMBER 1

The following items were reproduced from a three-page paper printed for the Church of Christ at Newville and is being mailed to soldiers of their community, hoping that they may prove interesting to News readers:

CHURCH WEDDING

We were pleasantly surprised to have a wedding in our church Sept. 26. As the sweet strains of "An Sweet Mystery of Life" filled the church Goldie Dean and Lavere Hartman, accompanied by Virgil and Mary Arlene Mathes slowly came down the aisle. The bride wore a beautiful wine colored transparent velvet dress and a large corsage of orchids. The groom wore a bluish grey suit and white carnation boutonnaire. Mr. Mathes wore a dark blue suit and Mrs. Mathes a beautifully tailored black dress with a pink carnation corsage. After appropriate words by Bro. Nice, Mr. Hartman placed the ring on Mrs. Hartman's finger. The happy couple received good wishes and congratulations as the sweet melody, "In the Garden of Tomorrow" was played by June Strong. The wedding dinner was served at the home of Daisy Roberts to about 25 people. A lovely cake was the centerpiece.

GOES TO ST. LOUIS

Harry Hendershot left Oct. 4 for Greenville, Ill., to spend a few days with his son, Robert, before going on to St. Louis, Mo., where he expects to spend the Winter in the Old People's Home maintained and supported by the Church of Christ. He writes that he has been royally received and entertained by Robert and wife, Gladys, and that his granddaughter, Eunice, is there with her two babies making his stay there especially happy and interesting. He plans to leave Robert's about Oct. 18 for St. Louis.

Mrs. Amy Smith—recovering from a serious cough.

Mrs. Clara Brunson — her daughter, Faith, is caring for her in Garrett.

LADIES AID MEETS

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, Oct. 7, at the home of Mrs. Nice. There were 15 present. They knotted two comforts and put a quilt together. And what a dinner! The Ladies Aid is taking up a collection to get something for (Mrs.) Fern Benner, who has been ill for eight weeks.

ADDITIONS BY LETTERS

Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown put their membership into the church Sept. 26. They have both been very active in the church work and the church extends to them the friendly hand of fellowship.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therein to be content. I know how to be abased, I know also how to abound: in everything and in all things have I learned the secret both to be filled and to be hungry, both to abound and to be in want. I can do all things in Him that strengtheneth me. Phil. 4: 11-13.

Remember—Many a good man was started to the top of the ladder by a good kick in the seat of the pants.

TWO CLASSES MEET

The "Christian Home Builders" and "Everyman's Class" held a class meeting at the home of Charles Cook for the regular monthly class party, Sept. 26. The six songs were led by Harry Hendershott. Mr. Brown read the Scripture, Jas. 1: 1-12. Mr. Nice led our hearts in prayer. Little curly haired Anna Mae Walters, who is only 5 years old, gave a piece, "Jack and Jill." Geraldine Webster read the secretary's report, then Mrs. Brown gave a reading.

The method then used for the business meeting was a round table discussion. Here are some of the suggestions brot up for betterment of the Church and Sunday School:

1. Names of promising members were suggested.
2. Several ways suggested on how to get those to church who wouldn't otherwise have a way.
3. A committee of four was appointed to report any sick and to call on them.
4. It was suggested that they send appropriate cards to slackers.
5. It was suggested that the Sunday School papers be sent to Shut-ins.
6. It was suggested that we have a special every Sunday.
7. It was suggested that the Young People's Choir have choir practice in order to have a special each Sunday. They talked about moving the choir to a different position on the platform to make more room.
8. They spoke of getting an older assistant to help the chorister organize a choir and orchestra.

THE "E" AWARD

Our church has been striving to obtain the "E" Award. This award is presented to each church that gets as many new members as there are boys on the Service Flag. Each new member is to take the place of a boy in the service. There are 25 boys in the service, and we now have about 10 new members to take their places.

If your news item fails to appear in print, remember you are to blame and not the editor.

RURAL HOUSEWIVES CLUB

All but four of the active members were present at the R. H. C. at Mrs. Leona Mason's Tuesday afternoon Oct. 19th. Two children, Donald Messimer and Bobbie Wilder were also present. The president, Mrs. Belle Woodcox, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Dora Wilder furnished the opening number which was read by Winifred Hart. Roll call was responded to by expressing their desires for Halloween. Regular business was conducted and Mrs. Dora Wilder and Mrs. Hazel Washler took charge of the interesting special session. Hostess, assisted by Mrs. Hadsell, served a tasty lunch. Mrs. Gladys Hart will be hostess Nov. 2nd.

Club Reporter.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

Musical evening of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Oct. 13. The meeting was openen by the singing of "The Old Rugged Cross." "America the Beautiful" was sung by Mrs. Allen Haller. Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser gave a report of the district convention of federated clubs held at Garrett.

A paper on "Why Will America Always Be Sung," was read by Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, followed by the members singing, "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Mrs. Carlton Shull and Mrs. Allen Haller sang, "Old Fashioned Roses." Several contests were conducted by the committee composed of Mrs. Carl Perkins and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty.

The meeting adjourned to meet in two weeks with Mrs. Vernie Monroe, Oct. 27, 1943. The hostess served sandwiches, pumpkin tarts with whipped cream, and coffee. Mrs. Sylvia Ginther, Mrs. Carlton Shull, of Garrett, and Mrs. Prudie Congdon, of Elkhart, were guests.

Donald M. Kinsey, 17 years old, son of Mrs. Mary E. Kinsey St. Joe, has enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps and will receive his "boot" training at San Diego, Calif., it has been announced at Indianapolis by Maj. Ralph E. Boulton, officer in charge of Marine induction and recruiting in Indiana. Kinsey was graduated from Concord Township high school at St. Joe this year. He was employed in a Fort Wayne defense plant prior to volunteering for service as a Leatherneck.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Partee, south of Spencerville on Road 1, have received word that their son, Pvt. Paul B. Partee was with the troops of the 601st F. A. B. N. when "Kiska" island was taken in the Aleutians and his picture appeared in "Life" magazine of Sept. 13, page 27. Pvt. Partee was graduated from Leo high school and attended St. Joseph College prior to entering the armed forces.

Sgt. James E. Draggoo, who is stationed somewhere in India, in a recent letter to his sister, Eloise, enclosed the following poem:

"MY DOG TAG AND ME"

Last night as I lay down to sleep
I heard my dog Tag say:
"Don't worry, I'm your friend, my lad
And if death should ever part us
Don't let it make you blue,
For I prove that I am faithful, by going home for you."
Now it's true that my dog Tag's faithful,
And goes where'er I roam
But I will to my darn'est
To beat my dog Tag home.

A letter just received by his parents says he is fine and to tell everyone at home he said "Hello" and that he sends his best.

Walter Eugene Simanton spent Saturday night and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Correll Simanton at Auburn. Walter has been at Illinois at the Great Lakes Training Station.

Lloyd Curie, who is in Camp Phillips, Kan. hospital, is reported around again after suffering a heart attack. This possibly developed from hard training, as Lloyd had worked as clerk for years, and subject to hours instead of hard work.

CONCORD TWP. SCHOOLS

Teachers Institute was held at Ft. Wayne Oct. 21-22, 1943. The first meeting was a general session at the Shrine Auditorium. Warner Ogden, Principal at North Manchester, Indiana presided. After music by the New Haven Band the invocation was given by Rev. Donald E. Bailey, Trinity Methodist Church, Columbia City, Ind.

Next a talk was given explaining the fact that a new scrap drive was on and that people should still turn in scrap, save fats, and paper. Scrap is worth more than jewels these days. It takes 4900 pounds of metal to supply each man on the fighting front. Seven soldiers out of every one-hundred who died in World War I, died of shock. In this war only one American soldier out of every one-hundred dies of shock. One of the reasons for this decrease is because a hypodermic needle, made from two tin cans, is given to each soldier to use if he is burned or wounded. This injection lessens pain. Waste paper is used to make shell cases, packages for K-ration kits, and many other things. 500,000 tons of paper per year are used to pack shells. These facts show how important it is to save scrap, fats, and paper. Saving these is one way each person can help to win the war.

Mr. Max Hill, Chief of the Associated Press in Tokyo, was the main speaker on Thursday morning. He is the author of Exchange Ship and was a Japanese prisoner for 9 months. In his talk he tried to tell us of the strength of Japan, our enemy in the Pacific. He said that we under estimate the strength of Japan because so far we have not fought a real Japanese stronghold. We have just fought on the outer fringe of the Japanese Empire. There are seven million people in Tokyo and they have no air raid shelters. Tokyo is two and one-half times as large as New York in area. Mr. Hill weighed 175 pounds before he was put in Japanese prison. He lost 15 pounds while in prison but since he has been eating in America (on ration points) he weighs 190 pounds. In Japan bread and rice are rationed and you can't get both at same time. Fish, matches, electricity, and coal are rationed, also. No public building is heated in Japan before January 1. The weather isn't as cold in Japan as it is here at that time, but they still need heat before January 1. There is no gasoline for civilians to use. A suit costs $150, shoes $50, a chicken $5, and one gallon of gasoline $5. Mr. Hill's stay in the Japanese prison was not a pleasant one. They took his shoes away from him and put him in an unheated cell 5½x9½ feet. The meals weren't very appetizing but he said he had to eat or starve. He had cold rice and barley, pickled radish, and weed and water soup. For amusement he counted the limbs on the trees, named over the states of the United States, read the Bible several times, and read Shakespeare several times. He asked the Japanese policeman for his dictionary, his Bible, and his set of Shakespeare, but received only the latter two. He memorized Othello and The Merchant of Venice. He gave several examples showing how dirty the Japanese are. On bath day in the prison 180 people took baths in 3 tubs without soap and without changing the water. No wonder the Japanese have so many skin diseases! Mr. Hill never got in the tub but he did stick his feet in sometimes to get them warm in the hot water. Although the Japanese knew that Mr. Hill was to be exchanged, they brot him on trial for giving useful information to America. He said that he didn't admit it to them, but that he would have to admit now that it was true. Two of the happiest moments of his life were when he ate his first American meal after leaving Japan, and the first time he saw the American flag after leaving Japan.

Andrew W. Cordier, of Manchester College, spoke on The Coming of Peace, at the St. Paul's Lutheran School at 10:30 A. M. Friday, Oct. 22. He said that the next rulers of Europe will not be the exiles in America but will be the underground leaders in Europe who have earned the right to rule. He thinks that Russia is different than she was fifteen years ago and that she has retreated from communism. Production in Russia was based on compulsion but now incentives have been restored to both farmers and factory workers. Many people worry about Russian support of world cooperation after this war. Who is sure of the support of United States in world cooperation? He brought out the following four R's in the post-war period: (1) Relief; (2) Rehabilitation; (3) Reconstruction; (4) Reeducation. He said that our problem is to have an orderly society under good leaders and not point out the defects in other nations. He said, "Selfishness is rather evenly distributed in this world." In 1776 we wrote a Declaration of Independence, now we need a Declaration of Interdependence. We have a Bill of Rights; we also need a Bill of Responsibilities. The Allies need to agree on the main principles before they can get to the "blue print stage," then they will be ready to move toward the specific. Each country is afraid to give up her soverignty to a world peace organization. Didn't the early thirteen colonies feel the same way toward a central government? Mr. Cordier said that the League of Nations was under rated by the Americans, that it didn't fail but the nations failed it, and that there were basic weaknesses in it. He said that a world organization could accomplish good in the world from the educational, social, and the humanitarian point of view. The eleventh commandment was "Thou shalt have a favorable balance of trade." Now it should be "Thou shalt trade fairly with all nations." "When goods don't pass frontiers, soldiers will."

Louis Fischer, contributor to the New York Nation and the Baltimore Sun spoke on Dawn of Victory on Friday afternoon. He brought out illiteracy as a cause of the war, not illiteracy of hill billies but illiteracy of statesmen. He also stressed "narrow nationalism" as another cause. His idea was that we will get a worse Hitler after this war if we don't eradicate seeds that started this Hitler. Mr. Fischer as once in India and lived with Mahatma Gandhi for a few days. Gandhi has no money or property but lived in a barren hut at that time. He had one print on his wall, it was a picture of Christ. Under the picture it said, "He is our peace." India is indifferent in this war because she feels like a small fry. India is a "have not" country and is not willing to fight for democracy in other countries when she doesn't have democracy herself. Gandhi has heard a lot about our four freedoms. He asked, "Is liberty free?" Mr. Fischer said that we should be very careful in voting at the next election because every vote counts for making of the peace. This war started in the peace of the last war; peace must start during the fighting of this war. Each citizen in America has the opportunity of winning the peace in this war. One way is to keep informed as to all peace plans proposed and vote for the best man in the next election because we will elect the men who will make the peace. Democracy must work and work efficiently if it is to spread in the world. Our aim should be toward a free, happy, and prosperous world for everyone.

Halloween Party, 1943 Style

Because hundreds of thousands of American boys in army camps here in this country will not be home for the family's traditional Halloween celebration, the National Halloween committee is asking every family to help in organising a large-scale party or to invite at least one soldier or sailor to a house party. Here is a general Halloween party scene, with the table filled with traditional holiday delectables. Parties similar to this are being encouraged by the committee, a non-profit organization.

Girls' Physical Fitness 11-12

Physical Fitness is on the same order as Physical Education, but it is harder. All girls over sixteen are required to take it. It is regarded as a subject; but we get only one credit per year in it. We meet for Physical Fitness every day at the seventh period of the day.

We play various games such as softball, basketball, volleyball, and volleyring tennis. We have exercises and folk dances to improve muscular coordination. The Juniors have been playing against the Seniors in softball this year.

We are planning to get new lockers. Although it hasn't been convenient for us to take showers yet, we expect to soon.

MORTUARY

TUSTISON

Anna Trostel Tustison was born Sept. 3, 1881 near Defiance, Ohio, the third child of George and Sarah Sewell Trostel. She lived all her life with the exception of the first four years in DeKalb County. She departed this life on Oct. 14, 1943, at the age of 62 years, 1 month and 16 days.

She was united in marriage on October 21, 1899 to Frank Tustison and had she lived they would have celebrated their forty-fourth wedding anniversary yesterday. They have lived near St. Joe this entire time.

To this union was born seven children, all living, namely: George, of near St. Joe; Paul, at home; Harold, of Huntington Park, Calif.; Alice Peckhart, of Auburn; Carl, of Spencerville; Russell, of Fort Wayne; and Helen Strouse, of Camden, Michigan, and eleven grandchildren. Also surviving is one brother, Abner Trostel, of near St. Joe, a sister, Mary Ellen, having preceded her in death.

In her earlier years she was a member of the United Brethren Church in Newville. After her marriage she became a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church of St. Joe and was a loyal, active member until her death. She taught a Sunday School class and was president of the Women's Missionary Society.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, Oct. 22, 1943, from the St. Mark's Lutheran Church, St. Joe, with the Rev. Frank Stevenson, officiating. Burial in St. Joe Cemetery.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our heartfelt, thanks and gratitude for the abundance of beautiful flowers and many kindnesses shown to us and to our beloved Wife and Mother during her illness and after her passing.—Frank Tustison and Children.

Burial of Sanra Lou Bauer, a 10-months-old baby at the Newville cemetery, was stopped Thursday afternoon when a message arrived stating that the father of the child, who is in the U. S. service in the West Indies, was on his way home. The child died from anemia at the Cameron Hospital in Angola Monday night of last week and the body was brought to the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian J. Washler, northeast of St. Joe. A message had been sent to the father but no word was received so funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at United Brethren Church at Newville. The body had been placed in the vault at the cemetery when the message arrived and the body was taken back to the home of the grandparents. He arrived at Tampa, Florida, on Thursday, and at the airport at Toledo, Friday. His wife went to Toledo Thursday evening, and accompanied him here Friday afternoon. Mr. Bauer will be home on a 30-day furlough.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mrs. Garnet Norman and family, Mrs. Mona Gaff and two children of South Bend, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wyatt and daughter from Fort Wayne, Mrs. Aileen Myers, of Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Reign Schondelmayer and family from St. Joe and numerous relatives from Montpelier, Ohio, whose names we failed to obtain.

GROWING OUR OWN

Two battles on war fronts not listed in the news, remain yet to conquer. These are the fighting of insects and mastering of malaria. Since this war is fought where climatic conditions are far different than here in Indiana, soldiers have had to combat complete physical changes that are as difficult as actual battle. Malaria, in the language of Italy means "bad air" and was felt at first, to be a disease from pollution of air near marshes and swamps. The men in New Guinea and the Solomons know that the French army surgeon was right when he found malaria was a tropical disease carried by the mosquito. In spite of drainage the mosquito still spreads malaria and were it not for the remedy known as quinine, the effects would be horrible. We can't receive our former supply of quinine from the East Indies, so the resourcefulness of our own people and nature has found us successfully furthering plantings and producing quinine on our land. As for lice, mites and such, our army is protected far better than armies of the past, which is credited to a very effective insecticide called rotenone, the most powerful yet known. There are farmers around here who have been using this on trees, food crops, cattle and poultry. Even cats, dogs and Victory gardens have had their spray of rotenone. We could no longer import this and had to rely upon ourselves and our neighbors who grow this tropical plant from which root rotenone comes. The U. S. Department of Agriculture now effectively provides a root form experimental stations to plantations in our tropics, to continue this job. As formerly said, "necessity is the mother of invention," indeed.

© NCQP

Washing the separator in the morning and merely rinsing it after the evening separation usually takes about— 15 MINUTES

Thorough washing of separator both morning and evening by the new "wetting agent" method takes just— 4 MINUTES

One of the least-liked farm chores is all but eliminated as the result of the development by Prof. A. W. Rudnick, of Iowa State College, of a new method which makes it possible for the rural homemaker to wash her separator in only two minutes—four minutes a day. The best separator cleaning method used up to now takes at least six times as long, to say nothing of the drudgery involved.

The new method makes use neither of soap nor washing powder. Instead, it utilizes a "wetting agent" compound of the variety that have become so popular recently with housewives for many kitchen and bathroom chores. The wetting agent compound—and there are any number on the market—not only radically cuts down the time required to clean the separator but also does a much better job of cleaning than has been achieved heretofore. The new washing procedure calls for no special equipment, and requires only one pail of warm water solution which is also used to wash the pails, cans and other dairy equipment.

The full importance of the new method can be appreciated only if it is realized that a dirty separator is the principal source of poor cream. Because separator cleaning as carried out on the average farm is slow and bothersome, it is often improperly done. In all too many cases the separator before long becomes a breeding place for mold and bacteria. A likely result is low-grade cream for which the farmer receives a low price, a lot of grief for the creamery which purchases it, and butter which no consumer will be particularly anxious to eat. There is going to be little excuse for any of this now that a really effective washing method has been devised which requires a lot less time to wash the separator twice daily than is required to do it once a day by the usual methods followed.

Full information concerning the new method and complete directions for using it may be had from the National Cream Quality Program, 110 North Franklin Street, Chicago, Illinois.

LEADS AIR ATTACK ON ITALY—Maj. Gen. James H. ("Jimmy") Doolittle, pioneer in the development of aeronautics, hero of the bombing of Tokio in April, 1942, and wearer of the Congressional Medal of Honor and all other official decorations for gallantry and distinguished service, climaxed his dramatic military career thus far by directing the war from the skies in the capture of Southern Italy. Gen. Doolittle, aged 46, is Commanding General, North African Strategic Air Force. An intrepid soldier, he has also qualified as a wartime champion of industry. Before taking up active combat duty in the present hostilities he rendered important service in superintending the conversion of automobile factories into plants for the manufacture of airplane parts.

"Here's How Your Fire Insurance Policy Gives So Many Extra Safeguards ...for So Little Money!"

These extra services have reduced fire losses and average rates 40% ... while your premium dollar has contributed to profits an average of only 2¾c!

"Dear Policyholder: I doubt if you have any idea how many extra services ... affecting your life ... are maintained voluntarily by leading fire insurance companies I represent. These services safeguard property and lives, and help to reduce fire losses. This, in turn, greatly lowers the cost of fire insurance to you as an individual.

ARSON FIGHTERS

"In 30 years, such services as these have reduced both the rate of fire loss and the average cost of fire insurance by more than 40%! Out of each premium dollar, 97¼c on the average has been applied to the payment of policyholders' losses, taxes and other necessary costs of operation. Only 2¾c has remained as 'profit'—to strengthen the companies' ability to pay unusually heavy losses should they occur in the future."

FREE! 42 ways to keep your home from burning. Interesting guides and checklists ... hints that might save your family's lives if fire does strike ... ways to spot fire hazards in your job or business. Fascinating! Ask us for your copy today!

Let us give you the sure protection of this double-duty insurance that pays if fire strikes —and helps keep fires from starting.

Many St. Joe citizens were aroused from their slumbers about midnight Sunday night when the Fire Siren sounded forth its shreiking noise calling for assistance in correlling the fire demon that had settled upon the roof of the Byron Woodcox home, and was hurriedly gnawing its way through into the attic. Mrs. Woocox had just snapped out the lights, and saw a flickering on the home of Mrs. J. C. Hull, and seeing what was up, made a hurried call to the fire department and in only a very short time the crew was there and streams of water were pouring on the roof and the fire demon surrendered. Damages were light but what might have been the result of a few minutes delay in making the discovery, was a real shock to the Woodcox family as they stood by and watched the department put forth their best efforts to save their home.

Put every dollar above the necessities of life into War Bonds. Payroll Savings is the best means of doing your best in helping your sons and friends on the fighting fronts. Figure it out yourself.

No NEED to look so surprised, Lady!

Far from going up, electric prices have been coming down—steadily! In the past 3 years, while the cost of living has climbed about 22%, the average price of household electricity has dropped about 9%!

And this downward trend in the price of electricity has been going on for years. For example, if yours is an average family, you're getting just about twice as much electricity for your money today as you did 15 years ago.

Why is electricity so cheap? Because experienced business management has made it so. Your electric company has been on this job for years—and those years of experience count! They all add up to friendly, dependable service—at low cost even in wartime!

The president, Clarice Hodges, called the meeting to order by the reading of an appropriate poem. The lesson was led by Mrs. Hodges taken from the Reader's Digest, "The House that Prayer Built," and the article of Eddie Rickenbacker of his 14 days on the ocean. Mrs. Erby Messimer then gave a very interesting one-half hour religious program. The 100th Psalm was read followed by all singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer," followed with prayer led by Mrs. Messimer. Mrs. Waltz then read a poem, "I Know God Answers Prayer," Mrs. Messimer then gave a very interesting talk on prayer and service. Marilyn Cook gave a reading on "Why some don't go to church."

Roll call response being my favorite Bible character and why. Mrs. Sam Armstrong was appointed parliamentarian for the club year. Mrs. Clayton Baker was appointed assistant press correspondent. After the meeting adjourned, the hostess served glorified rice, wafers and coffee.

SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY LAW EFFECTIVE

Enforcement days are here for the Indiana Motor Vehicle Safety-Responsibility Law — now that the bound volumes of all the laws passed by the 1943 State Legislature are being delivered to every county clerk in the state, and the governor is expected to issue a proclamation not later than Nov. 3 declaring that the laws have been promulgated and are effective.

The Safety-Responsibility law probably will affect more people than any of the other new laws—every car owner and driver on the streets and highways of Indiana—everyone who has an accident that involves bodily injury or property damage in excess of $25. The driver or owner of every car involved in such accidents, regardless of who appears to be at fault, must follow one of these two procedures immediately after the accident:

If he has no insurance, he must report the accident to the Division of Public Safety, State House, Indianapolis, and be ready in a few days to post the required security which can be as much as $11,000 in cash or negotiable securities.

If he has insurance, he may report the accident to his insurance agent who will file the proper forms with the Division of Public Safety which takes care of his security and financial responsibility.

The principal penalty for failure to comply with provisions of the law is the loss of driving privileges and car registrations. But fines and imprisonment may also be imposed under certain circumstances.

Although the terms of the law permit of other methods, it generally is conceded that the most practical and economical way for car owners and drivers to protect themselves and their driving privileges is to carry automobile liability insurance. An insurance policy that provides for payment of $5,000 in case of death or injury of one person or $10,000 for death or injury of two or more persons in one accident, and $1,000 for property damage, gives all the security required by the law.

Instead of insurance as security and proof of financial responsibility, the law also permits anyone who may desire to deposit a bond, cash or negotiable collateral with the State Treasurer, in the above amounts or in amounts that may be required after an accident, up to the limit of $11,000.

The law is being administered by Don F. Stiver, Director of the State Division of Public Safety. All the enforcement machinery has been set up in the State House to catch up with reckless and financially irresponsible drivers on the streets and highways of Indiana—making them pay for the damage they do or taking away their license to drive.

ONE DEMOCRAT WAS ELECTED IN ST. JOE

Nearly a complete Republican victory resulted from the town election at St. Joe, Tuesday, when only one Democrat, Merle Guilford, trustee in Ward Three, nosed out his opponent, Walter Stewart, by a margin of four votes. This election being the second time that the two major parties placed tickets in the field since the incorporation of St. Joe, back in 1898.

The first election was held on Jan. 1, 1899, to decide incorporation and at this time 105 votes were cast with 65 favoring incorporation and 40 opposed. The first election was held March 20, 1899, when Alex B. Filley, Samuel L. Widney and Abner Copp were elected trustees; Sylvester Widney, clerk; Herman H. Grubb, treasurer; and J. C. Fremont Abel, marshal. The first meeting of the board was held on March 25, 1899.

The city elections were always carried on as Citizens and Independents, until four years ago, when it was decided by Democratic leaders to swing St. Joe into line.

Trustee Ward One

Frank Sellers, D.	43
Fred B. Leighty, R.	55
Leighty majority	12

Trustee Ward Two

Joseph Foltz, D.	45
Frank R. Bowman, R.	49
Bowman majority	4

Trustee Ward Three

Merle Guilford, D.	50
Walter Stewart, R.	46
Guilford majority	4

Clerk-Treasurer

Maurice D. Kline, D.	47
Chas. P. Bassett, R	51
Bassett majority	4

On the Side Lines

Ben Soule surrendered his Ration Book when given his ballot, as he is in the habit of surrendering points for everything.

Four Democrat and one Republican ballot was reported mutilated.

The retiring board has done a swell job of carrying on the town affairs and are to be commended by every citizen.

Congratulations Kiddies

Halloween passed in a very quiet manner in St. Joe, with only slight damage to property. Most of the merchants treated the youngsters as they called at the stores saying "Treat or trick."

George Beugnot, 68, well-known resident of Auburn, died Sunday noon at the Dr. J. A. Sanders Hospital from paralysis. He had been ill since March 27 and confined to the hospital since May 11.

In 1886, he returned to Auburn and became associated with the Schaab & Brother Co., Auburn dry goods merchants and clothiers. He has been manager of the men's clothing department for a long period of years and at the time of his death was vice president of the orgnization.

Mr. Beugnot was active in church and civic organizations. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, being an elder at the time of his death and for a number of years held the office of Sunday School superintendent. He was also superintendent of county Sunday Schools and vice president of the State Sunday School Association. He was a member of the Auburn Commercial Club, Better Business Bureau, Wittenberg Brotherhood, member of DeKalb Lodge, F. & A. M., and Fort Wayne Scottish Rite.

WIDNEY

Byron E. Widney, aged 81, pioneer resident of Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, died suddenly at his home north-east of St. Joe, Indiana, Thursday afternoon. His daughter, Mrs. Glen Cole with whom he made his home, had been to Auburn and on returning home found her father dead on the davenport. He had been in his usual health and his death came as a shock to the communnity as well as the family.

Mrs. Cole told the coroner that she left for Auburn about 2 o'clock and that her father seemed in his usual health. When she returned at 6 o'clock she found him on the davenport and when she spoke to Mr. Widney he did not answer. She then went to his side and found that he was dead. Coroner Kaylor believes that he passed away about an hour before the body was found. He had been troubled with heart disease for some time.

Mr. Widney was born March 29, 1862 in Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, on the same farm where he died and where he had lived his entire life. He was a son of Samuel L. and Mary A. Moore Widney, being the eldest of a family of five children.

He was united in marriage on January 27, 1884 with Martha R. Sechler, also of Concord Township. Mrs. Widney passed away on April 15, 1930. Mr. Widney was a member of the Methodist Church from early childhood until the church at St. Joe was discontinued a few years ago, after which he affiliated with the St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 P. M. Sunday at the residence. Rev. Frank Stevenson, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church officiated. Burial was made in the K. of P. Cemetery at St. Joe, in charge of the Perkins & Reeb Funeral Home.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

Charter night was observed by the Lions and their wives in a banquet meeting, held at the high school domestic science room at Spencerville, Monday evening, Oct. 25, and most enjoyable was this third anniversary meeting.

Three years filled with service to the community and good fellowship among the members. There has been a very nice increase in membership during the past year and the Lions are looking forward to even more active service to the public through its numerous activities.

President Leighty presided and Fred Stemen, the tail twister, welched enough from the membership to make a nice payment on a farm. It even cost you to think, look, talk or keep silent at the Monday evening meeting. This same money gatherer has charge of the salvage drive for paper and magazines and the first collection was made last Saturday in Spencer Township and collections will be on the same dates in November and December.

Lion Ralph Sechler, chairman for Concord Township for the coming drive for service organizations, will use the Lions and Legion members in making contacts with the citizens. Get your pledge ready when the call comes to you.

Charles Haight, the District Governor of 25-A, who comes from East Chicago, was present and gave us a very interesting and instructive talk. He stressed the fact that Lionism has progressed since Pearl Harbor and now has 4351 clubs in 14 counties, 17,000 Lions are in our armed forces. Gov. Haight is a purveyor of good cheer and his visits to the clubs under his jurisdiction will always be welcome.

Rev. Myron L. Pontius of Ashley, was introduced and he in turn introduced Mrs. Pontius and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Miller. He acknowledged the excellency of the cooks who had prepared the fine food for the evening and also said he had never seen so many homely men. He started his remarks by giving the cause of war: "What is Yours is Mine if I can Take It." This is born of avarice, greed and selfishness, making war inevitable.

Mr. Pontius, who is a minister and educator of much prominence, gave a masterful lecture on the constitution, awakening a new interest in this great document. In conclusion he warned that we need not expect to make the rest of the world to conform to our form of government as they have a different background than ours and they have ideas of their own as to the kind of government they want after the fighting is over.

The attendance contest secretary reported that Captains Ridgway and Rectenwall were a tie on the night of the first count.

The meeting for Nov. 8, will deal with sight and blind, with a special public speaker at the St. Joe gym at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

PERSONAL HAPPENINGS !

Jud Davis and Arthur Flynn of Chicago, were week-end guests in the Widney-Stone home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sellers spent most of last week in Wabash, at the home of their daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Squires, were here from Detroit, and visited over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Storer.

Earl Sherer, of Washington, D. C., was here calling on old friends Wednesday and visiting the Geo. Koeppe and O. E. Ginther homes.

It took 41,000 gallons of gasoline to fly Eleanor Roosevent on her trip to Australia. That represents 13,667 A coupons at their present rate of value.

BLIND EVANGELIST TO SPEAK IN ST. JOE

Rev. Clyde Rothrick, the Blind Evangelist, will tell his Life Story in the St. Joe High School Gym, 8:00 o'clock Monday evening, November 8 at a meeting sponsored by the St. Joe Lions Club, to which all the public is invited.

The Evangelist tells in an interesting and stirring manner how he lost his sight and how by God's help he has been able to overcome this handicap.

He will have several things

Clyde Rothrick and Dog Major with him on the platform such as his Braille Bible, Braille writer, slate, stylus and a Braille demonstrator. This shows in lights, the formation of the Braille alphabet. He will also have "Major," his large English Saint Bernard lead dog, with him. This dog is a product of the Wallstark dog kennels and won first prize at the Detroit dog show last February.

There will be special music and singing. Everyone is urged to attend.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post Auxiliary No. 283, St. Joe, Ind.

Regular meetings each 4th Tuesday of each month.

We recall more than 167 years ago, the Declaration of Independence was written; which read, "We mutually pledge our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

Are we willing to pledge in 1943, that our American Institutions, our democratic government and this freedom of life may endure?

We will need unity of thot and action that we may maintain our devotion to God and our country.

Unless each citizen will interest themselves in the obligation of the states, counties and school districts, our government will not function one hundred per cent. Have you written that letter to your man in uniform serving overseas? This is very important. "Home" is always first in his thots. Soon our boys will be coming back, they will say, "Let us preserve our American way." The Auxiliary members will assist the Legion in their annual Armistice program.

Publicity Chairman.

Freedom from want and fear are the fruits of the freedom to produce. Washington can't tell farmers when to plant or manufacturers when to operate and still have a land of plenty. SUBJECTS

The relationship of the Christian to his government is made very plain in the Scripture. It certainly needs to be faithfully presented in our day. The Christian owes faithful and loyal allegiance to his rulers, judges and magistrates.

This loyalty means obedience to the laws of the land—the Christian is no law-breaker. He willingly pays his taxes and is no tax-dodger. He honors the office holders and is no mud-slinger. He seeks the peace of the land and is no extremist. He prays for his country and its ruler and is no anarchist. If laws or rulers are unjust, he seeks to correct them by lawful and not unlawful methods. In short, the Christian is the ideal citizen.

The Christian will be concerned about the welfare of his country and will seek to make it a Christian land. As a voter he will go regularly to the polls and vote for worthy men and women. The true Christian will "render to Caesar (State) the things that are Caesar's." Are you such a faithful, loyal citizen?

JUST INSPECTION

A good piece of news to most News readers is that the Army Quartermaster Corps has slowed up the amount of exceptional waste in many camps. In sections where soldiers are stationed, civilians have complained about the amount of waste in those camps due to the number of boys eating in public restaurants. There evidently was no way of checking meal attendance and much food was spoiled in the kitchen. The Quartermaster Corps has made a survey also, on the type of food soldiers prefer, what they choose for "seconds" and what will waste when served. The whole plan is to reduce garbage. That is what housewives everywhere have been trying to do since the start of the war. It is wise to be thirfty and too, the taxpayer deserves a break whenever possible.

PURE CARELESSNESS

This warning note comes too late for wrapping packages for the forces overseas but timely enough for those who are planning to pack Christmas boxes to soldiers stationed here at home. You have probably seen pictures of postoffice interiors where gift boxes were stacked high and awaiting inspection for rewrapping, due to the contents bursting their moorings! Some boxes were so poorly wrapped that the contents were entirely missing. The New York Postoffice reported 1,000 of such Christmas packages burst every day. Clerks tried to salvage and repack the boxes so that the loss and disappointment would not be felt by some soldier eagerly looking for the gift parcel. As you later wrap these Christmas boxes for home mailing, tie them securely, pack them compactly, address them plainly and see that no extra work for others is necessary due to carelessness of any one in St. Joe or Spencerville.

The boy was rushed to the Hicksville hospital where he was cared for by Dr. DeMuth, and on Saturday he was expected to be released. Because James was a "south-paw" he was able to take care of himself in good shape.

CENSOR'S DREAM

The Chesapeake and Potomac people think one of their boys in service has set a record by writing a letter a censor could love. Here's part of it:

"Dear Folks:

"After leaving where we were before we left for here, we couldn't tell if we would arrive here or not. Nevertheless, we are now here and not there. The weather here is just as it is at this season, but of course quite unlike the weather where we were . . . From there to here is just as far as it is from here to there . . . .

"The way we came here is just like everyone comes from there to here. . . . . It is now time in all probability to stop this somewhat too newsy letter before I give away too much valuable information, as the censor here is liable to be a spy." —Telephone Review.

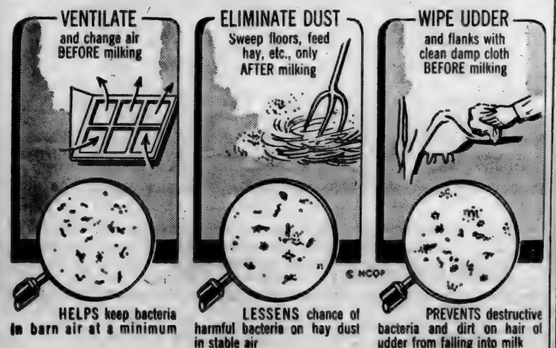
GOOD CREAM BEGINS WITH CLEAN MILK



HELPS keep bacteria in barn air at a minimum

LESSENS chance of harmful bacteria on hay dust in stable air

PREVENTS destructive bacteria and dirt on hair of udder from falling into milk

In the truest sense, the cow-keeping farmer is a microbe-hunter. Every single day of his life he is on the trail of germs—those tiny invisible criminal creatures which are forever trying to sneak into his milk and to destroy it.

Fortunately, in his war on bacteria the farmer has an unfailing weapon—cleanliness. Cleanliness as represented in the washing and sterilizing of all his dairy utensils after each use and cleanliness in the surroundings in which he milks. No amount of subsequent sanitation can possibly undo the full damage that is done to milk if dirt is permitted to fall into it at the time of milking.

A clean barn, well-aired, is of the utmost importance. Dust stirred up by cows coming in from a dry yard must be allowed to settle before milking begins. Dry feed and bedding are other sources of dust. Therefore, their handling must wait until after the milking.

The long hairs on the udder and flanks of the cow should be clipped from time to time and the udder and flanks wiped with a damp cloth before milking. It has been stated that this practice alone would keep 50 per cent of bacteria-infested dirt particles out of milk. A small-mouthed pail is another essential.

The milker's hands should be thoroughly washed and dried before he begins milking.

The new milk should be removed to the separator room the minute milking is completed. Delay in doing this invites the danger of added extraneous matter falling in and also subjects the warm milk to absorption of a "cowy" or "barny" odor which is transmitted to the cream, lowering its value.

CONCORD TWP. SCHOOLS

The Senior Girls' Dramatic Class will give a junior recital consisting of various types of readings and characterizations on the evening of Nov. 10, at 8 o'clock in the St. Joe Gymnasium. The readings will be interspersed with music, both instrumental and vocal. There will be no admission charge, and the public is cordially invited to attend the function and spend an evening of enjoyment and entertainment.

The seniors went to Fort Wayne on Monday, Oct. 25 and had their pictures taken at Cron's Studio.

Pat Carpenter, a Senior in St. Joe High School, has received a scholarship to Purdue University. She is an outstanding 4-H Club member and Junior Leader in DeKalb County. Her scholarship was awarded on the basis of her achievements in 4-H Club work.

There were 874 Ration Books No. 4 issued by the teachers of St. Joe High School. School was dismissed on Friday afternoon for the rationing.

The Senior Class had a Halloween party at Jean Hurni's on Friday night, Oct. 29. The garage was gaily decorated with corn stalks and crepe paper. Games were played and refreshments of potato chips, sandwiches, doughnuts, bean salad, pickles, and pop were served.

Seventeen Healthful Living books by Williams are needed by the freshman health class. If anyone around the vicinity of St. Joe has one of those books, he may sell it by sending or taking it to Miss Dorothy Pryor at the St. Joe High School.

Wood for War and Peace

Man probably took his first ride on wood; now we have softwood airplanes. The new British Mosquito Bomber is made of plywood. Man's first weapon was probably a club, but now we make our gunpowder from wood cellulose. Wood was man's first fuel; now we run engines by alcohol made from wood.

Long ago men learned things about using wood. They learned to smooth it, carve it, paint it, and polish it. Now men have learned how to make pieces of wood that are broader than a tree, and how to make wood stronger than a tree, and stronger than steel. Before men made boards out of a tree trunk by sawing thru it. Now we use a long, sharp knife to peel the wood off in a thin ribbon or sheet. The sheets of wood are cut into squares of any size and then glue is put on them, and they are piled on top of each other. The grain of each square runs across to it. The wood and glue are squeezed and dried in a press. The result is called plywood.

Plywood is strong and is used for bathtubs, oil drums, and boats. Plywood is used for many things that used to be made of metal. Another new way of treating wood is to replace the water in the wood cells with a chemical. Then the wood becomes so soft that you can bend it or twist it and when it is dried it is hard as steel.

Scientists have found that plants are made up of about the same substance, and the main ones are cellulose. About two thirds of wood is made of cellulose.

Wood cellulose in pulp form can be pressed through tiny holes and made into thread. The thread is woven into cloth. This is rayon. If you are wearing rayon stockings, they are made chiefly of wood.

Wood cellulose can be used in making foods. A yeast may be made from it. The yeast has half as much food value as beefsteak it will chiefly be made of wood.

One third of wood is lignin. Lignin is used for tanning leather and as a binder for cement. Vanillin, used for flavoring, is also made from lignin.

PLANE GEOMETRY

We have been studying triangles and how to prove them congruent (fit together exactly.) In geometry, so far, we have proven triangles congruent with definitions, axioms, and postulates. Geometry is proving to be a developer of reasoning power. An interesting fact we have discovered is that triangles are used in bridge construction because they have rigidity: that is, their shape can't be changed without changing the length of a side.

—Jean Billow.

HOME ECONOMICS I

The girls of Home Economics I have been studying about different kinds of foods and their food values. They were shown how to use the electric stoves, which later they used in cooking cream-of-tomato soup.

The Home Project Work was discussed and each girl has been having a conference with the teacher. This is to decide what work they will do.

—Patsy Friend.

LOWER GRADES

The six lower grades purchased $32.65 worth of stamps on Tuesday of last week. This makes a total of $227.05 for the six weeks during which stamps have been on sale at the school building. Bonds sold outright are included in the total, but stamps converted into bonds are not included, except such part as was purchased through the school. We are proud of our record, and are striving for a high percentage of pupil participation, rather than the mere total of sales.

—Roy Maxwell.

SPENCERVILLE MAN PLEADS GUILTY

Courtney Smith, 17 of Spencerville, was placed in the DeKalb County jail about 2 A. M. Sunday by Sheriff Paul F. Miller, on a charge of assault and battery.

Arraigned in the DeKalb Circuit Monday, Smith entered a plea of guilty and was fined $5 and the costs, with a sentence of 60 days to the state farm being suspended. Smith said he would pay Tuesday and then he will be released. His total bill is $15.65.

Smith is said to be a Kentuckian who has lived at Spencerville for four months, being employed in a Fort Wayne war industry. He claims that after he went to bed Saturday his wife aroused him and told him there was some corn fodder on fire in front of the store building in which they make their home.

Smith said he went outside and kicked the fodder into the street. Some people living in the neighborhood arrived and remonstrated with Smith for endangering the buildings nearby, including the post office. Smith is reported to have hit at least two men, including Wm. Beeks Erick, a mail carrier. The latter signed the affidavit that was prepared by Prosecuting Attorney Hugh G. Sanders.

It is not known where the corn fodder came from, but it may have been placed in front of the building as a Halloween prank.

Post-War Plans for Servicemen Studied on 25th Armistice Day

Telegraph keys clicked the magic words from coast to coast. "The Armistice has come! The war's over!" Probably the greatest outpouring of American emotion in history was unleashed. Big city streets were blackened with yelling celebrants. They paraded, danced, embraced, beat on wash basins, and shot off guns above a chorus of automobile horns as saloon keepers rolled out barrels of wine for the street mobs.

And in many dwellings quieted by the absence of a loved one, women thankfully murmured: "He's coming home."

Thus, America reacted to the end of World War I on November 11, 1918, and thus we probably will react to the end of World War II. Our debts to our nation's warriors no doubt will be felt keenly on this, the 25th anniversary of Armistice day, as they battle for the same principles their fathers fought for.

This annual day of remembrance, with its speeches and parades, helps the homefront worker to say "thanks" to the lads who advance through the mud and jungle of the Solomons; who crouch in dirt holes near enemy lines in Italy as shells from both sides burst about them; who are tossed into icy, oily sea water by enemy torpedoes; and who send Axis planes plummeting earthward despite howling, screeching enemy fighters, rattling anti-aircraft and glaring, sweeping searchlights.

Planning for the Future.

But America's appreciation for her warriors is not being shown merely by one day of celebration. Quietly working behind the scenes of this wartime drama, the national government, state governments, and patriotic societies have been planning peacetime jobs, education and security for all the Johnnies who will come marching home.

According to President Roosevelt: "Among many other things we are, today, laying plans for the return to civilian life of our gallant men and women in the armed services. They must not be demobilized into an environment of inflation and unemployment to a place on a bread line or on a corner selling apples. We must this time, have plans ready—instead of waiting to do a hasty, inefficient and ill-considered job at the last moment.

The Master Plan.

"I have assured our men in the armed forces that the American people would not let them down when the war is won.

". . . The least to which they are entitled, it seems to me, is something like this:

"1. Mustering-out pay to every member of the armed forces and merchant marine when he or she is honorably discharged, large enough in each case to cover a reasonable period of time between his discharge and the finding of a new job.

"2. In case no job is found after diligent search, then unemployment insurance if the individual registers with the United States employment service.

"3. An opportunity for members of the armed services to get further education or trade training at the cost of their government.

"4. Allowance of credit to all members of the armed forces under unemployment compensation and federal old age and survivors' insurance, for their period of service. For these purposes they should be treated as if they had continued their employment in private industry.

"5. Improved and liberalized provisions for hospitalization, rehabilitation, and medical care of disabled members of the armed forces and merchant marine.

"6. Sufficient pensions for disabled members of the armed forces."

Other Post-War Measures.

On the heels of this statement the National Resources Planning board released a 96-point demobilization and readjustment plan which included similar post-war benefits for service men and women.

Among the state governments, Oregon is reported to be planning college education and the financing of homes or farms for its returning World War II veterans.

Selective service boards are reported to be getting ready to reverse their present function after the war, and will become a job finding agency for men leaving the military forces.

Government benefits, however, are only part of the opportunities greeting American fighters when their heroism and sacrifices have brought victory and peace. Thousands of new and fascinating jobs may be expected to accompany industry's swing to peace-time production. Some new and startling scientific advances have been put aside temporarily during the war. Other innovations have been discovered during wartime, necessity for speed and durability. They include the fields of television, aviation, plastics, farm chemurgy, the automotive industry and many others.

The first six grades of the Concord Township Schools are proud to report a total of $120.90 in stamps and bonds were sold from their booth last Tuesday morning: $27.20 in stamps and $93.75 in bonds.

This total marks the highest single day's sales since the school drive began seven weeks ago.

Of the 113 pupils enrolled there has been an average of 48 individuals buying each week.

We are not so proud of this last comment, and hope to come much nearer to a 100% participation by the end of the school year.

Grades 5 and 6

English Five. November 2.

We are reading a book about The Wild Cherries for opening exercises. It is a very good book. It is about two children who get into all kinds of mischief. As soon as we have finished their book, we are going to take turns around the class in giving opening exercises. This will be such things as singing songs, reciting poems, doing stunts, or giving something original. —Jean Perkins.

The Fifth and Sixth Grades are lacking storage space. We have too many tools, books, and supplies, and don't have enough cupboards and tables. Our desks are full by the time we get out text books in them. We are trying to get small boxes to store other things in, but they are scarce, and besides, that doesn't solve the problem. —Jo Bowser.

Last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday were the days that the people of this township signed up for Ration Book Number Four. School was dismissed Friday afternoon. The students all enjoyed a half-day vacation. —Lois Wyne.

Home Economics III

In the past week we have been studying some of the characteristics we would look for when looking for a new friend and some characteristics which would make us popular and well liked. We have had some definite practice in making introductions.

We have established our conference periods. Each girl in home economics comes in once every two weeks for a private coference with Mrs. Butler, our home economics teacher. During this time we talk over home projects and if we have any difficulties in our homes she plays the part of "Mr. District Attorney" and helps us iron them out.

—Lois Brunson.

History II

History is a subject that a student should take and like because he can learn about the early history of America.

I am going to start back when the first settlers came to America and settled in Virginia. The settlers had a hard time getting started in the new world and the king in later years would not let the settlers have the rights they wanted. From the time that the first settlers came to America until the Revolutionary War the colonies could never get along with the mother country. In 1775 a war broke out between the colonies and England. The colonies won.

Following the war the government was the Articles of Confederation. The Articles of Confederation was too weak to govern the colonies. Then it was that the Constitution was drawn up and it became the supreme law of the land.

George Washington was the first president and he helped the central government get started. 1789 George Washington took office with John Adams as vice-president.

Later there were two parties, Federalists and Democratic-Republican, and Jefferson, a Democratic - Republican, became president in 1800. Under him we bought the Louisiana Territory which helped to trengthen the government.

—Leo Westrick.

Latin I

In Latin I we have read about Rome, Gaul (France,) Europe, Columbus and many others. Last week we read a play both in Latin and in English.

After we finish reading a story we look at new nouns and verbs and explain their meanings. Then we have tests over them.

All the nouns we have had have been of the first declension that is, ending in "a." These are of feminine gender. The cases of nouns which we have had are nominative, accusative (direct object,) genitive (possessive,) dative (indirect object,) and ablative (object of preposition.) We have learned to form verbs in present, imperfect (post) and future tense.

Latin is a very interesting subject, but you do have to remember that certain letters on the end of a word makes it have a different meaning. If and when you learn all the endings by memory you are a very good Latin student.

—Bill Billow.

Physical Education 9-10

The Physical Education class 9-10 have now started a five-week term of kick-ball. This is a game played somewhat like soft-ball, as the players are assembled like those in soft-ball. The pitcher rolls the ball across home plate instead of pitching it across. The batter kicks the ball and runs bases. The game is exciting and interesting. —Marcia Guilford.

COON DOG WARNING IS ISSUED HUNTERS

Harrell F. Mosaugh, director of the Division of Fish and Game, warned that it will be unlawful to run "coon" dogs up to Nov. 15. The open season on raccoon begins Nov. 15 at noon, and closes Jan. 15 at noon.

Approximately 78,000 raccoons were killed last year, and the animal is the most popular fur-bearer with sportsmen. Of the total number killed, only 9,000 were taken by trappers. Night hunters killed the greater portion.

"V Mail" at News Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Keller left St. Joe on Wednesday for Miami, Fla., where they will spend several weeks and also be with their son, Paul, who is stationed there. They will make the trip by train and Don expects to find work in a few days after his arrival.

You and your friends are cordially invited to attend our Chicken Dinner and Autumn Festival Sunday, Nov. 21, in St. Mary's New Church Basement, Edgerton, Ohio. Dinner served family style. All you can eat, $1.00. Children, 50c. Time 3 to 7 P. M. Committee. 45t2.

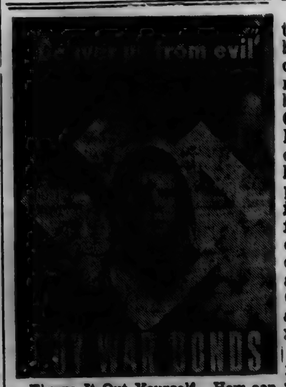

Figure It Out Yourself. How can you effectively join in saving all the little children of the world from human slavery, death and injury from the Nazis and Japanese? Put more and more of your pay into war bonds every payday. Your savings will go to war in the form of war equipment and other munitions. How much more should you put into war bonds? The only ones who can answer that are—you and your family. It's up to you to decide just how much more you'll do to win the war.

If you were fighting in the Solomons or in Africa or forcing a landing in Europe you'd like to feel that the folks at home were back of you—all the way—you'd be proud of your family and your friends if you knew they were buying war bonds not at 10 per cent or 15 per cent, but with every cent beyond that which they need for necessities.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The Lions held a very fine meeting, Monday evening, and an instructive lecture was brought to the local community. An exceptionally fine feed was served by the Home Economics class. The young ladies deserve much praise in the service they furnished. Mrs. Auber Butler, supervised the preparation of the evening meal which was made a part of their regular studies for the Monday afternoon class.

Fred Stemen, chairman of salvage drive, reported 3400 pounds of paper picked up in Spencer and Concord township on Oct. 30. A second pick-up will be made Nov. 27. Call Maurice Kline, St. Joe for local pick-up.

Educational chairman Rectenwall conducted a quiz which proved instructive as well as entertaining. President Leighty in his comments for the good of the club, gave some interesting remarks. The attendance at this meeting was 92.3 per cent, exceptionally good.

The roll call by Lion Wicoff disclosed two absentees. Three new members were reported as follows: Ed. Lake, Ralph Keeler and C. A. Duker.

Quite a sizable crowd was present at the gym to hear Rev. Clyde Rothrich, of Coldwater, Mich. As you probably well know, the Lions specialize in assistance to the blind.

There are 113,000 people in the United States who do not see and the speaker in his introductory remarks bespoke your kindliest consideration for these unfortunate people. Rev. Forbes, who acts as guide and secretary to the speaker,

REV. CLYDE ROTHRICK

Rev. Rothrick read a scripture lesson from his Braille Bible. The rapidity and accuracy of his finger reading is remarkable. The speaker was born in Michigan and went to Colorado when a mere boy and learned to love the great out-of-doors. When a young man he lost his sight as the comparatively small accident and incompetent medical care. He frankly bared the agonies of one who realizes that he is doomed to a-sightless existance. His conversion to Jesus Christ changed his attitude and he became a happy man regardless of his affliction.

He told of learning to do many things and the difficulties he encountered, but with a strong determination to be useful, he overcame one obstacle after another until his accomplishments have become remarkable. Through faith and perseverance he became a licensed minister and had a successful career as pastor and evangelist.

The first trained dog he owned was one he himself trained and he fully appreciates the intelligence of "man's best friend."

Rev. Rothrick gives God the credit for his accomplishments and his faith prompts him to always go forward. He has had several trained dogs and his present guide and pal is a fine St. Bernard—"Major" a noble animal who understands his responsibilities.

A free-will offering was taken for the speaker and the response was very substantial, the audience's appreciation of a brave and persevering man whose accomplishment are really remarkable.

The offering amounted to $34.02. The Lions Club appreciates the fine attendance of 200 people, and the generous financial gift.

ROSCOE MOORE WRITES FROM CAMP IN TEXAS

Shepherd Field, Texas.

I am writing this from my new base or field.

This state of Texas is just like you see in the movies. Personally I don't care much for it, but you couldn't drive the old settlers out with a 20 mm. canon. The soil is very red in color, and in Wichita Falls (a small city four miles from the field) the people pasture cows and goats in the front yard and horses in the back yard tied or in a corral. All through Oklahoma and Texas I didn't see one woven wire fence, all barbed wire what few there were. The train traveled dreadfully slow through the hills and the tracks were considerably rough.

Just before getting to Kansas City we had engine trouble at Braymer, a small town in Missouri. We went up town for breakfast and afterwards had Marine Drill in the street. All the people in town came out to see us, school let out, and the elevator even shut down. It was really interesting to see their eager and interesting expressions.

Every girl in the town came down to the train, They said it was the first time they had seen so many soldiers all at one time.

After being here six to eight weeks I will be sent to some college for pre-flight training. Where to God only knows.

I don't believe I have ever tasted water quite like it is here. The fellows that drank water at Woodburn know what I mean when I say you have to chew it up before you can drink it. Tastes like it came out of a public sewer. Boy, what I wouldn't give for a drink from the old town pump. You don't realize what good water you have until you get some like this is here.

I've rambled on far enough, send The News to my new address:

Pvt. Roscoe Moore, 35558418, 609 Tng. Gp. B. T. C. No. 3, Bks. No. 764, Shepherd Field, Texas.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Frank Stevenson, Nov. 3. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser and the Collect was read in unison.

Miss Elizabeth Smith used the following topics for her lesson: "Meningitis" by Maxine Davis; "Nothing Fancy About these Box Lunches," by Jane Giesler; "Each in His Way" by Martha Cheavens, and "Take a Number from One to Ten" by Maxwell Nurnberg. Mrs. Ed. Storer read the poem entitled, "The American Way of Life," by Jan Struther. She also conducted a contest, entitled "Who Am I?"

Meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Allen Haller, Nov. 17.

The hostess served gingerbread with whipped cream, mints and coffee.

Mrs. Clarence Hart, Mrs. William Hough, and Miss Lucille Myers, were guests.

HOW ABOUT US!

There are many large cities making plans now for building better towns, after the war. They are preparing for postwar projects, for repairing, remodeling, rebuilding. They are having meetings to determine Department of Health moves, Chamber of Commerce conferences for civic improvements that deal with schools, churches, recreation centers. Manufacturers are taking action on conversion from wartime products to peacetime employment. Bureaus of the government are making surveys and contacts with the cities for coping with problems that arise. Just because we are a community of less population does not mean that we can't do some postwar planning here in St. Joe. This is a prosperous town with public-spirited people living in and about it and though our main interest is to get the war over and the peace settled, there are still postwar problems to face and preparations to make the best use of opportunities that will arise to benefit the town. We can work on ideas and suggestions today. No town is too small that it can't organize business men into assuming a responsible place in deciding what we need, what are our aims in order to make us a more prosperous community. Suggestions have been offered by the Department of Commerce such as, finding out what employment possibilities permanent and temporary, we will have, what remodeling, repairing and civic improvements will come our way, what chances for manufacture after the war, what to do about population swollen because of war work, the need for folks to build reserves of money and ideas for afterwards, of strengthening present business. This is, none of it, too far advanced for us. We are progressive and feel that we can play our role in making our town a better one.

READ ABOUT OTHERS

With the Russian conference and its probable far-reaching effect upon the lives of all of us, it does well perhaps, if we give more thought with regard to the Russian mind. There have been many wise remarks, many unwise ones too, concerning the subject of Russia. But to concern ourselves with the Russian people we should know more about them, learn some of their policies and projects, aims and aspirations, their family life and political hopes. With this war waged on so many foreign fronts and with so many different peoples concerned, we could improve our spare time by finding out more about them, understanding them better. They are interested in us.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

In many cities the Christmas Seals have been put into the mail. These seals are usually put on sale for the public at about this time each year, November 22. It is hoped that the country will respond for the benefit of tuberculosis relief, as formerly. Many gains have been made in the control of tuberculosis and through such means as educational health films distributed to public schools, mobile units with X-ray equipment for tests, rehabilitation homes where cured patients in need of financial assistance can be helped by food and care. This has been accomplished through the sale of Christmas Seals, of which ninety-five per cent of the proceeds stays within the state and five per cent goes to the national association. This holiday season will be one that we celebrate with more compassion for our fellowmen, perhaps. Let us, in St. Joe and Spencerville, not forget the Christmas Seal cause.

SOMETHING TO US

We are always anxious to get news of our certain successful gains in the Pacific. The Sons of Heaven are a formidable enemy. The reports of an Allied drive against the Japs would find the movement probably starting from India, the Burma invasion being the initial move. Now, next to Burma lies the Bengal province with a population of sixty million and these people are suffering with the rest of India in a famine. Reports state that not one family in the Bengal province get two meals a day. From a humanitarian view, starvation is a tragedy and from a military view a famine in India is a weakening force in battle. That there has been some neglect for conditions to be this bad is true, but now that it is here, Britain is trying to help. India is her problem, you say. But American boys in the Pacific are ours! Japan is using a propaganda builder by offering to send rice. This alone shows we have to be concerned with the problem.

SALVAGING RAGS

What St. Joe housewife hasn't had to hunt for cleaning rags now and then, no matter how fast clothes seem to wear out at her house? So it is with Uncle Sam. He has run out of fabrics as wiping rags in his plants and his army and asks the War Production Board to suggest that we have a nation-wide drive to bring forth discarded clothing, rags and fabrics from our attics. In this hunt we are going to find clothing that is too good for wiping oil and grease, so we will give it for the benefit of relief abroad. And then too, attics always seem to need a cleaning out every so often Uncle Sam or no.

SAME STORY

There are not the large number of hunters this year, intent upon the kill but with any number out to bag the game, we will have a lot of accidents, caused by carelessness. Rabbit fever too, will find its victims and incearse the death rate. Statistics will be compiled and compared with last year's. Whatever they find, we still echo our yearly rules of safe conduct. A few for hunters who think that common sense is too common to use: don't shoot at moving bushes, or point a gun at something you don't intend to shoot, climb a fence and pick up your gun afterwards, don't carry a gun with the muzzle pointing forward and try to wear clothes that will make you anything but part of the landscape.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA—U. S. Army Service Forces are extending their lines of supply foot by foot from Assam in Eastern India, across the northern Burma border, toward the heart of China. Army Engineers have cut and hacked a highway through the lush, green jungle, blasting hillsides and bridging rivers, streams and chasms. Above, this native bridge on the Ledo road was crossed by 21,000 refugees fleeing from Burma in 1942. These primitive spans are giving way to substantial structures erected by American Engineers. Right, a new river bridge in India. As an integral part of the Ledo road, this bridge will figure in the future United Nations plans to retake Burma and reopen the Burma supply line to China.

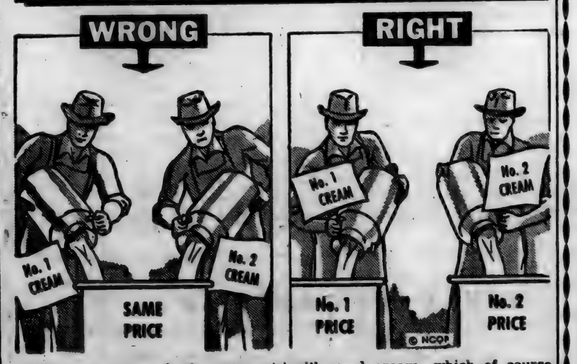
SELLING ON GRADE-BENEFITS GOOD CREAM PRODUCER



"E" pennants and pins are not being awarded to farmers, but producers of good cream nevertheless are receiving recognition and reward for their contribution to the war effort. The cream improvement programs of the various states approved by the War Production Board provide not only that cream should be purchased on grade but also that a higher price should be paid for cream grading No. 1 than for cream grading No. 2.

Here is how cream grading protects the quality producer. It prevents No. 1 cream from being mixed with No. 2 cream. This means that only No. 1 cream can go into the making of No. 1 butter and No. 2 cream into No. 2 butter and that, therefore, the producer of No. 1 cream can receive a price based on the price of No. 1 butter and the producer of No. 2 cream a lower price based on the price of lower-grade butter. Where there is no grading, inferior cream is mixed with good cream, which of course results in a poorer quality of butter and a lower price. One can of poor cream can spoil a good many cans of top quality cream if they are all mixed together.

It is plain that if the producer of No. 1 cream and the producer of No. 2 cream both market their product at the same place and the price paid for each grade is the same, the former is really subsidizing his careless neighbor.

By the same token, should the producer of No. 1 cream find himself with a can on his hands that is off in quality, he should with all good grace expect to take a cut in price. When this happens, it means that he slipped up somewhere, either in the sanitary conditions under which he produced that cream, or in not cooling it properly, or perhaps in not marketing it with sufficient promptness. A check of the production methods and care of the cream will soon reveal the cause.

GOOD PHEASANT HUNTING IS FORECAST

While high water last Spring generally was damaging to game in Indiana, prospects are bright for good shooting when the hunting season opens Nov. 10, Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation said.

Hunters may expect to find a normal supply of rabbits, Mr. Barnhart said, as the population for the state this year is reported as average. Rabbits supply approximately 70 per cent of the game killed by sportsmen in Indiana, and because of the ammunition shortage, it is expected that in addition to those taken in the field, many will be trapped. Reports to the Fish and Game Division show that rabbits are plentiful in some sections of the state, and scarce in others. Many were drowned out by the heavy rains last Spring.

The pheasant population is reported as average, but quail are said to be numerous, with the exception of a few counties in the lower Wabash Valley. These counties suffered severely from the Spring floods, and many quail were drowned.

Mr. Barnhart pointed out that there have been no changes from last year in the hunting regulations.

Because of the ammunition shortage, it is expected that less game will be crippled by long-chance second and third shots, and left in the wake of careless hunters to hide away and die, Mr. Barnhart said.

There will be fewer hunters in the field because of the scarcity of shells, restrictions on automobile use, as well as the fact that many who hunted formerly are now unable to leave their jobs in war industries on week days.

Governor Henry F. Schricker recently called attention to the fact that many requests have been made to permit hunting on Sunday in order to provide sport for the defense worker-hunter, but he announced that he is unable to set aside the law by executive order.

Mr. Barnhart reminded nimrods that they are required by law to obtain permission from the property owner to hunt on his land.

The pheasant season opens Nov. 10 and closes Nov. 19; the quail season opens the same date and closes Dec. 20, and the rabbit season opens Nov. 10 and closes Jan. 10, 1944.

CONSERVE FUEL

Winds turn cool, days shorten and bathing suits start smelling of moth balls. The shadows lengthen while the grayness of November steals through garden and pasture. Picnic baskets are tucked away and blankets are aired from Summer storage. A whistling sound of gusts of air fill the hollows and coats are drawn closely about the throat. We approach, nay—we are in, the heating season, of fuel finding and fuel conservation. Especially for those in freezing climes the reduction of room temperature in order to save fuel, is stressed as a patriotic duty. It is suggested we wear heavier clothing and not demand the amount of comfortable hot air we used to back a few years. This is not the first Winter of heat conservation. Those in climates where open fires suffice, where a mild amount of heat is necessary only during cold waves, they too are asked to help save fire wood, gas, electricity and oil. We all may give a cold chirp now and then, rub our fingers more briskly and snuggle bravely enough down into layers of wool and occasionally fret some about limitations. But along about that time we will pick up a picture from our table and see a photograph of our boys fighting in sleet and snow with other things to see about than where to set the thermostat control. We will turn to a scene of a mosquito-infested jungle where American boys are burying their dead. Then will we lower the room temperature ond take our stint of guard duty with the uniforms and surely generate enough warmth around the region of our hearts to carry thru to our fingers and toes.

A sweet potato vine, makes a nice house plant. Half submerge a sweet potato in a glass of water. It will grow tiny white sprouts. In about two or three weeks small pink buds appear on the top of the potato and soon after this green leaves begin to grow. They grow very rapidly and before long you have a beautiful vine. You can cut the top part of a carrot in the same way, leaving about 1½ inches of carrot under the top greenery, putting it in water and developing a house plant in the same manner as the potato.

A group of friends and relatives enjoyed a pot luck dinner Sunday, Nov. 7 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Walter. The gathering was in honor of the birthdays of Dale Walter and Waldo Rosenberry, also honoring two of the boys present who will soon leave to enter the army. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ginder, son, Robert, and daughter, Lois, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenberry, Robert, Charles and Carol Rosenberry, of Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Walter, Jr. and children, Roger and Pamela, of Hicksville, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Walter and children, Burmell, Burgess and Donna Lou, of St. Joe, and Mr. and Mrs. George Walter and son, Russell.

Fire did some damage to the Cleo Coleman farm home last week, but by quick response of our fire department, the fire was out by time Grabill and Auburn arrived. Some damage was caused in locating the fire in the walls, which evidently started in a storage room upstairs, but how it started remains a mystery.

Kenneth Coburn is laid up a few days because a cow fell on him. It was this way—while milking Saturday evening the cow raised her foot and set it down on his knee. Kenneth lifted her foot off his knee and the cow lost her balance and fell on him in the stall. The cow was quite small or his injurious might have been much more serious.

The War Price and Rationing Board announces that all applications for non-highway gasoline must have the old book attached to the application. He expects to spend the Winter at Bippus, Ind., with relatives. He is getting around good with aid of cane and part time uses a crutch. CENSOR'S DREAM

The Chesapeake and Potomac people think one of their boys in service has set a record by writing a letter a censor could love. Here's part of it:

"Dear Folks:

"After leaving where we were before we left for here, we couldn't tell if we would arrive here or not. Nevertheless, we are now here and not there. The weather here is just as it is at this season, but of course quite unlike the weather where we were . . . From there to here is just as far as it is from here to there . . . .

"The way we came here is just like everyone comes from there to here. . . . . It is now time in all probability to stop this somewhat too newsy letter before I give away too much valuable information, as the censor here is liable to be a spy." —Telephone Review.

GUN HANDLING RULES TO INCREASE SAFETY

Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation reminded hunters of the "Ten Commandments of Gun Safety" in an effort to avoid needless death and injury to sportsmen when the hunting season opened November 10.

The director endorsed a joint safety program of the Izaak Walton League of America and the National Safety Council, which is intended to reduce accidents caused by he misuse of firearms.

The "Ten Commandments of Gun Safety" follow:

1. Treat every gun with respect due to a loaded gun. This is the cardinal rule of gun safety.
2. Carry only empty guns, taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp and home.
3. Always be sure that the barrel and action are clear of obstructions.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of your muzzle if you stumble.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot.
7. Never leave your gun unattended unless you unload it first.
8. Never climb a tree or a fence with a loaded gun.
9. Never shoot at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water.
10. Don't mix gunpowder with alcohol.

He with Fred Brown, a Butler classmate, decided to visit St. Joe schools on that day. Mrs. Campbell, who works at Marshall Clothing Co., was called by Butler school authorities asking why Richard was not in school and this led to the reprimand. YOUR JOB AT HOME

IF it is your responsibility to pack a lunch box for the war workers of your family, you have an important war job on your hands, too. Perhaps you've never thought of it quite this way but that lunch box is a vital cog in the nation's war machine.

A real meal should be carried to work so be sure to include several hearty sandwiches. Try fried sandwiches for a change. Mix a bit of chopped meat and beaten egg and cook omelet style; or use leftover meat and potatoes to make fried hash patties. Both are delicious on roll or bread.

Turnovers are good news in sandwiches. All you need is a little meat plus a tasty sauce. Wrap up in your best pastry and you have a lunch box surprise that is well worth the time and effort. Meat and vegetable loaf makes a good filler too, but add more vegetables and a little relish to your regular recipe in order to give it more moisture than usual.

Dessert sandwiches are a grand way to carry a bit of sweet. For example, take some graham crackers and spread with jam or with melted chocolate when you can get them. Ginger cookies with cream cheese are good too . . . and different.

Be sure to send along a thermos of hot, flavorful coffee, for there is nothing like it to give that needed "lift" when one is tired and overworked. But be sure the coffee you make is really full of flavor and downright delicious. Then, your worker will look forward to lunch time with eager anticipation.

Happily for us all, there is plenty of coffee available and we can enjoy to the fullest extent the heartwarming satisfaction of a truly good cup of coffee teeming with real coffee flavor. So send plenty of coffee along in the lunch box you pack.

Dear Mr. Leighty:

Maneuvers are over and again we can find ourselves located in a nice camp. The maneuvers were fun and grand experience, but it was getting pretty chilly to sleep in pup tents much longer.

Enclosed you will find my payment for another subscription to The News. Keep them coming as I enjoy it very much. It has been coming through in fine shape in every camp thus far.

Thanks a lot for your trouble, as I know it is very hard to keep all of our addresses straight. Sincerely,

Somewhere in Italy.

Dearest Mom and Dad:

How's everything, hope fine. Not much news today so will write a little poem I found.

I can't write a thing, the Censor's to blame,
Just say that I am well and sign my name.
Can't say where we sail from,
Can't mention the date.
Can't even mention the meals I've ate.
Can't say where we're going,
Don't know where we'll land
Can't even inform you if I'm able to stand.
Can't mention the weather,
Can't say if there's rain,
All military secrets must secret remain.
Can't have a flashlight to guide me at nite,
Can't keep a diary for such is a sin,
Can't keep the envelope your letter came in.
Can't say for sure, mom and dad
Just what I can write.
So I'll call this a letter
And say goodbye all.

Will write more later. Every thing is fine and I feel good. Please don't worry.

Son, Ellsworth.

ST. JOE SOLDIER IS GIVEN AWARD

Pvt. Wayne D. Nicholls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Nicholls of R. R. 1, St. Joe, has been decorated with the Legion of Merit along with 49 other soldiers who risked their lives in a deliberate exposure to malaria in the New Guinea jungles, the war department announced Thursday.

The test covered a period of six weeks during which time the men, all privates, were quartered in a swampy cocoanut grove near a native village where the inhabitants showed a high percentage of malarial infection.

They spent their working hours at hard physical labor and no steps were taken to protect them. An undisclosed number contracted malaria, and received prompt treatment after they had become victims.

Simultaneously malaria tests were given two other groups. One was given atabrine as a malaria suppressive, and the second group a drug, the efficacy of which had not been established fully. The purpose of the experiment was to obtain comparative data on the cases contracted in the three groups.

According to Secretary of War Stimson, complete reports have not yet been received, but as far as he knew there had been no deaths in the group.

Editor News:

Just a line to say hello and to thank you for sending The News. I really get a lot out of it, by knowing what all the people are doing around home. I get the Butler paper also and really read them. Weather makes it necessary to wear wool suits now. Tell all my friends "hello."

A lot of the boys say: "Give me the Army," but just give me a good job back on the farm as I don't go much for this army stuff.

So long and good bye,
A soldier friend,

Sticks of Calif.
Nov. 11, 1943.

Dear Editor:

Thought I would drop a few lines, informing you of my proper address. At present I am out in the field, or sticks, for two or three weeks, about 200 miles from my base camp. I met DuWayne Kinsey and wife at the Santa Barbara Beach, about three weeks ago, it sure was some surprise, meeting someone from home. I also met James Harris in Santa Barbara, he is stationed at Camp Cooke.

My wife and I will be home, on my furlough, some time in December. My wife resides in Santa Barbara, her address is 86 No. Milpas St., in case any of her old friends care to write her. I am in the best of health and feeling fine, and hope this finds every one in and about St. Joe, feeling the same way.

It gets about 80 or 85° here in the day time and about 25° at night, so after the day is over, even if it is hot, you get a chance to cool off in the evenings. We wear a light jacket in the day time or shirt and at night we wear two jackets and an overcoat. Today was my birthday, I am now 24 years old. The 13th of this month will make me 2 years in the service. Time sure seems to go by in a hurry. Well I had better close for now and go crawl in my pup tent, and get a little sleep. As ever,

Sgt. T. Walter W. Zonker Jr.

P. S.—My present address is:

Sgt.-T. W. W. Zonker, Jr. 35171403, 170 F. A. Bn., Serv. Btry., II Armored Corps P. U. No. 2, Camp Cooke, Calif.

Pvt. William Allen, of Camp Atterbury, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Allen at Spencerville.

Aviation Cader Glen L. Like, of Norman, Okla., has returned to training after spending 10 days with his parents and relatives.

Pfc. Glenn F. Moore, who has just finished maneuvers in Tennessee, is spending a 15-day furlough with his wife, Jean, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Moore, at Spencerville.

Harold Morris Laux surprised his folks when he arrived in Spencerville early Monday morning from Camp Berkeley, Texas, to spend a 10-day furlough with his wife, Rosie Haupt Laux, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cal Laux.

TAX PAYMENTS UP— DELINQUENTS DOWN

A computation of taxes collected by County Treasurer Grace Phelps during the year 1943 shows that more than 41 per cent of delinquent taxes that were on the duplicates last January 1 have been liquidated.

The amount delinquent on the records in the office of County Auditor Burley Ensley at the beginning of 1943 was $126,530, which was a reduction from many previous years. Since that time, $52,434 has been paid, reducing the balance to the smallest for a long period of time.

The total collections during 1943 made by the treasurer were $553,235, a reduction of $22,271, or nearly 4 per cent, from 1942. The taxpayers benefited from lower levies. During the Fall period, which ended Nov. 1, collections were $251,520, of which $225,182 was current and $26,337 was delinquent. The total of current tax on the duplicates for collection this year was $525,334 and the amount paid was $500,799, so that less than $25,000 became delinquent.

Payments by each unit during the Fall period follow:

SPENCER TOWNSHIP CLUB

The Spencer Township Home Economic Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Gladys Hart, Nov. 10th. Mrs. Winifred Hart was assistant hostess. Nineteen members answered to roll call with the response, "What I am thankful for." There were 3 guests Mrs. Dell Johnson, Mrs. Jane Robinson, and Mrs. Fara Lee Baidinger. Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Baidinger were invited to join the club, and their names were added to the roll. Three children were present.

The project lesson, "Yeast bread and rolls made at home" was very thoroughly demonstrated by the hostesses. By their deft and capable hands, whole wheat, also white loaves of bread were mixed and molded. Rolls, such as, Bow Knots, Crescents, Cloverleaves, Fan Tans, or Butter Crisps, Rosettes, and Butterflies, were formed, set to rise, and later baked and served to the group.

Miss Mary Lenore Moore, of Auburn, county home worker, gave an instructive talk on sewing machine attachments, and showed samples of their time-saving use. She announced the Sewing Machine Clinic at Auburn, Nov. 18, also the demonstration by the county agent of the tile storage, which was held at the home of Lynn Fisher on Monday. All were urged to avail themselves of the privilege of seeing these valuable demonstrations.

The history of the song of month, "Battle Hymn of the Republic," by Lois Fisher, preceded the singing of the song. Purdue bulletins were passed.

It was decided that the club would give five dollars to the war fund, also that a feature of the December meeting would be a Christmas gift exchange of twenty-five cent value. The meeting closed with the song, "Sing and Smile and Pray the Clouds Away," followed by prayer by Mrs. Dora Wilder.

The hostesses served a dainty lunch of escalloped potatoes, cranberry salad on lettuce salad, fresh hot rolls and butter, and coffee.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Baker. All members take notice that a basket dinner at noon will be an enjoyable feature of the day. The officers urge a one hundred per cent attendance.

Mrs. Bessie Walker returned home Friday evening after a week's visit here at St. Joe.

STATE FORESTS WILL SUPPLY CHRISTMAS TREES

Indiana's state forests will supply approximately 15,000 Christmas trees to add to the traditional decorative schemes of the holidays and bring pleasure to many Hoosier children.

Contracts have been awarded for the sale of the trees for a total sum of $13,651.97, T. E. Shaw, acting state forester said. The trees are from three to eighteen feet high, with a few reaching twenty feet. They will be taken from the Morgan-Monroe, Clark and Jackson state forests between Dec. 1 and 24, and all cuttings will be made by employes of the State Division of Forestry.

Mr. Shaw said the trees which will be cut have been been considered undesirable to maintain for timber production.

Several contracts for purchase of the trees was awarded. The largest single contract, however, was for approximately 12,000 trees which was awarded to Floyd E. Jantz, of Indianapolis, on a bid of $7,580.36. These trees will be taken from the Morgan-Monroe State Forest.

FRANK SMITH CELEBRATES 86 YEARS

Frank A. Smith, of Garrett, observed his 86th birthday on Monday, Nov. 15. Mr. Smith apparently is in good health and drives his car every day, shopping in the business section, and he still enjoys a good game of euchre with his "buddies." He was born in a log house a mile and a quarter west of St. Joe, the date being Nov. 15, 1857. His father, Ebenezer Smith, was a Union soldier who died on a transport on the James River.

His mother, Rebecca Smith, lived in St. Joe for many years, with her son, James, in the home now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Meek. He had one sister, Josie, who lived in Garrett for many years.

Frank A. Smith went to Garrett in 1881 and hired out as a brakeman for the Baltimore and Ohio. A year later he went to work for the Wabash, with headquarters at Butler. After three years he returned to Garrett. He was promoted to Conductor in 1900 and moved to Chicago Junction, now Willard, in 1910. Retiring Nov. 30, 1930, he returned to Garrett on Sept. 14, 1934.

You and your friends are cordially invited to attend our Chicken Dinner and Autumn Festival Sunday, Nov. 21, in St. Mary's New Church Basement, Edgerton, Ohio. Dinner served family style. All you can eat, $1.00. Children, 50c. Time 3 to 7 P. M. Committee. 45t2.

IN MEMORY

(Nov 17, 1942—Nov. 17, 1943)

In loving memory of Harry A. Kees, husband, father and grandfather.

Remembrance is a golden chain
That binds us till we meet again.
To have, to love, and then to part
To the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The year may wipe out many things
But this "love" wipe out never.
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.

Here is how the Congressmen line up for the Republican nomination for President, as of Nov. 4, 1943: For Dewey, 89; for General MacArthur, 30; for Bricker, 12; for Senator Taft, 10; for Willkie, 6.

One of the things that has helped make this a great nation is the fact that equal opportunity has been the people's trust and eternal watchword. And whenever some political big-wig has forgotten this and gone out to fan the flame of prejudice, he has invariably been kicked out of office.

Gone But Not Forgotten

A judge, in trying a case of a wayward child, lamented the disappearance of the woodshed spankings. There are homes here in St. Joe where spanking is outmoded, in fact it seems that most homes today use other methods of punishment, perhaps more satisfactorily. Maybe spanking went the way of the wood shed. The latter has been replaced by a garage and spanking didn't stand still either! But spanking was one of the oldest institutions and even nations use it today as the easiest way to gain control of an unruly subject. It may be the reason spanking isn't as popular is because parents are too busy to take the time or too negligent to go into the ethics of this form of correction. There are two sides to the spanking argument and modern child educators might win in most cases, but even so, there wasn't much wrong with those earlier generations whose folks worked on the theory that to spare the rod was to spoil the child.

STILL THRIVING

Pick up any daily paper and you will find something concerning the black market practice and material which points to many supposedly loyal Americans contributing to the enemy's cause. It doesn't seem to make any difference whether the patron has a son, brother, husband, father in the service, the traiterous practice still goes on, regardless. Ask your neighbor if he is cheating soldiers and sailors and marines intentionally. Inquire if he wants to increase the ever-present danger of inflation and harm himself as well as those boys fighting for him. See if he intends to continue to encourage racketeers who are as criminal today as any time, as viscious as in prohibition days, as harmful as during World War I. What loyal American would admit to helping to build up the black market? Look at the black market in gasoline, where coupon books change hands for money, where stamps are not required, and so on. This racket makes two-timing really big time. This practice helps to drain our supplies and resources and American boys can well wonder what type of civilians they left back home to fight on that home front! The strange part about this business is that it is happening in homes where there has always been honor and respect for law and order. Some say it isn't anything to them if their store keeper wants to sell goods without taking stamps, if meat dealers chisel on points and price, if the gasoline attendant wants to give gas without coupons, after all—everybody else is doing it. A poor way of silencing conscience. One could call all of this plain sabotage and the crime becomes no small, insignificant matter between grocery keeper and customer, of a neighbor and his ration book.

About 37,000 persons have died from starvation in the Calcutta, India, area so far this year. This is an official estimate. However, a definite improvement is reported in food conditions during the past week. Sixty-six starvation deaths were recorded in Calcutta on Sunday—almost a 50 per cent decline from the peak daily death total. In other parts of the Bengal province, conditions remain the same.

Harry Clouse, age 54, of Auburn, is a patient at the Sanders Hospital in Auburn following injuries sustained in a fall at the former Hebel store building. Mr. Clouse, who is a painter and paperhanger and conducts a paint and wallpaper store on South Jckson St. in Auburn, was steaming old wall paper from the sidewalls at the building Sunday afternoon at 4:30 when he fell to the floor from a scaffolding, a distance of seven or eight feet. Mr. Clouse suffered severe cuts on the face and his neck was bruised, but an examination at the hospital showed that no bones were broken. He fell headfirst, his face striking the floor. He was unable to tell whether or not he became dizzy or lost his balance and fell. He will be a patient at the hospital for about two weeks.

Armistice Day was in charge of the American Legion of St. Joe, held at the High School Gym. Music department furnished very fine musical program, address by Rev. Frank Stevenson.

WOMEN AT WAR

Mom

"Sausages for breakfast! Sausages for breakfast! I can smell 'em!" Small Joe came tumbling downstairs fastening the belt of his shorts as he came. He made a beeline for the kitchen. Pop was already sitting at the table, reading the paper, while Mom held the handle of the frying-pan over the stove. Small Joe came close and sniffed the delicious smoke, wriggling all over with early-morning joy.

"Better be thankful for them while you can still get them." One glance at Mom's face told small Joe this was one of her tight-lipped days. "Not a drop of coffee in the house, and no sugar left to put in it if there was. Some war!" Small Joe kept still.

"Letter for you, son," Pop said in his quiet voice. Small Joe made a leap for his place at table. There it was, a private personal letter for him alone, propped against his milk glass.

"Hey, Pop! It's from brother!" Small Joe was pulling the envelope apart and diving into the contents. "Hey, look what he sent me." He passed over an oblong of thick, crinkly paper while he leaned over the sheet of writing-paper.

"A twenty-five dollar War Bond," Pop said slowly. Mom turned and looked at it over Pop's shoulder, with the frying-pan in her hand.

"Listen what he says. 'How are you doing, kid? Hurry and grow up so you can help me slap the Japs. Aren't you most big enough to get into the Army? Here's something for you in your name. Let's the whole family gang up and help to win this war.'"

Pop and Mom were silent. But small Joe didn't notice that. He was full of his letter and his War Bond.

"Gee, Pop, in six years I could get into the Army, couldn't I, Pop? Gee, Pop, I want to be a soldier like brother and fight in this war. Gee, isn't that bond nifty? Look, it was issued in Honolulu. It's mine."

But Pop was looking at Mom and Mom was looking at Pop. There were tears in Mom's eyes. She shook her head sharply. Pop reached out and patted her hand gently.

"Well, can't let our soldier boy beat us to buying War Bonds, can we, old lady?" was all he said.

She shook her head again. "I guess if he can give up his job and . . . and go off to war I can do some fighting back at home," she said in a queer voice. Small Joe looked up at her in surprise. She saw him looking at her and spoke sharply. "Well, Joe. We're about ready to eat. Say grace."

Small Joe folded his hands and bent his head as he had been taught. "Oh Lord, we thank thee for this food and all thy bountiful gifts . . ."

"Amen," Pop said.

"Amen," Mom said. "Now eat your good sausages."

LIVE STOCK MEN SAY TRUST WAS VIOLATED

Twice within a few weeks the federal government has violated its trust with American live stock men and the end is not in sight, asserts Hassil E. Schenck, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, Inc.

"Recently ceiling prices were established on hogs at $14.80 for certain grades and quality which covered the most desirable of the shipments. Though the market had supported prices considerably above this ceiling, on the day establishing the top, the market dropped to the government established level and at no time has it moved above this point. This edict within itselt was in direct violation of the Stabilization Act signed by the President in October, 1942. Thus we have an edict superseding actual law and it still holds fast.

"On the othher hand, and coming from the same government source, another decree established a floor under the hog market and covered about the same grades and quality as the former. Normal calculation would place the floor at $13.80 per hundred weight on the Indianapolis market. Hogs are selling at 25 cents per hundred weight below the floor established and so far as is known not a move has been made to correct this violation.

"In the case of ceilings, a directive became more powerful than law and in the case of floors, federal agencies ignore their own directives. Unless the people rise up against such tampering with the economics of the nation, only food shortages can be expected. Faith is on the wane in rural America.

"Appealing oin the name of patriotism, government officials induced farmers to increase hog production from 78 million head to 125 million head with the understanding that markets would be provided and prices guaranteed.

"The price guarantee already has been tossed aside and there is evidence that soon each farmer will be told when he can deliver to the market Packers claim the loss of manpower to war industries, government-sponsored at high wages, has reduced their ability to care for this enormous hog production. Let it not be overlooked that the quota plan placed on the packers by the government wrecked a multitude of small packing plants to which normally a great portion of these shipments would go. They closed down, lost their working force, and remained closed by the action of federal agencies.

"In literally thousands of small communities where it has been the custom for the townspeople to get their meat from neighbors and from their own farms, the red tape has become so snarled that it is easier to go to the shop and wait, or do without meat, than to try the old system under federal domination. Though packers cannot handle the hog crop and the public needs meat, though hogs cannot be stored on the hoof like apples can, and feed is scarce, it becomes a "black market" transaction for one neighbor to sell to another. This is but another method of regimentation by directives, though those who put out the decrees apparently have no notion of following their own plans unless very convenient.

"Viewing this situation from every angle, we see it becoming more apparent each day that where the bottlenecks exist they can be traced to bungling of bureaucrats who have the ability to draw nice charts and then throw them away while the public needs food, and farmers have an abundance backing up on them for the want of well established practices and sound marketing."

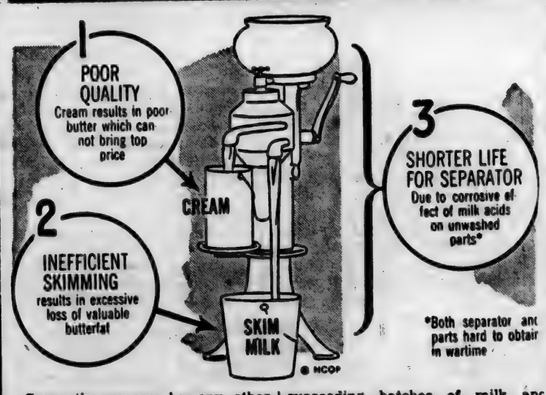
FARMER LOSES 3 WAYS FROM UNCLEAN SEPARATOR



Separating cream by any other method than with a centrifugal separator results in the loss of from 10 to 20 per cent of the butterfat, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture has found. This, together with the prospect of new separators and parts becoming increasingly hard to get, makes it imperative for every farmer fortunate enough to own one to do everything possible to prolong its usefulness. An effective simple way to do this is to keep it clean.

Acids of the milk, habitually left to dry on an unwashed separator, have a damaging effect on the surfaces of the several parts. So treated, a separator is sure to "act up" before very long. Curd particles or slime tend to clog the bowl, making efficient skimming impossible. A clogged bowl causes an excess of skim milk to be forced through the cream opening, which results in a low-testing cream. The same film of dirt on the separator serves as a splendid breeding place for mold and bacteria which contaminate the succeeding batches of milk and cream, lowering their quality and depriving the farmer of the higher price the best grade of cream usually brings. There is always the chance, too, that if enough mold and bacteria find their way into the cream, the whole batch will be rejected as unfit and the farmer will realize not a dime for his time and work.

Good care means thorough washing and actual scalding after each use of all parts of the separator that come in contact with the milk or cream. The parts should also be rinsed again just before using—to remove any dust or dirt that may have collected on them since they were washed.

Many farmers find it profitable to check on the efficiency of the separator once a month by a test of the skim milk. If the skim milk contains an excess of two hundredths of one per cent butterfat, the care of the separator has not been all it should be.

ON THEIR WAY TO GIVE THANKS

The photograph, posed after the famous painting "Pilgrims Going to Church" and "The First Thanksgiving" by Boughton, shows the sturdy founders of Massachusetts going to church to give thanks to the Almighty for the bounties bestowed on them. The picture is supposed to have been illustrative of the early spring of 1621, on the day that Governor Bencroft had set aside as a day of prayer and thanks.

Bill and some other boys in town were bored with life so they got up a gang. One day a boy bought a real gun and they raided a store, but a man knew one of the boys and reported it. While Bill's big brother was fighting to win the war, Bill was losing it.

How Do We Treat War Prisoners?

There are about 140,000 war prisoners in United States. These prisoners are treated well. The prisoners are encouraged to build up self-government in the camps and they take pride in having the camps well run. Each camp has good recreation facilities provided by the International Y. M. C. A. The prisoners enjoy well stocked libraries, freedom of worship, and tney may have radios. However, tney may not have sets which pick up short wave programs.

The prisoners live in barracks that have showers and clean, comfortable beds.

The prisoners have the same diet as American soldiers but the Germans like potatoes and sauer kraut, so they are given them. The Italians want plenty of spaghetti and macaroni.

Our government pays each PWA monthly allowance in coupons. A careful account of all expenses is kept. Each givernment is expected to pay for the care of its own prisoners after the war.

Farmers who need help may get these war prisoners to help if he gets at least a dozen. They usually receive about 80 cents a day in coupons for outside work. They are guarded while they work and are not allowed to work on work connected with military operations.

Physical Education 7-8

The seventh and eighth grade physical education is very interesting. We have been playing "kickball." We have 2 teams.

On the first team are: Jane Bragg, the captain, Josephine Baughman, Lola Mae Davis, Cordella Fluke, Kathryn Likes, Nancy Monroe, Joan Shuff, Audra Stewart, and Carol Rosenbury. On the second team: Marjorie Bleeks, the captain, Frances Conners, Leona Drake, Delores Keller, Maud Littlefield, Marlyn Wade, Janice Shuff, Luella Washler, and Joan Trenary. Every Tuesday and Friday we play a game. The first team has won four games and the second team one.

Girls' Physical Fitness 11-12

The Girls' Physical Fitness Class for the past few weeks has been playing speedball. We played out doors until the weather no longer permitted, and we are now playing indoors.

Speedball is a combination of basketball and soccer. In this game you are not allowed to touch the ball with your hands until you bring it up to yourself by means of your feet.

There are supposed to be ten players to each team. The teams are lined up opposite each other. The line up consists of four forwards, three halfbacks, two quarterbacks, and one goal keeper.

The forwards are the ones that have most to do in the scoring. The halfbacks are supposed to assist the forwards. The quarterbacks follow up the forwards and halfbacks, but they seldom leave their own territory. They try to keep the ball from reaching the goal posts. If the ball does reach the posts the goal keeper is supposed to kick it away so it doesn't score for the opposite team.

To score in the game you either kick the ball between two goal posts, kick it over the goal posts, or have a player throw the ball to a team mate who is on either side of the goal posts.

TRAPPERS SUPPLYING NEW, VITAL NEED

Illustration reproduced by permission of Photo Section, Philadelphia Q. M. Depot

America's trappers—including the youngsters and the women who are carrying on for absent sons, brothers and husbands—may rightfully smile with pride as they keep the nation's traplines going. For the product of their endeavor, fur, is playing a new role today.

Always valued as a source of income and as an article of high fashion and warmth, fur is now doing its part in outfitting Uncle Sam's Arctic fighters—so that they may better withstand the rigors of cold. As an example, parka hoods for the uniforms of our ski troopers (see illustration) are among the items whose production depends upon the output of the country's traplines. Also the fur vests worn by the men who sail our ships through Northern waters. With increased attention being paid to materials for warm clothing, furs are becoming more and more important to a fighting victory-bound America.

The raw fur crop is here—along the streams, in the woods and fields—literally waiting to be taken. Practically no investment is required—only some traps and the effort needed to run the trapline. And as for the effort, if desired it can be limited to spare time—a feature which fits in beautifully with either schoolboy's or housewife's daily routine.

CONCORD TWP. SCHOOLS

Mr. Duker reported the total stamp and bond sales to date to be $888.25. The goal by Christmas to be $2000. The goal by the end of the school year is $5000.

Six young men filed and took the Navy V-12 examination in the High School Tuesday, Nov. 9.

A poster on the bulletin board in the new assembly has on it the following

How to get along with people

1. Prevent your tongue from skidding. Say less, think more.
2. Keep the promises you make. Count ten before saying something disparaging about others.
3. Be generous in your praise of work well done.
4. Be genuinely interested in others.
5. Be cheerful.
6. Don't argue; keep an open mind.
7. Respect the other fellow's feelings.
8. Carry no grudges around with you.
9. Forget about any credit due you.
10. Continue your work.

One of the best programs ever given by St. Joe High School was the Junior Speech Recital on Wednesday evening, November 10 at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Voss, of Waterloo, (former music teacher at St. Joe) accompanied several numbers on the piano. Mrs. Buckner is the teacher of the class that gave this program.

The Health Class is still in need of the textbook Healthful Living by Williams.

At the Stamp and Bond Booth last week $62.15 was collected, $24.65 for stamps and $37.50 for bonds.

Athough this is a good effort, we are hoping that more people will participate as regularly as Tuesday comes. Of the grade pupils enrolled only 12 have participated 100% since the booth was set up. There have been 12 pupils who have missed purchasing stamps or bonds only once; 15 pupils who have missed twice.

To serve our country and to establish a habit of saving regularly are our ultimate aims. In order to accomplish this, we solicit our patrons cooperation.

Ten cents buys ten fat lollipops—
Or ice cream cones for two
Ten cents buys buttered popcorn, or
Some chocolates, quite a few.
The trouble is, these do not last
For very long, I find,
And they're no good when eaten up.
So I've made up my mind
That part of every dime I get
I'll save to buy some stamps.
The kind that help our soldiers brave
On land—on sea—in camps.
For all of us should help, we know,
In every way we can.
And I am glad I need not wait
Until I am a man.

"IT HAS SURE BEEN A POWERFUL HELP TO ME"

OUR farmers deserve the thanks of the nation for having brought in a record crop in the face of severe handicaps. They have really produced and many a farmer is grateful for the powerful help of electricity.

The Government has recently begun a program for the voluntary conservation of fuels, transportation, manpower and scarce materials, all of which enter into the making of electricity. Public officials ask you not to waste electricity, but they want the war production, and that means farm production must not suffer. Use every kilowatt you need, but use it wisely.

MAKING AN APPEAL TO PUBLIC TO SAVE PAPER

War Mobilization Director Byrnes has appealed to the public to save paper. Byrnes says the waste paper shortage seriously impairs munitions production. He reveals that one ammunition plant was forced to shut down last week because of the paper scarcity. In this part of DeKalb County the Lions Club is making the collection each month and any person wishing to contribute to the club may call Fred Stemen at Spencerville, or any member of the club, and truck will call and pick up at their first convenience.

The first truck load of two tons of waste paper was delivered Monday to the salvage yard.

LOOKS LIKE A QUIET THANKSGIVING DAY

This week the second World War II Thanksgiving Day will be observed in the United States. This national religious holiday, usually marked by worship meetings and family gatherings will be quietly observed here.

As is customary, most business in St. Joe will be suspended for the day. There will be no mail delivery.

A union meeting was held on Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Church of Christ in order to allow the people a free day on Thursday for their family gatherings.

Although restricted by rationing food and food points, the usual turkey or chicken dinner will be observed in many a home, but the family where the circle this year is still unbroken with no members having been called to the service of the country in the armed forces, will be the exception.

In many homes there will be several vacant chairs, for members in the service. But those at home even then may feel thankful, knowing that their son, husband, or brother, is somewhere sharing in a good turkey dinner. With the advent of fathers being called into service, many in the county having received their notices to report for duty, there will be a note of sadness on this Thanksgiving Day.

POST OFFICE NEWS

This is to remind you that unless you mail Christmas packages to soldiers "regardless of where stationed" by Dec. 1st, the Post Office Department will not guarantee delivery by Christmas Day. If you don't want to be the cause of some Soldier being disappointed on Christmas morning mail now. Mark your packages "Christmas Parcel" or "Do not open until Christmas." Do it now.

Postmaster Storer also announces that he has a limited supply of small size Bonds, with holders, which may be purchased for Christmas presents. The present stock includes $25.00, $50.00, and $100.00 denominations. The $500.00 and $1,000.00 bonds of the small size will not be on sale before January, 1944.

Mrs. Cecil Likes, of north of town, is in Hicksville Hospital where she underwent a serious operation last week. She is getting along fine and will possibly be there for another week.

A Nation Gives Thanks

UNION THANKSGIVING

The union Thanksgiving Service will be held Wednesday, November 24th in the Church of Christ, with Rev. Frank Stevenson as speaker. A special program is being prepared. Everyone is urged to come and enjoy this community fellowship.

CHANGE IN B AND C COUPONS ON DEC. 1

The Office of Price Administration in DeKalb County announces a simplification in its gasoline rationing program, effective Dec. 1, under which all "B" and "C" books will contain fewer coupons than in the past but each coupon will be good for more gallons than heretofore. No increase in the amount of gasoline allowed is involved, however.

All "B" and "C" coupons issued throughout the country on and after Dec. 1 will be worth five gallons each, as compared with the present value of two gallons for coupons of those types in the east and midwest and three gallons in the far west.

The new supplement gasoline ration coupons of five gallons value will be issued with the designation "B-2" or "C-2" on their face. As present "B" and "C" and "B-1" and "C-1" coupons run out, they will be replaced by the new higher-unit-value coupons issued before Dec. 1 will continue to be worth only two gallons in the east and midwest and three gallons in the far west.

OPA explained that "B-1" coupons are a reprint of the earlier "B" coupons. They are used in the same way and have the same value. The same thing is true of "C" and "C-1" coupons.

While the change does not mean more gasoline for holders of supplemental ration books, it does mean they will receive their rations in more convenient form. It is expected that many car owners, for example, will now buy five-gallon units as they customarily did before rations began. Consumers will have fewer coupons to endorse.

For the trade and the 5,500 local rationing boards, the plan means large savings in manpower.

Gasoline retailers who paste the coupons they collect on gummed sheets which are turned over to their suppliers will find their work cut more than half in doing this job. In addition, station attendants will not have to make as many trips to the gasoline pumps for small purchases.

Primary distributors of gasoline, who deposit the gummed sheets in ration bank accounts, will find their work reduced correspondingly, and the banks, which are experiencing a manpower problem of their own, will also save much time in handling gasoline deposits.

Local boards will save thousands of man hours under the new plan. Under it, one book often will do the job of two books and part of a third book. Since many persons frequently have required more than one book to cover their gasoline needs, this means that local boards will issue fewer books than before.

It is impossible to estimate the total savings that will result from the change in unit value but it will run into hundreds of thousands of man hours and into many thousands of dollars by reason of reduced use of paper and printing needed to turn out gasoline coupons for a nation that uses automotive power on a vast scale.

RALPH GATES ENDORSED FOR GOVERNOR

Ralph F. Gates, of Columbia City, has been endorsed by the Eighth District as a candidate for the GOP nomination for Governor. Today resolutions making a like endorsement have been received including the chairman and the vice chairman of the Fourth District.

This is a fine tribute to his ability and integrity as a leader, his sterling character, and long devotion to the Republican party, all of which are recognized as making him a highly qualified person for this high office.

Chairman Gates has many friends and admirers in this section of Indiana, who would be glad to do all they could to see that his nomination be successful, should he decide to enter the race for Governor of Indiana.

Ceiling prices have been fixed on live turkeys throughout Indiana, G. E. Warren, OP A district price executive, announced. The ceiling prices on live turkeys are: Under 18 pounds, 47 cents a pound; 18 to 22 pounds, 45 cents; 22 pounds and over, 44 cents.

AGENCY TO CONTINUE AT ST. JOE

What was anticipated to be a battle to preserve our community rights, resulted in a default of petitioners at the hearing called for last Thursday, Nov. 18, at the Community Gym, when the Public Service Commission of Indiana, called for defense of the petition filed by the B. & O. Railroad, praying for authority to remove their local agent from the depot at St. Joe.

The hearing was scheduled for 10 o'clock. The court waited until 11 o'clock and when the petitioners failed to oppear, the findings were entered on the docket in favor of the defense.

A large crowd of interested shippers, large and small, were present, and with the aid of Henry C. Springer, attorney representing the town, were soon lined with a defense unequaled in any case with the commission from this locality.

A number of our citizens had gone to considerable trouble to collect data, to substantiate their argumens for the continuation of the agency.

Because of the hearing ending so abruptly, and no evidence being used, The News is unable to quote any figures which were intended to be used.

Representing the community and for the continuation of the agency were: A. E. Gordon, representing Firemen and Engineers; R. C. Gilbert, Train men; H. W. Pfenning, Engineers; G. A. McBride, secretary-treasurer Railway Telegraphers, and J. S. Spencer, local representative; David I. Day, of Indianapolis, assistant Public Councilor for the Public Service Commission, and Henry C. Springer, local attorney.

Clayton M. Bailey, former Garrett resident, was the examiner.

While The News has always taken an active part in defending the community interests, we feel that an expression of thanks is due all those who put in an appearance to show cause why the petitioner's request should not be granted, and among them the local merchants, Lions Club, Roy Reidenbach, Howard Myers, Ralph Sechler, Roscoe Walter, Town Board, Clifford Billow, Mrs. Wm. Strouse, Jay Snyder, John R. Leighty, Hal Stone and numerous other occasional small shippers.

The petition is now closed and we hope for some time.

APPRECIATION

The various Railroad Brotherhood organizations that were interested, and myself, earnestly desire it be known by everybody that we greatly appreciate the spontaneous action and interest displayed by President Leighty and the Lions Club, President Hurni and the Town Board, all business men and all residents of this community who gratuitously cooperated and sacrificed time and thougth in organizing and producing substantial and efficient evidence proving the contention that the St. Joe Station should not be closed, to have been persented upon request at the public hearing conducted by the Public Service Commission, of Indiana, held in St. Joe, Nov. 18th.

L. A. SCHENDEL, Agt.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coburn and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Aedie and daughter, of Jackson, Mich., were guests here Sunday for a short time.

LISTEN TO THIS

By TOM FIZDALE

Hey Abbott
Costello's Back

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello are back on the air Thursdays at 10:00 p.m. EWT over NBC, following a six months absence from the airlanes occasioned by the illness of Costello. It was just a year ago that the zany pair made their starring debut for a cigaret sponsor and in the space of five months, built a tremendous listening audience. Then Costello was stricken with rheumatic fever and Abbott, rather than go on without his life time partner decided to go off the air until Costello's recovery. This recovery, after doctors said Lou would never walk again, happened on his mother's birthday in September, when for the first time in months, he took sixty steps, one for each year of the anniversary she was celebrating.

Shirley Mitchell, who plays the "Widow Ransom" on the Great Gildersleeve series Sundays, 6:30 p.m. EWT over NBC, isn't taking any chances on losing her southern accent. To insure its continuance, she picked out a real southern room-mate—a certain Miss Dinah Shore—who hails from Nashville, Tennessee and who speaks in soft and honied tones with a-gone-with-the-wind sigh in every sentence.

Joan Blaine's brother left recently for the Army. Joan's thriftiness in utilizing the fine material in his dinner suit is an object lesson to every woman today. The Valiant Lady star simply sat down and made her brother's suit over into a suit for herself. "Buy only what you need" is your Government's request. There isn't a home that hasn't some unwearable garment hanging in a closet. With a good pattern and a bit of ingenuity it can be made so that there are months of wear in it still. "And if it can't be used at home," says Joan, "see that it is given to one of the relief societies where it can be utilized by women and children in war-wrecked countries."

Joan Blaine
Sews at home

Orchestra leader Ray Bloch, whose music is heard on "Here's to Romance" Thursdays at 10:30 p.m. EWT over CBS, owns his own surrey with the fringe on top. He bought it recently from the estate of the late Sarah Delano, mother of the President of the United States.

Walter Yust
His Job the Encyclopaedia Britannica

"The Human Adventure" is back on the air Thursdays, 8:30 p.m. EWT over Mutual, and though the sponsorship this year is the same (the University of Chicago) the master-of-ceremonies is new. He is Walter Yust, editor-in-chief of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, a man whose titanic job it is to record for posterity the world's culture. This job requires the world's largest editorial staff—thirty seven hundred active contributors.

To Mark Warnow falls the enviable assignment of conducting for John Charles Thomas when the baritone moves his radio program to New York starting Sunday, November 14th; 2:30 p.m. EWT over NBC. Warnow will conduct only while the Thomas show is in the east—Victor Young will take over again when the program returns to the coast.

Drafted fathers not being permitted to be officers might be a very good idea, for after all, they are more used to TAKING orders!

There is really an art to appear prosperous though broke, believes a News reader, and many foreign countries have mastered the art.

There appears to be a decided reduction in the number of raccoon coats apparent on college campuses this Winter.

You can't even say "fill 'er up" in restaurants today.

For more peace and harmony, always try to get the same program on your radio as your neighbor is getting.

We don't want the government to take over railroads because it would take too much of their time trying to find names for Pullman cars.

A certain fellow who always says, "Never again," just means "until the next time."

We respect our Chinese and Russian allies, but those countries are surely hard on American proof readers.

It may not be such a job this year, recovering from our Thanksgiving dinner.

Have you ever noticed how fat turkey gobblers strut less around Thanksgiving time?

STILL PLUGGING

The fact still remains that we can't let up in our duty to our country, our boys, ourselves. Over-confidence and we slacken in buying war bonds, gathering scrap to give to steel mills who are sorely in need of it, turning in fat for explosives, keeping military news to ourselves, seeing production continues without a halt, doing away with waste, buying just what we need, paying no more than lawful, ending black markets and collecting papers and magazines. Such things as over-confidence, coal strikes, political jealousies, can make this country suffer. The war is not over, effort must be exerted to keep up the good fight—but with the enemy and not among ourselves. None of us must relax or withdraw until the peace is a certainty.

BUTCHERING

November brings to rural America the institution we call butchering and it is being done in certain small towns and country settlements all over, at this season. Changes have been made in farm life, in many ways, but the manners of modern living haven't put a stop to the time of slaughtering, which brings together the men to talk politics and the women to cook meals as they exchange recipes and gossip. Friends gather and appetites reach a new high. Butchering day becomes a festival of sorts and what might be unpleasant about the killing is really an invitation to attend a sociable event. It all leads up to spareribs, backbone, sausage and tenderloin. It approaches the realm of dumplings and mince pie. A time for taste and not distaste.

DOING IT EARLIER

There is nothing new in the yearly suggestion to "do your Christmas shopping early." When isn't it advised in order to facilitate delivery, wear not too thin the clerks and to offer a better selection of merchandise? This year they ask us to do it even earlier than usual. Some of our local shoppers have already heeded the advice to mail gifts in November and the plea will be answered by many others before the month is past. The postoffice must get the cards and gifts at least three weeks before Christmas and then can't assure us of prompt service. Due to the experience they had in handling the overseas gift boxes, they feel it is necessary to do our heavy mailing in November if we want to play safe and sure. No matter how important are gifts and cards to keep up morale, even at Christmas time the movement of war materials, war personnel and the usual military mail, will go first. We only have just so much transportation. So let's hurry and be about our gift wrapping.

THANKSGIVING IN WAR

Is there one in St. Joe to ask why we should give thanks this year in a sorry world? The list is long indeed, this matter of blessings, whether in time of war or peace, of danger or safety. In the days of the Pilgrims, when the first Thanksgiving was observed in 1621, the festival did not find them surrounded by privileges and opportunities without peril and privation to accompany them. They were refugees, had had their faith tried on every hand, suffered and toiled to make a living in this new land. Their devotion to a cause, their courage to surmount obstacles, their energy to overcome their enemies, all lead to our present Thanksgiving. We too have had lessons in privations, suffered death in our midst at the hands of enemies, found purses touched by heavy demands, been upset by criticism and known injustice. But should we pass by this Thanksgiving and wait until peace and harmony is established before we continue our prayers of thankfulness for blessings?

Our stomachs have not suffered from hunger, we have not lost our rights in education and worship. We have had less in luxuries and certain privileges and opportunities. We still have the basic idea of the Pilgrim Fathers as our guide and our right. This was carved out for us never to be destroyed. We will not concede one inch in thankfulness, be not one whit less grateful for democracy, tolerance, church worship, educational advantages, will not cease struggling to overcome prejudice and bigotry. The Thanksgivings of past years have found us pretty self-satisfied with ourselves and our nation, might even be called smug in our attitude. We are better able now to give reverant praise and deepful thanks for our wonderful beneficence and pray to be worthy of the happiness and joy to be had in a great country built by brave men and watched over by a just God.

The director of the Indiana division of fish and game has good news for trappers. Harrell Mosbaugh reports that fur prices this Winter are expected to be 20 per cent higher than last year. Mosbaugh also forecasts an increase in the opossum, muskrat and racoon populations this season, which opened in Indiana on Nov. 15th and closes January 15th. He says one reason for the increased number of opossum is last year's low prices on pelts. It kept many night hunters from taking them.

At a meeting of the DeKalb County Fair Association officials held in Auburn Friday evening it was agreed unanimously that DeKalb County should have an agricultural exposition in 1944. Directors and officials all expressed themselves in favor of the fair and stated that many farmers, and townspeople as well, had expressed themselves as disappointed the past two years that an agricultural fair had not been held and that they hoped it would be possible to have it in 1944. Mayor Potter expressed a friendly attitude toward granting the use of the streets for the fair. A second meeting will be held on Dec. 16, at the court house.

SOLDIER BOY WRITES FROM TEXAS

Hi Everybody:

I landed here O. K. in 36 hours. Plenty of snow from Chicago south to Oklahoma City, and then the sun has been shining since. We planted grass around our hut before I went home and the other night we had to water it, now it is growing again. The leaves are all on the trees here yet.

I didn't know it but here is where the pecans grow and they are just starting to fall. I am going to gather some as soon as I get time. Well this is all I can think to write this time. Hoping to hear from you soon.

I am,

Pvt. Carl Baughman, Adm. Sup. Sery. Plat. 1853rd. Serv. Com. Unit, Camp Bowie, Texas

Thanksgiving

November 25, 1943

● When troops at Camp Lee, Va., wanted a supply of turkeys for Thanksgiving they decided to get the biggest and best birds possible. So they visited the nearby Whippernock turkey farm and engaged in a martial version of the old-fashioned turkey hunt.

It's a far cry from the Massachusetts Pilgrim of early days to this modern man of war, but the idea is the same. Each got his bird.

After the successful hunt, this private first class plucks one of the turkeys as a third officer of the WACs delivers a few pointers.

Another private with marked culinary abilities seasons a pan of the Thanksgiving dinner's piece de resistance.

This hungry sergeant obliges with a "V" for Victory made of turkey drumsticks. He advised the photographer to make it "snappy." His appetite wouldn't allow him to hold the pose very long.

Here's another symbolical pose provided by a sergeant who made it plain that American soldiers are doing much more than just wishing for victory.

GEORGE ABEL, 80, DIES AT AUBURN

A stroke of paralysis claimed the life of George H. Abel, age 80, at his home on the cemetery road south of Auburn Tuesday morning at 9:40. Mr. Abel was stricken a week ago and passed into a coma last Thursday night. He had been active until he suffered the stroke.

Mr. Abel had suffered a stroke 17 years ago but he recovered and had been in fairly good health except last Winter when he was confined to his bed for seven weeks by illness.

The deceased was born in DeKalb County on May 10, 1863, and had been a life long resident of the county. He was the son of Henry Abel, a former St. Joe resident. He was a truck gardener and helped to lay out Roselawn cemetery in 1918 and had been sexton since that time.

He was married twice, the first time to Alda V. Shafer, who passed away in 1915. He was again married to a sister-in-law, Mrs. Zadie V. Abel, on May 10, 1916.

The survivors are as follows: The widow; three children by the first marriage, Elza J. Abel of Northfield, Vt.; Helen E. Mansfield of Garrett, and Laura M. Morrow of Richmond, Ind.; two children by the second marriage, Mildred L. Harnish of Rt. 3, Butler, and Homer L. Abel at home; two brothers, Merton Abel, of Branch, Mich., and Herbert Abel of Coldwater, Mich.; one sister, Mrs. Bert Williams of Garrett; 10 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The deceased was a member of the Church of Christ in Auburn and funeral services will be held at the church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be made in Roselawn Cemetery. J. N. Scholes, of St. Joe, assisted by C. T. Herod, pastor of the Auburn church, will officiate.

WATERFOWL FLIGHT IS ARRIVING FROM NORTH

The annual waterfowl flight from the north is now arriving in Indiana, and lakes throughout the state are being used as rest areas by the migratory birds, Harrell F. Mosbaugh, director of the Fish and Game Division reported.

A portion of the Lake Erie flight has crossed Indiana, and judging from the number of birds on the Hovey Lake state game preserve in Posey County, it is apparent that they have followed down the Ohio River, Mr. Mosbaugh said.

Ducks are beginning to appear on the streams in the northern half of the state, and Mr. Mosbaugh said mallards now may be found feeding in the cornfields. Blustery weather, anticipated in the near future, likely will provide good shooting along the courses of these streams, the director believes.

Mr. Mosbaugh reminded duck hunters that the migratory waterfowl season, which opened Oct. 15, will close Dec. 23. Both dates are inclusive.

The waterfowl migration from the north this year, according to estimates made by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service is expected to be one of the largest in history, Mr. Mosbaugh said.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Zimmerman had as Sunday dinner guests, their son, Cpl. Melvin Zimmerman and wife, who is home on eleven days furlough, Mrs. Chas. Zimmerman and children, Wm. Robert, Jackie, Betty and Pat, Mr. and Mrs. Philbert Mooney and children, Philbert, Wayne and Mike, Barbara Baker and Sherman Zimmerman. Evening callers were Pfc. Jack Chorpenning and wife.

CONCORD TWP. SCHOOLS

The pictures taken at school about a month ago came this week and the pupils handed them out on Tuesday.

Two thirds of the pupils in the school were given the eye test last week. Eleven out of the group needed rechecking or corrective measures for their eyes. Grade four and the freshmen and sophomores will be checked next week.

Allied Military Government

Before the Army had finished the battle of Salerno, the A. M. G. had gone to work. The streets had been cleaned and repaired; good water was flowing from the faucets 2 hours every day; food was shipped in, and the people were being cared for.

The A. M. G. is an organization which brings relief and order into territory taken by Allied troops. It is made up of British and American people trained for that work.

Unlike the Nazis who make a practice of robbing the lands they occupy, the A. M. G. takes immediate steps to provide food, clothing, and medicine. Then it burries the dead, provides a safe water supply, arranges shelter for the homeless, repairs broken gas mains and telephone lines, and gets the streets cleaned. It hires local workers for most of these jobs.

There is close harmony between the American and British. The two flags fly side by side in each town taken over by the A. M. G.

—Frances Miller.

The Ball Game

Last Friday night a ball game was held at the St. Joe High School Gymnasium, between Harlan and St. Joe.

On our official school Stamp Day, grades 1-6 sold a total of $40.25 in stamps. One stamp book was completed and converted into a bond.

The total number of pupils participating on that day was fifty-eight. We are urgently requesting that the parents help their children remember that TUESDAY is STAMP DAY at our school.

Grades 3-4 are working hard to have ready a playlet "The First Thanksgiving" which they are hoping to present for the benefit of the other grades this Wednesday afternoon.

—Harriett Oberlin.

The St. Joe Tigers lost to Harlan last Friday night here on the home floor 38-27 in a rough and fast game. The second team, however, won a close and thrilling game 25-22 over the Harlan reserves. The scoring of the first team game was as follow:

1500 "FORTS" FOR TOKYO AND BERLIN!

THE next time you pay your electric bill, remember: A large part of that money goes to blast the Axis!

Yes, over 15c of every dollar you turn over to us, we turn over to the federal government as taxes. In terms of the entire industry, that's over 400 million dollars—enough to buy more than 1500 giant bombers—at a quarter-million each.

And that's not all! Over 8c per dollar in addition goes to local and state governments—for your schools, roads, police and fire protection.

Altogether, from every dollar you pay us, we pass along at least 24c as taxes. And we do it willingly—in the face of higher costs and lower prices. Since no other electric power is federally taxed, we are often asked: "How can you manage?" Well, by business management—which means: efficiency—economy—careful planning!

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The Lions, to the number of thirty, partook of a fine meal, served by the Young Married People's class of the Lutheran Sunday School, in the church basement, Monday evening.

The committee in charge of the scrap drive reported 4330 pounds of paper collected last week. The collection in Concord Township and St. Joe will be next Saturday. They want all of your old paper and it will go to help on the war shortage.

Educational Director Rectenwall conducted a quiz session and from the amount of cash collected by the Tailtwister, the Lions appeared none too well posted.

President Leighty appointed a committee of the Blind, composed of Lions Maurice Monaghaugh, W. J. Baker, C. A. Dunker, and Frank Sellers.

Looking after the blind as a "first" service of the Lions. A Christmas committee composed of Lions Franklin Robinson, C. G. Rectenwall, Mark Williams and Clifford Billow, was also appointed.

Pastor Frank Stevenson was introduced and brought us a masterly address. "Only the Humble Can be Thankful" was the subject of his Thanksgiving message. He elaborated upon humbleness to such an extent those with an arrogant spirit could not help but be condemned.

We have much for which to be thankful and we should thank God for his many favors and blessings toward us. The humble will bow before God as in acknowledgement of his goodness to us.

The attendance contest is creating much speculation among the members and the Captains Lion Rectenwall and Lion Ridgway are beginning to realize that they are going to need a close check-up to determine their membership and then plan a drive on delinquent members. Lion Ridgway led the contest by an attendance of 88%.

Give your salvage paper to the Lions Club and phone chairman should you want him to call. Local pick-up will be made next Saturday.

KELLERS HOME FROM TRIP TO FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. Don Keller arrived home from Miami, Florida, Saturday night, after spending two weeks with their son, Paul, who is in camp. At the present time there are about 50,000 soldiers in training and a like number had recently been shipped. The soldiers are stationed about the beach in the hotels. All of the hotels were being used to house and train the men, but recently 13 of these were turned back to the owners, and with this condition, it makes it hard for vacationers to get rooms other than in private homes, and the rent has mounted so that it is almost prohibitive.

The temperature was around 70°, and this was cool for the South. Rainfall was a daily occurrence and the sun shone daily making the atmosphere most delightful. Being somewhat of a lake fisherman, Don tried his luck at sea fishing. Taking the fishing boat one morning they sailed out for about an hour and then threw in their lines in about 40 feet of clear water. Don caught a 2½ pounder, but luck was not with the party. One cought a 5½ pound shark. The Captain carried a ball bat along to kill the undesirable fish.

Many of the food prices are low and he gave for example, 2 pounds of bananas for 15c; tomatoes 20c a pound, and roasting ears 4 for 25c. Practically all stores are operated by Jews, and in most cases are self serving.

Meals are quite expensive at the restaurants. The soldiers don't have much left out of their monthly draw, and as many have their wives with them, the Jews are determined to get all they have. In the same rooming house with Mr. and Mrs. Keller, was a honeymoon couple. They with another couple went out for dinner and they came back reporting $23 for the dinner party of four. Rent in many of the hotels has advanced to as much as $17 per day, and will continue to advance each month until March, when the tourists then start to return home.

The Kellers enjoyed their trip very much, but could have seen much more had they been able to drive down.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The fifth grade geography class is learning about New York. We first traveled to Fifth Avenue. There we found many fine old mansions. Some of the country's richest people live there. The homes are very well furnished. They have many costly things. Standing now in some of the places are skyscrapers.

Another interesting thing is the Empire State Building. It is the tallest building in the world. It has one hundred two stories, sixty-seven elevators, is 1250 feet high, and has 25,000 workers.

If you ever travel to New York, you will see Broadway. Why do I speak of Broadway? Because it is the lightest street at night in New York. It is called "The Great White Way."

The New Yorkers have seven principal ways of making a living: banking, catering, warehousing, transportation, management, selling, and shipping.

We shall be taking more trips somewhere else. This is just a very small amount of New York. I hope you learn more.

—Jo Bowser.

The First Railroads In America

There were no idle moments for the passengers on the De Witt Clinton. The conductor blew a tin horn for starting, then came a jerk that sent the men's silk hats sprawling. The faster the train went the livelier the stack, just above the engineer's head, "belched out sparks and pieces of burning charcoal" that flew into the peoples hair and clothes. Their hands and arms were kept "busy as windmills" to keep the sparks from burning.

If you would have ridden on one of the first trains in America, you would have had to change trains about every other town because the width of the railroad tracks varied.

—Carman Freeburn.

Water Babies by Adoption

Jeeps, trucks, and tractors are being used on water as well as on land. Among them are the amphibious jeep, amphibious truck, and the amphibious tank.

The amphibious jeep runs on wheels like any ordinary jeep, but it is driven by a propeller. At the bow is a surfshield to keep off waves. It is steered by a rudder which is controlled by the steering wheel. The seats can be used as life preservers. When the jeep cannot climb a steep bank, a cable is unwound and is fastened to something solid at the top of the hill. The sea jeep has a serious military purpose for reconnaissance. It carries five men. When they get information from the enemy, they can go back at the speed of 60 miles per hour on land. The jeep's speed is not so fast on water.

The amphibious truck is called a duck. That name was taken from the official initials on the trucks, DUKW. The duck is a six wheel two-and-one-half-ton truck with a boat built around it. It uses its wheels on land. Its speed is a secret. It is useful for unloading cargo ships where the water is shallow. Ducks are used to unload ships in the South Pacific.

Another amphibious burden has been named the alligator. It does the work of a truck but it is correctly called a tractor. It rus on a track like a tank. It looks like a tank and carries guns for protection. Its track has heavy steel paddles. The paddles pull it through the water and give it traction. The alligator is at work in the Pacific Islands. Coral reefs stopped the landing barges, but not the alligators.

—Donald Inlow.

Is Germany Beginning To Weaken?

There are stories being told by the German neutral citizen who have been allowed to travel in that country. Some of the stories have been that all of Hitler's losses are not on the battle front. He seems to be losing on the home front as well. The German people after hearing some of these stories have given up hope of winning the war. They have had too many severe shocks.

The battle of Stalingrad was the first big shock. They lost nearly four million men. The surrender of Italy was another shock. Perhaps the greatest shock of all came from the constant bombing of Germany by allied planes.

Last winter the German people were allowed enough coal to keep them from freezing if they wore their overcoats. Apartment dwellers got hot water once a week. This fifth winter of war the Germans will get 70 per cent as much coal as they did. On August 1 the sale of clothing to civilians stopped entirely. They were allowed 2 pounds of textiles a year per person. No dressmaker was allowed to make a new dress. Nearly all stores have been shut down.

The average German gets about 5 pounds of bread, nine ounces of meat, eight ounces of sugar, and nine pounds of potatoes a week. Those who do heavy work get a little more. Butter and other fats are almost unheard of. Only young children get milk little at that.

—Lola Mae Davis.

HAROLD WISE WINS DEKALB CORN YIELD

A crop of 113.14 bushels per arce won the corn growing championship of DeKalb County in the 1943 National DeKalb hybrid corn growing contest. Harold Wise, of near Auburn, is the corn grower who has made this outstanding yield in this locality in competition in which over 10,000 farmers from 17 principal corn producing states participated, according to officials of this biggest corn yield competition.

Mr. Wise and several other farmers in this county certainly produced more than their share of the nation's record crop of more than 3,085,000,000 bushels of corn in the food front battle. The champ's yield is several times that of the estimated average yield for the United States of 32.7 bushels.

The county winner's corn was grown from Hybrid No. 639, and his yield calculated from the best five acres of corn in his farm. In recognition of his achievement the winner is being presented with an appropriate plaque by the DeKalb Agricultural Association.

Other big yields recorded were made by Kenneth Mertz, Corunna, 113.68; Ira Williams, Auburn, 112.21; Leonard Jarrett, St. Joe, 93.39; and Harold Tappan, Butler, 91.02.

NEED OF PENNIES

Our children have heartily cooperated in the matter of rationing. They have helped nobly to put over salvage drives, buy war stamps and the many other duties required of whole-souled Americans. Now they will again give their attention to save a situation and perhaps this time with more heart in their work! There is a present scarcity of pennies and they are being rationed to members of the federal reserve banks due to this shortage. Americans are asked to release some of the hoarded pennies and get them into circulation at once. This plan will dennitely appeal to local youngsters. Although 465 million of the zinc-coated pennies have been minted and circulated since last February 12, still it isn't enough. Parents will be asked for pennies to help, purely from a patriotic stand-point, mind you, but testimonial enough that all war demands aren't too unpleasant.

A-HUNTING THEY MUST GO

Hunters migrated to the North woods in thousands of cars to track down the deer. The fact that the government did not authorize extra gas or recognize the right, did not keep more hunters than usual, from going forth to get their buck within the 16-day period allowed for this sport. They have been unable to guess how much gas was consumed although cars carried more riders than normally. Whether this will result in penalizing those who went, it is too late to get back the fuel into the tanks. Perhaps enough of the hunters will return with venison that the meat situation will notice the effect, and what was lost in gasoline might be made up in hamberger. Evidently a sportsman won't be denied his outing, whatever the cost.

I FYOU RECALL

There are those who acclaim the warm chimes during cold Winter months and hie themselves off to sunshine and sand when the first blast strikes the frost-bitten states; those who probably looked forward in their earlier years to the months when temperatures mattered little enough if bobsledding and ice-skating were possible. Zero was only a number when sleigh riding was scheduled. Weather then was pleasantly crisp and sniffling was invigorating, snow was a virtue to enjoy while it lasted. That thrill still remains for many of us who have found the blood not so appreciative of the Winter's winds perhaps, and yet whose memories are stirred enough to warm the body in their nostalgic reminiscing of clean, white-capped surfaces, curtains of soft flakes falling on the face as a blessing and staying a moment on the sleeve as a dream pattern. Sleigh bells jingle sweetly still around St. Joe, if not usable then as a decorative feature in holiday designs. Snow and Winter always seem to be a part of the country rather than to the city. Seems to belong in the open where fields and woods offer it expanse and breathing space. What stays so serenely amooth on bushes and pathways in the country, becomes quickly slush and ice on the city street. Smoke from farm house chimneys curls most cheerfully in the open acres as city vapor grays from factory and store furnaces. How could one forget!

OUR EYES ARE NOT BLINDED

A mid-western state has a school named after a beloved former president and it has been denounced as a hot bed of Communistic teachings, defaming the great man whose name it bears. A report of the plan by which the Communists expect to take over the entire wealth and industry of this United States and to name a permanent and sure dictatorship, was allegedly revealed by an instructor in the school. This is not the first, nor will it be the last time, that the word Communism has been hurled at teachers, administrators o 1 government, at the pulpit, lecture platform. There is much to be said for both sides, much thought to be given all types of argument. Through it all we are not ignorant of conditions, nor blind or dumb. We will not allow ourselves to be enmeshed in any system not agreeable and satisfactory to the majority. Nor shall we become upset unduly by politically harangues that are more personal tirades than opinions of level-headed, intelligent, conscientious citizens. This nation will remain a democracy, for the majority will it so! There are those who are fighting overseas right this minute who will see to it that those at home will keep the faith. However, in our criticism and public discussion must not fall our sons and ourselves by so disgusting and refusing to recognize our allies, that we lead this nation into paths of self-righteous indignation and lose the confidence of the members of "our team." Perhaps England's colonial policy does not appeal to us, but we do not refuse to lend her aid, accept her assistance, welcome her cooperation. We must concentrate on the common enemy and gain a sure victory through mutual understanding with our allies. Then if we find we have a powerful enemy within our land who needs attention we will then have our sons safely back home to help us clean house. Right?

Bessie

"All right, Bessie," said the boss of the little factory which was making jackets for soldiers. "Did you want to see me about something?"

The thin middle-aged woman stood up from the chair in the outer office and looked earnestly at the boss with her huge, grave gray eyes.

"It's about this ten percent pledge," she began.

"Oh, that's all right, Bessie," the boss said. "I'd been meaning to speak to you about that. We don't expect you to pledge ten percent of your pay for War Bonds like the others are doing. We know you have a hard time making ends meet since Jake died. Eleven kids, isn't it? That's quite a lot of mouths to feed. Let's see, you make $25.50 a week including overtime, don't you?"

"Yes, sir, but . . ."

The boss smiled.

"Don't give it another thought, Bessie. You've got your hands full now. Uncle Sam knows you haven't got a penny to spare. Don't let it worry you. We understand."

The boss turned to go back into his private office.

"But what I wanted to say was . . ." Bessie raised her voice and the boss looked around. "I wanted to say, would a dollar a week be too little? You see, after we get the living expenses paid, there's just about a dollar a week left. Would they be willing to accept a dollar a week?"

"They'd be more than willing," the boss said quietly. "They'd be proud."

Bessie looked relieved.

"All we have to do is scrimp a little," she said. "I'd feel just terrible if we couldn't give something."

Back in the boss' office a representative of the Treasury Department was waiting. The boss shut the door and sat down.

"I've just seen the greatest single sacrifice I know of," the boss said. "Listen, if you want to hear what American women are made of . . ."

It's Santa's favorite charity!

You see, these little Seals give the greatest gift of all—health, life itself. As long as Santa can remember, the American people have made this a part of their Christmas giving in depression and prosperity, in peace time and war.

This year our needs are doubly great—because a wartime rise in tuberculosis must be prevented. So, make sure that every letter and package carried by Santa is stamped with your Christmas gift to mankind—and please send in your contribution today!

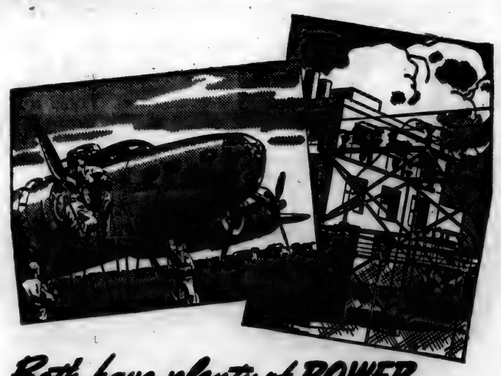
DECEMBER



Both have plenty of POWER for the Big Job Ahead

BUILDING fortresses and all of the other equipment for our armed forces has made huge demands on electric power—needs which have been amply filled, for there is no shortage of electric power capacity for both war and civilian requirements . . .

The shortage that exists is in natural resources from which electricity is made and in equipment and critical materials for its use.

The Government urges you to voluntarily conserve fuel, manpower and critical materials by avoiding waste of coal, petroleum, electricity, gas, water, communications and transportation. Coupled with this request is a warning that you should use the electricity you need for safety and health, including eyesight conservation.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY

To Save Coal and Critical Materials Conserve Electricity.

Frank Sellers was on the sick list several days the past week.

Mrs. Virginia Leighty and daughter, Joan, of Ft. Wayne, were over Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Leighty.

Thanksgiving supper guests at the Roy Harper home were Virgil Richmond and sons and William Laux, Mr. Delbert Thomas of New Haven and Miss Margarette White, of Amarillo, Texas.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

Help the Hen Do Her Best

In a year when there are feed, labor and housing shortages, and at the same time poultry raisers are striving for increased egg production to meet Uncle Sam's goals, it is necessary for DeKalb County poultrymen to keep their wits about them and do the things they know will result in efficient egg production, suggests County Agricultural Agent, C. E. Baker. It is common sense that it doesn't pay to keep a lot of hens or pullets that are not laying.

At this time of year, it normally does not pay to cull except to eliminate pullets that show signs of going out of condition or are extra slow in coming into production. Many poultrymen do not have adequate hopper space or proper drinking facilities; consequently, their pullets do not come into production properly or their birds quit after several months and then they cull out these individuals.

After enough birds have been removed, those that remain will do a good job because the hopper space is sufficient for their number. It is advisable to limit the number of hens so that practically all of them may eat mash at one time.

Pullets that are small and have not developed as rapidly as the rest of the flock generally are unprofitable to keep. They are apt to lay small eggs and be slow coming into egg production. Where more than one pen of pullets is kept, it is recommended that they be housed according to size. L. A. Wilhelm, Purdue University extension poultryman, urges poultry raisers to keep hens that are out of condition, out of the hen house. He suggests that poultrymen see their county agricultural agent for helpful suggestions in the care of the laying flock.

Egg Production Goals

The new food production goals for Indiana call for as many eggs in 1944 as were produced this year, so keep those hens and pullets laying, is the advice of County Agricultural Agent, C. E. Baker, to DeKalb County poultry raisers.

Egg production during the first nine months of this year was the highest on record for that period—13 per cent above last year and 43 per cent above the 10 year average, says L. A. Wilhelm, Purdue University Extension poultryman.

Egg production continues profitable in spite of feed price increases. Prices received by farmers for eggs in September, as shown by the U. S. Department of Agriculture Crop Reporting Boards, averaged 41.6 cents per dozen. This was 20 per cent above last year and 84 per cent above the 10-year average. The average cost of feed in a United States farm poultry ration Sept. 15 was $2.15 per 100 pounds. This is 28 per cent above a year ago and 69 per cent above the 10-year average.

Indiana farmers are keeping more hens than they did last year, and getting more eggs per hen. This is possible, says Wilhelm, because the average flock is receiving better care and more feed than usual. Although feed supplies for poultry probably will be adequate, Wilhelm suggests that the poultryman cull constantly, plenty of pasture, and not overcrowd the laying house.

CORRECT PELT HANDLING MEANS BETTER PRICES!

It is our responsibility to make full use of, and get maximum value from, the natural resources at our disposal. The rich American fur crop provides a source of income to those in all parts of the country who are interested in harvesting it.

If FURS are worth trapping at all, certainly they are worth the time and effort needed to prepare them properly, so that they will bring you maximum cash returns!

The mink and skunk pelts shown give eloquent testimony to this creed. The fact that the correctly handled ones brought from $1.00 to $7.50 more per pelt than the incorrectly prepared ones, indicates that careful pelt handling pays.

By taking the pains to follow pelt handling standards, you are preparing the goods you have to sell in the manner in which the user prefers. It is easier for him to make up uniform lots when all pelts are shaped correctly. Thus, you are following the standards preferred by your customer—the manufacturer of fur garments. By doing that, you aim at TOP prices for your skins!

At the same time, you are protecting your pelts from spoiling. Insufficiently dried skins, or those upon which too much fat is left, are likely to reach the market in a tainted condition. Naturally, such furs bring considerably less money.

One-half of the taxes assessed for state, county, and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1944.

The second installment is due on or before the first Monday in November, 1944. BOTH INSTALLMENTS ARE OF LIKE AMOUNT.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and the separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipt. Real estate transferred in 1943 will appear in new name in Treasurer's office in 1945.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1943. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after the FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1944 AND FIRST MONDAY IN NOVEMBER, 1944.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1944.

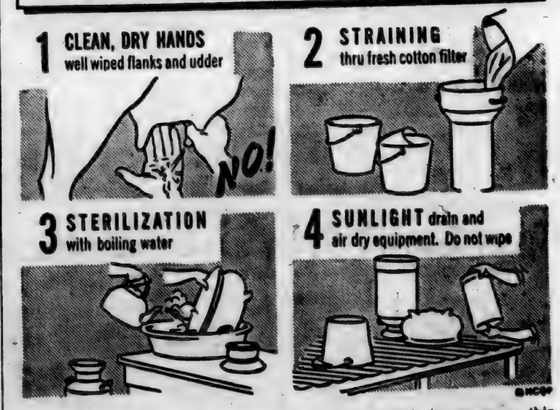
FOUR COMMANDMENTS OF CLEANLINESS IN CREAM PRODUCTION



Unless he keeps a single key-word in mind constantly, it is impossible for a farmer to produce good cream—whether or not that cream is destined to be churned into butter. That word is cleanliness. The essentials of cleanliness in cream production are illustrated above.

Failure to observe these simple precautions is estimated to cost farmers of the United States $40,000,000 a year, if seizures of unfit cream and butter, and losses resulting from the lower value of poor cream, are taken into account. Forty million dollars is enough to pay for a new battleship or to pay a big part of the U. S. farm families' yearly clothes bill. The farmer in search of extra profits and the farm women who bears a large portion of the responsibility for the maintenance of the sanitary standards surrounding the production of cream must join hands to conserve this large sum of money which is literally escaping through their fingers.

Old, unsanitary equipment cannot possibly yield No. 1 grade cream. A battered, seamed or rusty pail is a definite threat to cream quality. Old-fashioned strainers or unsanitary cheesecloth will spoil clean milk. An efficient, well-kept, mechanical separator is a necessity. Syrup buckets, lard cans, crocks, cooking utensils or other makeshift containers are not suitable for holding cream. Good equipment is a good investment, and the profits from the improved quality of the cream will pay for it over and over again, tests have demonstrated. But even good equipment must be well cared for. The best of equipment cannot produce the best of cream unless it is cleaned and sterilized each time it is used.

SOLDIER GETS ADVANCEMENT

Nov. 29, 1943.

Dear Grandma:

Well here it is another Monday and a nice day, except it was real cool this morning. I should have said Monday night. This makes about a month here in the desert, too. The 26 or 27th I'm not sure is one month.

I have been getting your letters regular, keep it up, I sure am glad to hear from you and sorry that I can't answer them oftener. Maybe the day isn't too far when I won't have to write, but can see you, and this thing will be over. It sure can't stop too soon to suit me.

I have some good news for you. The 16th of this month I got another advancement or another stripe. This one is an arc under the T, making me a Technician 3rd grade, or a Staff Tech., is the same pay as a Staff Sgt. I guess it pays to stay "on the ball" as they say and put your effort in this game. I am the only T-3 that is connected with the three infantry battalions, the rating is for ordinance, maintenance, and signal corps men, the way I got mine was being connected through the Division Hq. Company. We are a part of them instead of being a part of the infantry as we were. A good break for all of us in the outfit. There'll be more ratings for more of the boys later. Three of us have them now and about three or four to get them yet.

When we get letters from home and they say it is snowing it makes us homesick. Seems funny for them to speak of snow when it is so warm day times here, don't seem like there could be snow any where else.

I forgot to tell Mom that the Desert Training Center is giving this division 5 day furloughs. I am sorry that they aren't long enough to get home on, but we will get them some of these days after maneuvers are over. Two of us are all that can go at a time, so my partner and I are going to spend about four days in Los Angeles (285 miles.) They insist that we take them and I haven't had one since April 14 to 24. Mine starts the second of December.

Well Grandma, I'll close for this time, hoping to hear again soon, and I'll write again soon. Received your letter today. Keep it up.

Love as always,
Your soldier grandson,

Los Angeles, Calif.
Nov. 22, 1943.

My dear Mrs. Coburn:

"It is with great pleasure that I note the recent promotion of your son, Charles W. Coburn, to the grade of Technician 3rd grade. This is the second advancement in grade he has received since his assingment to the Eleventh Armed Division.

"His progress is a tangible demonstration of his fitness to lead his fellow Americans into the great battles which lie ahead. His attention to duty and his willingness to accept responsibility reflect the inspired fighting spirit of this nation of free men."

Sincerely yours,
Edward H. Brooks,
Major General, U. S. A.
Commanding.

WARREN RECTENWALL WRITES FROM OVERSEAS

October 19, 1943.

Dear Mom and Dad:

Perhaps this will take a little longer than the V-mail that I have been accustomed to write, but I can get a little more in it.

There was a lot to see in Sicily, and although I didn't see it all, I managed to do my best. Palermo was a modern city with a hint of Middle Ages Europe. One could go from the most modern to a section astonishingly dirty with narrow winding streets where the balconies almost touch overhead. I don't think the sun ever shines in some of these places and there is a damp, dark shroud hanging about.

It was in these places that I saw the milkman delivering his product on the hoof. Every one just hung about with containers ranging from wine bottles to earthen jugs. Also the vegetable vendors set up shop right along and many times in the middle of some narrow street so that when one wanted to drive thru one had to blow the horn madly and swear like hell and wave arms in all of the accompanying gestures.

Even with many of the large modern sections and apparent wealth, the standard of living is extremely low; as an example a hair cut, shave 15 lire—15c; grapes at about 5 big bunches for a penny. Naturally after the Yanks moved in prices went up some. Speaking of shaves, I had my own special barber that shaved me every day, 4c per.

Most of the Sicilians are quite America conscious since about every family has some relative over there. One of my boys found his grandmother, another his aunt and uncle. Then, too, many had lived in the States, a number of them former bootleggers in St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland and other places.

One experience was funny: Lt. Benzer, Mulheron and myself went out one evening to find a place on the beach suitable to swim; we finally wandered down a little narrow path that ended at the edge of an orchard, but we could drive on thru; however, our path was blocked by a cement telephone pole that had been felled. Benzer stood up in the jeep and began to wave his arms and try to show that we would like to go around thru the orchard if it was all right with the owner; too, he tried to employ some of the pigeon Italian that we'd picked up. Our efforts seemed stymied because the joe just stood there and grinned; Benzer finally disgustedly said in English, "Can't we go around the damn thing" and in answer, "Heli yes, if you can drive that thing" in perfect English. It turned out that this guy had been a barber in Cleveland for 15 years and had come back to see his folks and gotten caught and couldn't leave; he thought that he had a son in the army because the boy was now 22. There are a good many such instances.

The whole island is beautiful in spite or because of the huge peaked mountains and sheer walls with the little villages clinging to the peaks and sides. When I saw Mt. Etna, I was stopped because I never have seen so much rock in one place. Not only did it run from left to right as far as one could see, but also high up into the clouds. That night when I returned I received my camera.

Messina was a beautiul place even though there isn't much left of it now that we gave it the works. As one approaches on the north coast road, the road goes thru some steep, treacherous mountains and then suddenly you are looking down on Messina and Italy from about 3000 feet. From this point, the mainland appears so close that one could easily toss—not throw — a stone across the Straits. It is a beautiful picture in the afternoon with the blue sky, big lazy white clouds, the mountains on both sides and the white buildinged cities of Reggio and Messina facing each other. I could eaisly see the jerries driving up and down the streets of Reggio (with field glasses) when I was driving up and down the streets of Messina.

To return to the mountains just before one can see Messina, it is amazing to turn around and look behind. One can see the coastline jagged and broken by occasional mountains sliding to the water's edge but with the white sand and deep blue water contrast. Then if one looks more northward, he can see two small volcanoes sitting up vertically out of the sea with the twisting spires of smoke drifting from these. I was lucky in a way to be on Detached Service with the British 8th to see just what I have described. It was plenty interesting when the Tommies went across and I saw that, too, but since that is war, I'll have to save that for a later date.

Hope you enjoy this and that it reaches you before long. Write when you can.

Love,
Lt. Warren B. Rectenwall,

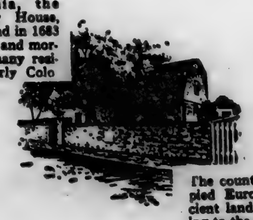
On the shores of the Delaware stands the oldest residence in Pennsylvania, the Caleb Pusey House, built at Upland in 1683 of field stone and mortar like so many residences of early Colonial days.



The countries of occupied Europe hold ancient landmarks pointing to the dim past, but in the mad attempt to Nazify the entire continent Germany has wantonly destroyed thousands of historic links to obliterate all but the Teuton trademark.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

The Rev. Howard R. Kunkle, Missionary on furlough from British Guiana, South America, will be the guest speaker at the regular services of the local Lutheran Parish next Sunday, December 12. For the benefit of friends in the community who may wish to attend—and for a reminder to all members,—the following is the schedule of regular services for this Sunday:

St. Mark's, Butler . . . 9-10 A. M.
St. Peter's, Spencerville 11-12 A. M.
St. Mark's, St. Joe . . . . 7-8 P. M.

In addition to these regular appointments, Mr. Kunkle will address the St. Joe Sunday School preceding the class period.

REV. HOWARD R. KUNKLE

Missionary Kunkle and wife have completed their first three year term of service in British Guiana and plan to return to this work following their one year furlough in the States. At present they are dividing their time between resting from the strain of service in this tropical climate and meeting a heavy speaking assignment in the interest of future world missions work, especially in South America. While part of his message will be a report on what has been accomplished, his greater interest is to arouse a greater personal and financial participation in mission work. The greatest need is for consecrated young people to send forth as laborers into the ready harvest fields of humanity.

The first congregation in the British Guiana Mission was founded by Lutherans from Holland in 1743 at New Amsterdam but geographical, racial, political and religious obstacles together with meager support and insufficient leadership have combined to keep this a slow developing field. In the last six years, under the leadership of Missionaries P. O. Machetzki (1937-1940) and Howard R. Kunkle (1940-1943) and with the able assistance of two native East Indian pastors, Patrick Magalee and Aubrey Brown, (the latter was a school mate and friend of Pastor Stevenson at Wittenberg College and Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio) the mission has really begun to grow and bear fruit.

Missionary Kunkle has been in charge of the entire mission field for the past three years. As administrator, educator, and evangelist he covered a large part of British Guiana by all kinds of transportation except modern. Many of his trips were up the wide tropical rivers of that country into the primeval jungle. He worked among Negroes, Chinese, East Indians, and aborigines, some times have a few of each in a single congregation. He has interesting experiences to relate and a vital message to deliver and does both well. Plan now to attend at least one of these services.

Frank Stevenson, Pastor,
Spencerville, Indiana.

PLEADS GUILTY IN COUNTY COURT

Carma Jean Sessler, 22, of St. Joe, was fined $5 and the costs in the DeKalb Circuit Court Tuesday when she pleaded guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and a sentence of 6 months to the state farm was suspended during good behavior. Mrs. Sessler's husband is a soldier, overseas, and the officer report that she has been making a habit of taking school boys out on trips. It is said that two of these trips were to Chicago and Detroit. The father of one of the boys filed the affidavit that was prepared by Prosecuting Attorney Hugh G. Sanders.

Arrested late Monday by Sheriff Paul F. Miller, the young woman posted $250 cash bond for her appearance in court. The fine and costs amounted to $18.05. She paid the amount and was released.

GROVER LIKENS FIGURES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

A 1936 Chevrolet coach driven by Grover Likens, of Jackson Township, was damaged to the extent of $150 and a 1937 Dodge coupe operated by Elizabeth Herendeen of Garrett, sustained $75 damage Sunday aternoon when they collided at the intersection of Road 27 and a county highway 2 miles west of Auburn. Likens was going north and the other machine was proceeding east. Sheriff Paul Miller and State Policeman Jack Nye investigated. Likens told them he did not see the other machine in time.

A CORRECTION

The item in last week's paper concerning the corn yield which made Harold Wise, of near Auburn, the county champion, was in error as to bushels. It was given as 113.14 bushels per acre, but should have read 118.14 bushels. Kenneth Mertz, of Corunna, was a close second with 113.68 bushels.

SPENCERVILLE YOUTH IN AUBURN HOSPITAL

Carl Hoover, 15, of Rt. 1, Spencerville, lies unconscious at the Dr. J. A. Sanders Hospital in Auburn, suffering from head injuries as the result of an automobile accident that took place Saturday at 11:15 P. M. on State Road 1, one-fourth of a mile north of Spencerville near the Akey home.

The driver of the car was Levi Miles, 24, also of Rt. 1, Spencerville, and it is expected he will face a criminal charge in the DeKalb Circuit Court. If the Hoover boy lives, the complaint will likely be reckless driving, but if he dies, Miles will probably be charged with reckless homicide.

Miles is an employe of the International Harvester Co. in Ft. Wayne. He stopped at the Vendrely station in Spencerville Saturday night and was joined by young Hoover and two girls. They made a trip to Hicksville and visited a tavern. Miles afterward admitted to the officers that he drank some beer. Returning to Indiana, the girls were taken home.

It is reported about St. Joe that Miles was in town a few minutes before the accident, and that on leaving St. Joe he was unable to negotiate the turn south at the Wade Grocery and he went west and had to back up, so as to head south.

Miles afterward was going south on the state highway at a speed admitted to have been 60 miles an hour. As the 1937 Ford sedan left a curve, the right rear tire blew out. Miles lost control. The machine ran 275 feet on the berm on the right side of the road, then crossed the pavement and ran 111 feet before it turned turtle in a field.

Miles was not hurt. He went to a farmhouse and called Roscoe Walter for his ambulance. Young Hoover was taken from the wrecked car and removed to the hospital in Auburn. In addition to the head injuries, he suffered lacerations of the arm and head.

The accident was investigated by Sheriff Paul F. Miller and State Policeman Jack Nye, of Auburn. Miles told them he had bought some "A" gasoline coupons from other Harvester Co. employes for 25 cents each.

They BOTH have a stake in their Electric Company!

Paul Packard owns some stock in the local light and power company. Jimmy, the newsboy, never bought a share of stock in his life. But he has a stake in the electric company too — because Jimmy's bank invests his small savings in just such businesses. Your savings bank, your life insurance company, your fraternal order probably put some of your money into electric securities. In a very real sense, the electric light and power companies were built by the same people they serve. THAT KENTUCKY ELECTION

The Fourth Congressional District in Kentucky, comprising 19 of the state's 120 counties, and situated in the central part of the state, in a special election held November 30th, gave another severe jolt to the Democrats and increases the enthusiasm of the Republicans.

Vote to Fill Vacancy.

The special election was held to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Representative E. W. Creal, Democrat, and the winner will serve the unexpired part of Creal's term which ends in January, 1945.

The Republican candidate was Chester O. Carrier, of Litchfield. The Democratic nominee was J. Dan Talbot, of Bardstown, a veteran in Democratic politics. Mr. Carrier won by the hugh majority of 12,598 votes.

Trend in Recent Elections.

In 1938, Democratic Congressman, majority 10,140.

In 1940, Democratic Congressman, majority 16,114.

In 1942, Democratic Congressman, majority 4,806.

Republican majority in 1943, 12,598.

For the first time in 15 years Kentucky now has two Republicans in its Congressional delegation.

The motto on the assembly bulletin board this week is "It is a wise boy who knows he isn't."

Walter Stump, secretary of the Auburn Lodge No. 6001 (Loyal Order of Moose) sent fifteen dollars to the St. Joe band for winning second place in the high school band contest at the Auburn Fair. He wrote: "The Auburn Lodge greatly appreciates the cooperation of St. Joe High School in the victory parade at the Auburn Fair."

The DeKalb County Teachers' Institute was held on Saturday, Dec. 4 in the Court House Auditorium. Roll call was at 9:30 and then there was music by the Ashley Schools. Mr. Buckner was the director. After the announcements were made, Prof. Geo. E. Davis, Director of Teacher Licensing and Placement at Purdue University, gave an address. Prof. Davis gave another address at 1:00 in the afternoon.

The seniors received their pictures Friday morning.

War Stamp sales in the grades, amounted to $45.80, last week. This is a new high for total sales, although the number participating was below the peak. In addition, there was a $50 bond purchase, which makes the week's total $83.30.

Basketball

In a game that saw a St. Joe team fighting every minute of the game Leo won over the Tigers 30-64. In the first quarter the Tigers were ahead at one time 8-7, but with the Leo five hitting almost every shot they took, they went on to win. The game was interesting the whole way through, for St. Joe never gave up until the final whistle blew. The second team lost also 50-7. The scoring of the first team game was as follows:

World's Views

We listened to a radio program entitled "World's Views." It is a very interesting program. It tells you what is going on around the world.

There are some mothers' sons that were shot down by the Germans. Some soldiers were choked to death; others burned.

The announcer introduced a Junior Red Cross worker. She said that she sent gift boxes across the sea for the boys and girls. She said that more than eighteen hundred gift boxes had been sent across the sea. In the boxes were games, tricks, puzzles, books, and clothing.

In a certain school there were more than a hundred persons bought stamps and bonds. The school was very proud of what they had done.

You, too, ought to buy stamps and bonds, for you should—Keep them flying With War Bond buying.

A Roman Dinner

The Roman dinner hour was at the ninth hour. (Romans counted the hours of the day from sunrise to sunrise.) If few people were to be present, the dinner was placed in the atrium or front hall of the house, however, if many were expected dinner was placed in the dining room. The men and women both were at the dinner, but the women sat in chairs while the men reclined on couches.

The first course of a dinner was always eggs followed by wine. After the first course, the people were given napkins and water and the main course was placed on the table. They talked, and, after a while a slave would sing a song. The lares (household gods) were then carried in and placed on the table. They were worshipped in form and retired. Then the dessert (usually fruit) was served to them.

After dinner an acrobatic act was given by servants or a traveling show troup. The people usually left for home directly after the entertainment.

Nations Plan Postwar Relief

On Nov. 9, 44 delegates of 33 nations and 11 associated nations held a meeting. Beginning with Mr. Roosevelt they all signed an agreement which made a difference between life and death for millions of people. By signing this pact they created the UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.) This helps people in countries that Germany and Japan took, but had to give them up to the Allies again. This UNRRA gives them food and shelter.

The Germans shipped these people like cattle all over the country and told them where to work. They wouldn't let them go home to their families. The UNRRA is helping them to get back home and to help start up their farms again.

They don't have very much milk because the Germans took their cows. We have rationing so we can share our food with those people that haven't any.

The Machine Age

Subject: The machine on the whole has led to the declining of Civilization.

Bessie Baughman, Rosemary Yeiser, and Jean Hurni, were on the affirmative side. The points were good and I shall list some of them. "The victims of the early stages of the Industrial Revolution were the factory workers. They left their homes to undergo the long hours, the unaccustomed discipline, the squalid living conditions, and the precarious existance of the new industrial life. Under the 'domestic system' they had been their own masters, as they combined the home industry with farming. The introduction of a new system of large scale farming deprived many of them of their small farms at the very time when factories were demanding labor workers. The working hours were fourteen, fifteen, or even more hours a day in the lint-laden atmosphere of the factories or the dangerous darkness of the mines. Women and children were preferred for much of the work because they could be paid even smaller wages than men. No longer did a worker know the creative joy of making a complete article. When their long hours of toil were done they went home to crowded, unsanitary gloomy tenements, which disfigured every factory town. The life was hard enough when there was work, but it was desperate when there was times of depression."

The negative side was composed of Jo Ann Deiderich, Maxine Converse and William Billow. It was said by this group that "the various inventions, dealing with communication, have had very important results. They have brought the world much closer. The inventions have done much to break down provincialism and made travel easy.

"War and government have been affected, to say nothing of industry and commerce, the needs of which first led to these vital changes."

—Eugene Gee.

Trip to Chicago

There were six of us—Miss Moore, Home Demonstration Agent, Billie Walters, Louise Wilson, Laura Cline, Ruth DePew, and myself. We left Garrett at 6:05 and arrived in Chicago at 9:05.

We registered at the Morrison Hotel. We then walked to the Art Institute and looked around until time for lunch. We had lunch up town and then took a bus to Field Museum. The Field Museum has 18 acres 11 of which are exhibition area. You can easily see why we didn't get to see everything in it.

After the Field Museum we walked to Shedd Aquarium and then the Planetarium. It is a 12 sided building of rainbow granite blocks. The planetarium is in the Central hall under the dome. The show is the demonstration of the Planetarium instrument. It projects into the dome a miniature universe. So perfectly is this portrayed that one has the feeling of looking into the heavens. You can see the sun, moon, planets, threading their ways among the stars.

Around 4:30 we went up town for supper and then to the hotel.

The play to say the least was wonderful. It was at the Civic Theatre and the title was "Janie." It is the story of a high school girl by the name of Janie, and her family, and her friends.

Friday morning we got up at 5:30. We had to be at the studio for the Breakast Club at 7. The Breakfast Club is just the way it sounds only funnier.

We spent the rest of the day shopping. We had lunch at Marshall Fields and then went back to the hotel to pack and check out.

We got mixed up in the stations. We went to the Union and we were supposed to go to the Grand Central. Our train left at 3:55 and it was about 6:30 when we got back to Garrett tired, yes, but happy.

YOUR JOB AT HOME

IF ever there was a Christmas that should not be forgotten, it is the one we are celebrating this year. Remember that our boys all over the world are fighting . . . and dying . . . for the right to observe Christmas and all the other things that stand for home and peace in civilized countries. We all know one of the best ways to express this Christmas spirit is by remembering our friends with a gift or even just a word of greeting.

Have you ever considered the number of delightful Christmas presents you can make right in your own kitchen? Not only do people love to receive home-made goodies but, in this year of shortages and rationing, gifts of food will be particularly welcome.

When it comes to the question of just what to give, there are many interesting possibilities available . . . cakes, cookies, puddings and candies, to name only a few.

No doubt you have your favorite recipes for Yuletide sweets but don't overlook the quantity of delicious things you can make that are coffee-flavored. Everybody goes for coffee in a big way and you cannot go wrong if you use it as a flavoring in your Christmas goodies. With plenty of coffee available now we can all enjoy it as a flavoring, as well as a beverage. Let's make the most of this grand opportunity.

There is nothing quite like good things to eat and drink to help maintain morale. A good cup of delicious, full-strength coffee, you know, warms the heart and boosts the spirit like nothing else in the world. Let's remember this when we are making up our Christmas lists. We cannot send along a cup of coffee but we can give our Christmas sweets that distinctive coffee flavor.

DECEMBER

Indiana Section of Tri-State Highway Approved

Govrnor Henry F. Schricker announced today that he has approved the plan of the State Highway Commission of Indiana to proceed as rapidly as conditions will permit with the design and construction of that part of the Tri-State highway lying within Indiana.

The proposed highway thru the Calumet area, which will link Indiana with continuing roads in Illinois and Wisconsin, and eventually Michigan, is expected to cost an estimated $9,875,000 and is one of the major projects in the State's post-war highway building program. Plans call for seventeen-and-one-half miles of dual-lane concrete road, separated by a parkway, which will provide room for additional lanes if they are needed in the future.

Eight railroad grade separations, twelve grade separations or streets and other highways, and five bridges over streams are included in the plans. The road will join the Illinois highway system at Lansing,, Illinois which is about 20 miles south of downtown Chicago, and its eastern terminus will be east of East Gary, where it will connect with U. S. 20 near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad grade separation.

According to Samuel C. Hadden, chairman of the Highway Commission, it is expected eventually to make an eastern connection leading to Detroit. This proposed four-state highway would provide route from Detroit to Milwaukee, northern terminus of the road in Wisconsin.

Conferences already have been held with Michigan authorities on a possible junction of the road with the Indiana section, but the final decision has not been reached on a definite connecting place.

President Roosevelt and Congress have indicated, the Governor said, an interest in the construction of a system of inter-regional highways, and such a system is contemplated in the post-war highway bill sponsored by state highway officials of the nation which is now pending in Congress. The bill provides for the designation of such a system of inter-regional highways, and it is hoped and believed that the Indiana-Illinois - Wisconsin-Michigan highway will be incorporated in that system. In that event, the road will become a part of the Federal-aid system of highways and will be eligible for inclusion in the program of post-war highway construction to be financed largely by the Federal government.

The present highway commission, which is composed in addition to Mr. Hadden, of Thomas B. McDonald, of LaPorte, Albert J. Wedeking, of Dale, and Jap Jones, of Fort Wayne, has had the matter of the new road under consideration for more than two years, and construction might have been started before this time had it not been for the war. Much of the work on the plans has been completed.

Governor Schricker's sponsorship and approval of the plan was especially gratifying to Commissioner McDonald, because the highway will lie in the district he represents on the Commission, and he has been active in the movement for such a road for more than 20 years.

The proposed route will carry the highway from the western terminus at Lansing, Ill., east along the north edge of Munster, Highland and Griffith, roughly paralleling the Little Calumet River on the North side. It goes east thorugh Gary on 27th Street, then diagonally through East Gary, south of Burns Ditch, and thence to the junction with U. S. 20 near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad grade separation.

Each strip of concrete pavement in the dual lanes will be 22 feet wide, and the right-of-way will be 300 feet wide. The width of the parkway between lanse will be 50 feet.

Described as an express highway, the road will intercept traffic from Roads 141, 41, 53, 55, 130, 51, 6, 20, 12 and 912. The new road will give traffic an express route thru the Calumet area and will help to eliminate congestion on existing routes in Gary, East Chicago, Whiting and Hammond. It is expected to separate the through traffic from local traffic, and the road will provide a route around Chicago to relieve bottle-necks in the present system.

Roads in the Calumet area carry some of the heaviest volumes of traffic in the United States. A traffic count made under normal conditions before Pearl Harbor revealed that 76,000 vehicles passed through one intersection in a 24-hour period on a week day. This was at the intersection of Roads 12, 20 and 41 in Hammond, and highway officials described the traffic count as average, and not abnormal. Federal highway officials have said that this is one of the heaviest traffic volumes at road intersections in the United States.

When Illinois completes its part of the highway it will be 72 miles long in that state.

CULTURE CLUB

Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Edna Jenkins, Dec. 1st. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Earl Hodges, with the reading of a poem. The lesson for the evening was given by Mrs. Ray Reasoner, all read from the Reader's Digest "So that Mothers May Live." The critic's report was then given by Mrs. Erby Messimer.

Mrs. Sam Armstrong had the special work for the evening and gave a very interesting talk on "How strange customs started," telling of the origin of Christmas customs, weddings, superstitions, etiquette, and the hand shake.

Roll call was taken, response being "I'll tell you how it began." Mrs. H. Moudy was a guest of the club. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The hostess served a tasty lunch of pear dessert, cake, coffee and candies. Meeting adjourned to again meet Dec. 15, at the home of Mrs. Clayton Baker.

WASTE FATS SHIPPED FROM COUNTY

Auburn,, 515lbs; Ashley, 240lbs; Waterloo, 115lbs; St. Joe and Spencerville, 80lb; Butler, 210lbs; Garrett, 150 pounds, a total of 1,320lbs.

Tin cans shipped from county, 800lbs.

The above report shows a decrease in the county of WASTE FATS and TIN CANS shipped from the county in the last month. Women in the home are wondering what they can do to help the war effort. The job of homemaking in war time requires more thought, more time and planning than it ever did.

There are certain direct contributions that the woman at home can make.

First, the homemaker can save all waste fats and turn them in for use in making glycerine for explosives. If she feels she needs some of this for her own use because of high points on fats, if she would put aside one tablespoon a day, a pound a month, enough glycerine can be made to turn out a billion pounds of smokeless powder. Save the greases left in the skillet, the fats from chops, the fat that rises to the top of stews, and all other fats and oils. Melt solid fats like meat trimmings by baking them sometime when the oven is on anyway. They should be strained in a can and taken to the meat market where your butcher will give you one brown meat point for each half pound of waste fats, and also 4 cents a pound will be paid.

A second important war job for the woman at home is salvaging TIN CANS. Tin cans are made of steel, and Tin both of which are saved and converted to important uses after the detinning process. One of the most important items made from the tin thus saved is the little "syrette," or the individual morphine hypodermic syringe. Every army and navy medical office carries a supply. They are a standard equipment or bombers, for jungle or aeronautic kits. A wounded fighter alone, can save his suffering by administering the pain killer contained in the syrette he carries. The Tin reclaimd from two tin cans is needed to make one of these tiny syringes which can relieve the agony of somebody's badly wounded son or brother. Wash them, remove labels, fold ends inside. Flatten by stepping on them firmly. Store in dry place until ready to turn them in. Don't let them rust.

Let we homemakers of DeKalb County put forth a greater effort to do our share in this program, and not waste one ounce of WASTE FATS or destroy one TIN CAN.

Lora E. Leighty, Chairman, St. Joe and Spencerville Women's Salvage Division.

Harry Schaefer, missionary of India will be the speaker Sunday evening. You will want to hear Brother Schaefer with his wide knowledge of India and India as affected by the world conflict.

On the doctor's advice, Erby Messimer, minister of the St. Joe and Coburn's Corners Churches of Christ, has asked for, and been granted the privilege of looking for a Charge in a warmer climate. Mr. Messimer has a reaction to cold air and cold water which causes a swelling. This hypersensativeness to cold is very peculiar and has medical science baffled. They have never been able to discover the cause and the only thing they have been able to advise as a permanent cure is to go to a warm climate. Mr. Messimer regrets very much to take this step but feels that it is for the best. Unless extreme cold weather sets in he and his family will remain here for some time yet.

Hello Fred:

You will no doubt be surprised to hear from me, after so long a time. I was inducted into the Navy Nov. 16, 1943. I am receiving my "boot" training here at Bainbridge, Md., with about 30,000 other potential sailors. Christmas here will be a new experience, to say the least. My address is: C. H. Thornton—A. S., Co. 4610—Bldg. 420-L, U. S. N. T. S., Bainbridge, Md.

Dear Dad:

Tomorrow will be my eighth month in the Army. It doesn't seem that long. I have spent almost half of that over here in England. I sure hope I don't have to spend that much longer over here. It hasn't snowed yet, but seems a lot colder than it does at home, around this time of year. I would give anything to be wading snow instead of this England mud. The mud is only about a half inch deep and then its dry, but that half inch is just like flour and water, it is the hardest stuff you ever saw when it dries, it's like cement.

You can tell the guys around there that are cussing the snow, they are lucky and don't know it. You can show this to the guys that are down in the dumps about the weather at home.

If the guys are wondering why you can't get their parts as soon as they think, you should tell them all that we are getting them over here and later on they can have theirs, but they will have to wait until we get this thing over, over here.

I want to thank all of you for thinking of me and the rest of the boys in service. I try to [illegible] all your letters but I [illegible] and will catch up too, so keep writing. So long, [illegible] and a Merry Christ- [illegible] a Happy New Year.

Harold Yeiser.

The following letter was received by Ned Keller on Dec. 7, 1943:

Aviation Cadet Examining Bd.
Baer Field, Ft. Wayne.
Ned Keller, St. Joe, Ind.

Dear Sir:

"You have been found mentally and physically qualified for Aviation Cadet Training and are to report to this office at 1 P. M. sharp on Dec for enlistment in the Army Air Force Enlisted Reserves.

"After you are enlisted and have been given the oath, you may then return to your civilian life and occupation until you are called to Active Duty, after your 18th birthday."

Ned was sworn in last Thursday and his birthday will be May 11, 1944. Ned is a Senior in the Concord Township school this year.

Mrs. Miles Oberlin was happily surprised Monday evening when she was called to the telephone in response to a call from her brother, Cpl. D. O. Wasson, who is located at Camp Pickett, Va. Cpl. Wasson is feeling fine, but was anxious to hear about his mother and home folk.

Henry Hart returned home Thursday from the army, having been given a disability discharge. He is pleased to be returned to civilian life, but will miss his buddies he made in camp life. He was discharged from Texas camp.

Frank H. Draggoo Missing

First Lt. Frank H. Draggoo, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Draggoo, 1030 Columbia Ave., Ft. Wayne, has been reported missing in the European area while on a bombing mission November 30.

Lieutenant Draggoo, a pilot of a Flying Fortress, left for overseas on Nov. 1.

He had attended schools in Michigan and was employed by the Baade Flower Shop before entering the service in April, 1941. He first was stationed with the Medical Division at Camp Shelby, Miss., and then transferred to the Air Corps in July, 1942.

He received his commission and his pilot's wings at the twin-engine advanced pilot training school at Freeman (Ind.) May 28, 1943.

The Draggoo's were former residents of Concord.

The LIONS CLUB

Ralph Sechler, Reporting

The Lions Club held their regular meeting at the school house in St. Joe, the domestic science class serving the supper. Twenty-two regular members and two guests were present. Reports were made by the various committees.

The speaker for the evening was Rev. Schaefer, a missionary for the Church of Christ in India, who is back in the United States on leave. He told why the Indians, 360,000,000 people, could not be self governing, a lack of Christian education and too much fighting and quarreling between Hindu and Mohamedan. The speaker stated that there are more college educated men in Indiana (women are not considered in education) than there are in England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, yet India is the most illiterate and backward country in the world.

The highly educated use their education to further suppress the lower classes. The Indians are extremely fatalistic and are therefore hard to help or christianize. The Indian, because he worships the cow, will starve to death, and thousands are every month, when he cannot get his grain even though he has cattle all around him. The speaker also brought out that the Indians mix their religion, family, and business all in one box whereas we in America keep ours each in a separate box.

LETTER FROM OVERSEAS

November 11, 1943.
Southwest Pacific.

Dear Mrs. Stewart:

Tonight is the night I usually write to my father and two sisters but as I haven't heard from any of the three this week I decided to postpone for a couple of days the three letters in hopes I hear from them as it is easier to answer a letter than it is to start from "scrach." I only hear from my brother about every month or six weeks so it isn't much of a problem to keep up with him.

Ann mentioned in a letter a couple of weeks ago that you would like a letter from me in regard to the things I have seen and am doing. I wrote her that I would be glad to write you but that you must answer back for I imagine a letter from you to me would mean more to me than mine would mean to you. A letter to any of the soldiers in this particular place certainly means a lot. Ann said you had read my letters concerning the trip over and my first one from Australia. (I assure you that all my letters are not that long.)

I was in Australia for one month and must say that I rather enjoyed it as the Aussies are probably more like Americans than any other country, yet are often all very different. They talk quite fast and sound their vowels different than we, especially their A's and E's. They are really hard to understand until one becomes accustomed to their way of talking. However they were good to the American soldiers but expected to be liberally repaid in cigarettes and money. For that I do not blame them for the American soldier had a new kind of money which meant absolutely nothing to him and he was only looking for a place to spend it. The Australian money means nothing to us for it is not our money. I have 35 pounds now lying on a shelf up in my tent that I haven't looked at since I put it there. It is about $110 in American money (each pound being worth $3.28.) If I had had that much at any army camp in the states I would have sat up at night to watch it. The Australians also have ½ pound notes, Florins (32c) shillings (16c) six pences (.08) three pences (.04c,) pence (1½c) and half-pences. It was rather difficult to learn the system at first but a G. T. catches on quick. It was amusing to hear the G. T's gamble with their money at first: "shoot a big one," "match this stack," "play a little one," "shoot a bitty one." We called the 1 pound notes Lums, the half pound notes Abners.

We were stationed near Australia and were allowed to go to town about every third night if we wanted to. I went about twice a week, for the steak and ice cream I could buy. Food was quite reasonable as a meal consisting of steak, two eggs, salad, toast, butter french fries, and tea cost about 50 cents. I confess that several times I ordered another when they brought the first as it had been a long time since I had tasted steak and thought it would be a long time after I left. (I was right.) I did not make any feminine acquaintances in Australia although may of the boys did. I didn't think I would be there long enough as I was slated to leave any day after the first week. However I did go to a couple of dinners and shows with my friend Billy Cox and his girl friend. She was an awfully nice girl and explained a lot of the Australian customs and mannerisms to Billy and I.

In Australia all the houses are built on posts or pilings and are several feet off the ground. In fact, they just run their cars under the house for a garage. The reason they are built this way is because of the white ants or termites which soon destroy a house built on

TOTAL OF $256,508 SENT TO TAX UNITS

Disbursement of this Fall's tax collections involved $256,508, the semi-annual settlement sheet prepared in the office of County Auditor Burley Ensley shows.

This made a total for 1943 of $563,718, which is $23,000 less than a year ago, due to lower tax rates. Of the decrease, more than $17,000 is accounted for by the poor relief fund. In 1942 poor relief taxation amounted to $28,850, but it was only $11,589 this year.

Mr. Ensley remitted $21,824 to the state from this Fall's collections. He credited $28,556.45 to the county's general fund, $18,363.20 to the welfare fund and $970.61 to the township road bond and interest fund.

The distribution to the other units of the county follow:

SPENCER TOWNSHIP CLUB

The December meeting of the Spencer Township Home Economic Club was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Baker, who was assisted by Mrs. Zona Abel. Members assembled at the noon hour, and a bounteous carry-in dinner was served.

The afternoon session was opened with a variation composition of "O Holy Night" by Mrs. Flossie Rediger, who also gave the history of the "First Noel." The president, Mrs. Ruth Baker presided. She reported that the club had held nine regular meetings and 3 special meetings.

Twenty-one members answered to roll call with the response "A wartime Christmas Menu." Mrs. Marian accepted an invitation of membership. There were two guests and five children present. The secretary's report was read and approved. The club voted to contribute to the County Fund for Tuberculosis. A free will offering was taken for Christmas Gifts to shut-ins.

The club decided to hold an auction at the January meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Lois Fisher, Mrs. Jennie Walter assisting.

A contest conducted by the Mesdames Winifred Hart and Grace Laub was won by Mrs. Edna Goldsmith. The ladies also arranged for group singing of Christmas songs. An exchange of Christmas gifts followed. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Dora Wilder.

APPRECIATION

Thank you for the many cards, letters, and other remembrances, to make such a happy birthday, was surely appreciated; also for making the past year much shorter by the many kind acts from all my friends. Also thank Pastor Erby Messimer for the going in and out among us, which gives a deeper meaning of the true spirit of the brotherhood of man.—Mrs. Mattie Hart.

HOME ECONOMIC CLUB

The Concord Township Home Economics Club held their Christmas meeting on Friday, Dec. 10th. This was an all day meeting with pot luck dinner. The meeting in the afternoon was opened by singing "Silent Night," followed by the song, "The First Noel." Twenty-six members responded to roll call, by pantomiming the Christmas gift they wanted. This was really difficult, but was amusing as everyone tried to guess the gift.

A playlet, "Bringing Home Christmas" was given by Cora Curie, Nevada Wyatt, Iva Yeiser, Laura Washler, and Kathryn Haller. This was enjoyed by all. A poem was read by Myrtle Pugsley entitled, "The American Way of Life." Cora Curie conducted an interesting contest, after which we had our Christmas exchange.

DON'T WORRY

Someone in St. Joe suggests that the back home is going to be mighty dull for the boys who have been seeing many parts of the world at war. In fact, letters from fighters mention how much free travel they receive and how they are seeing sights that they would never get to view any other way. Some have got so far as to regret the absence of war and the sightseeing. But as far as our boys not welcoming their home-coming, not appreciating small town life, and cool drug stores, you might study letters of boys who dominitely state why they fight as they do. Home is the victory, the end of war, the symbol of peace. To return to family, friends, comforts and advantages, outweighs the touring and sightseeing. Those who have been on all of foreign sights and lands.

NEED OUR HELP

Newspapers have undoubtedly done a magnificent job of backing and sponsoring drives, selling war bonds, aided each war campaign, given much free space for projects enacted for the general welfare. Now the newspapers, who need newsprint so badly, have such a paper shortage that they can't fully put across their call to the public. Even though there has been a decided reduction in newsprint already, there is soon to be a further one which will be felt by the daily newspapers. Publishers have cut and condensed and are pretty anxious now for outside help in order to keep going. Right now we are collecting only 50 per cent of the waste paper while the machinery that works to salvage it is working at only 67 per cent of its full capacity. Only two million tons of waste paper are collected and sold for paper board where normally there was six million. Consider alone the amount of card board used for shipping purposes by the army and you have one of the principle reasons for a shortage. Let us here in St. Joe and Spencerville come to the aid of the nation's press. Save your scrap paper of all kinds and give to the Lions Club member in your neighborhood.

UNTIL LATER

Many an evergreen tree fashioned along Christmas lines will be untouched this year as thousands of men work and fight in other lines than hauling and cutting Christmas trees for the market. Transportation is needed for necessities, so the attention to decoration and the spirit of the tree-minded will have to choose another effect. Of course there are trees to be had, many folks getting their own, but still families who have always had a Christmas tree won't have one crowding their living room this year. As much as we regret losing a part of our holiday symbols, this is not a usual year. We are happy to keep the season's spirit alive, our Yule prayers echoing, even without the tinsel and colored balls to encourage it. We have gone to war and we will cheerfully await our Christmas trees until that time when all our youths can join us in decorating them.

There are those in St. Joe who seem to believe that the shortage is about to end. We've even spoken of how many new tires are available and the scare is over. That way of it but rubber manufacturers of tires and rubber goods, government officials and others, want you to know that there is a tire shortage. With the synthetic rubber plants working day and night, with such huge sums of production, you can wonder why worry about tires? The shortage is NOT in rubber, for the synthetic process has wonderfully solved this problem, but it is because this rubber is not coming to the civilians in tires, which is the reason for us to continue to take care of those we now have, to see they will continue to serve us for a long time. There is such a large tonnage of rubber being turned out that you can't understand why no tires. Millions of tires are already worn out, inventories of prewar tires are all gone now, the needs of the army have accelerated. Don't forget that rubber goes into gas masks, life rafts, besides tires for airplanes, tanks, jeeps, supply trucks. There is a man-power shortage and rubber companies haven't escaped from it. Consider that the nation's bus tires, its transportation truck tires, are wearing out and that these will be taken care of before we get ours. We should not feel confident the tire shortage is at an end. We must abide by the suggestions to make ours last longer as they become older and more threadbare.

IT CAN WAIT

Periodically come the editorials concerning the soap operas and many, nonsensical serials that clutter many hours of daytime radio entertainment. We are not going into the subject as to whether they are wholesome, interesting to the majority, sell their products and are worth the money. That can be answered best by polls conducted to ascertain what the listening audience chooses. They know best what they want and let them voice their sentiments. If the majority support programs distasteful to you, there is still the simple turn of the switch that puts a stop to the dialogue. Anyone can deftly turn the dial to another station without embarrassing the entertainers!

We write of the Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission urging Congress to enact laws to put a stop to the sickeningly sweet melodramas that clutter the daylight radio air waves, to call a halt to soap operas. This sort of law may put a stop to that type of entertainment, might effect a change of policy that would improve the radio tastes of many, but what about those evening programs where comedians aren't comical, where intelligent, high-minded souls become stooges as guest artists, where music becomes blatant blasts, and spoken lines carry implications that approach the censorship line? Surely Congress hasn't time right now to work itself into a debate over the merits and delinquencies of radio programs. Let Congress spend itself with more weighty problems of today and let us do our own dialing.

With the price of them, eggs have stepped up from breakfast to become dinner food.

The party was sponsored by the teachers of the elementary grades, but credit for the success is probably due to the efforts of Mrs. Guilford and the unique holiday decorations made by Mr. Guilford.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Mr. Forrest Gerig, of Auburn. Mr. Gerig showed four reels of pictures on animal life in Alaska and Africa. He emphasized travel as a meeans of rounding-out the education of an individual, especially that of the teachers.

The Land That Has Everything

Before Germany began to defeat her neighbor, Adolf Hitler made a speech. He shouted "If I had the Ukraine with its tremendous wheat fields, Germany would swim in plenty."

The Ukraine is a region of fertile black soil and is about the size of New England and the Middle Atlantic States. It just lies north of the Black Sea. The name "Ukraine" means "borderland."

Germany took part of Ukraine but the people didn't cooperate with her. Now that the Russians have the land back it will probably take them a long time to get the mines and factories back into production. However, it will be a much longer time before the Ukraine's riches work for Germany.

FROM OVERSEAS LETTER

the ground. I have seen ant hills as large as houses in the states. Their plant and animal life is somewhat different than ours also. The trees are mostly of the eucalyptus family and have a third spongy bark and are also very hard to chop and split (I know for I was on the firewood detail for two days.

Their chief animals of interest are the Kangaroo, and Wallaby (a pocket size kangaroo about the size of a dog.) A wallaby came through the area one morning and one of the boys grabbed it. After a tussle the wallaby got away. When we asked him why he didn't hang on to it he said from the minute he grabbed it he was trying to turn loose of it before it kicked him to death.

In Australia we had six men to a tent on cots and without floors. Needless to say we were dirty all the time as the wind was usually blowing the fine sand and dirt onto us and into our clothes. Sanitary facilities were practically non-existant and we had to do the best we could. Most of the time the area looked like a hobo camp with most of the boys washing clothes and trying to clean up. I had a sad experience with my washing. As the water was hard and the soap poor I decided I would have to boil my clothes. Unfortunately I have had very little experience at washing so I put my fatigues, khakis, white shorts, sox and handkerchiefs in the bucket and boiled them over a camp fire. I suppose they were cleaner but everything came out the same dirty green color as my fatigues.

The food was not too bad but it is rather difficult to like Australian food after being used to American food. However I gained back some weight I had lost and left Australia weighing about 170 pounds, which was more than I had weighed since coming into the army. (It could be too that I gained because I made a point to work very little while I was there.)

Being a woman, I suppose you would like to know about the stores in Australia. Their stores do not carry as many items as ours. A chemist's shop (drug store) carries only drugs and none of the great variety you find in a place like Walgreen's. was the third largest city in Australia but had only two really up to date stores; Macey's (a branch of the New York Macey's) and Grant's. Neither of these stores would compare with Wolf & Dessauer in Fort Wayne.

Oh! yes, their cars have the steering wheel on the right hand side and everyone drives on the left hand side of the road. They also walk on the let hand side of the street.

All in all the Australians are a nice and friendly people and treated the American soldiers with more courtesy and respect than a lot of our boys deserved. I have seen some soldiers act in such a manner that if they were to be considered a typical American, then I was ashamed that they wore the same uniform as I. There seems to be something about the combination of being a soldier and in a foreign land that makes a lot of men very low indeed.

Mrs. Stewart, I will attempt to tell you about things as they are so please do not think that I am inclined to complain or to judge my conduct now because I find conditions much different than ever before and have had to make some adjustments in order to live peacably among other soldiers.

One-half of the taxes assessed for state, county, and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1944.

The second installment is due on or before the first Monday in November, 1944. BOTH INSTALLMENTS ARE OF LIKE AMOUNT.

In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and the separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipt. Real estate transferred in 1943 will appear in new name in Treasurer's office in 1945.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1943. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after the FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1944 AND FIRST MONDAY IN NOVEMBER, 1944.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1944.

WILL YOU

Support Civilian Defense Activities In DeKalb County

The Office of Civilian Defense in DeKalb County was established in February, 1942, by law and the County Director appointed by the Governor of the State. It has been effectively in operation ever since.

The function of such an organization while our country is at war is to provide protection to its people in case of air raids, floods or any catastrophe in which immediate assistance is needed.

Its necessary war efforts in morale, salvage and other war needs are carried out on instructions from the State Office of Civilian Defense.

The effective force of DeKalb County Civilian Defense now numbers approximately 2.500 volunteer workers who have given their time in training and actual work, unselfishly and patriotically as good citizens. This force has backed up our boys who are fighting our battles for us on foreign soil and it is satisfying knowledge to them that their loved ones at home have protection and that we are doing our share in Salvage so that they may have the necessary fighting material.

To carry on the instructions and many details efficiently and effectively of such a large force requires a central office in each county as established by law, and here it is known as the DeKalb County Civilian Defense Council. Funds are necessary and appropriations have been made by the county in the past. The only paid employee is the Executive Secretary. All others are volunteers, giving their time and furnishing their cars, and paying all their own expenses as their donation. They consider it their duty to serve on the "Home Front."

The County Office of Civilian Defense requested an appropriation of $3,000 for the fiscal year of 1944, which is only enough to do a creditable job and carry out its instructions, but the county council and county commissioners cut the budget to $1,250 without a hearing.

At the present time, until January 1, 1944, our budget is $204.28 per month, so a cut of one-half, effective January 1, 1944, leaves the organization without funds to function properly or an explanation why they do not wish to support this war measure adequately or indicate any appreciation to the hundreds of loyal, unselfish workers in Civilian Defense that their efforts were not in vain.

You as a loyal citizen, believe in Civilian Defense and your duty to back up our boys fighting for us. Write or contact the county council and county commissioners and request them to support this organization with funds sufficient to continue effectively and be able to maintain the standard that DeKalb County is entitled to and has in this state of Indiana. Their names are as follows:

COUNTY COUNCIL

Clyde H. Husselman, President..Waterloo
Jesse B. Garnes, Councilman.....Auburn
Jesse B. McClellan, Councilman..Butler
Charles Mutzfeld, Councilman.....Butler
Spencer Ringler, Councilman,.....Ashley
James Rugman, Councilman.....Auburn
Roscoe Walter, Councilman..Spencerville

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Lloyd W. Yeiser, President.....Butler
Frank Hilkey, Commissioner.....Auburn
Oscar Fulk, Commissioner.....Waterloo

When our boys and girls return after the war and inquire, "What did DeKalb County do to help win the war?"—what shall our answer be if we do not do our full duty?

You, as citizens of DeKalb County, must make this decision.

D. E. MESSENGER, Director,
DeKalb Co. Civilian Defense Council.

LETTER FROM OVERSEAS

After a month in Australia I took a 9 hour ride in a plane with some of the boys I came over with. The ride was comfortable and we came the distance it took others, who came by train and boat, ten days. When we landed I was in entirely different surroundings than I had been that morning. Really enjoyed the plane trip for I saw a lot of Australia, its sea coast, the barrier reefs and a lot of water. Really the ocean is beautiful for when it is blue it is the bluest blue one can imagine, then it has its own peculiar green shades, a slate grey when a storm approaches and then the white foam, great grey waves and black water when the storm is really there. The waves are higher than a house and will toss a large ship up on a forty foot wave like it was a stick of wood in a flooded stream at home. Then if you are on a boat you want to tie everything you own to the bunk or you will never find it again. These waves will take a boat that will hold fifty men and crush it like one would drop an egg. After one has been on the ocean and in this place where I am now he has a lot more respect for the weather and what it can do to a person.

When I arrived here I was at last assigned to a squadron (I had been Air Corps Unattached until then.) It is a repair and maintenance squadron and rated one of the best in the Southwest Pacific. The equipment this squadron services has participated and is now taking part in the heaviest fighting in the theatre. The men here are working hard every day and quite often at night. They are but have done and are doing their work well. Some of them crack up and go to pieces under the strain but most of them get along all right. I have seen more grey hair here on men under 23 than you see on men under 50 at home. Of course, they never get a chance to play or relax for there are no towns here and all whites have been moved to the mainland. It is not easy on them for most of them are boys who never knew or dreamed that things could be like this for them. They live 6 men to a tent, a tent and cot is furnished and the rest is up to you. It is amazing and yet pathetic to see what length these men will go to to try to make some sort of a home.

They will beg, borrow or steal lumber and material for the floor. Screen wire is at a premium and is kept under key or guard. All shipping boxes and material are highly prized items and are used im-

Jingle Bells
(by Josiah B. Gome)

This is Latin translation for Jingle Bells.

Nives, glacies, nox, puertia!
Risus, decet, nunc decent carmina!
Laetos invat nox ire per agros
Traha fert velociter, cachinermus nos!

Chorus:

Tinniat, tinniat, tintinnabulum
Labimur in glacie post mulum curtum!
Me nuper miserum temptavit lunae lux!
Nox assidebat tum puella facti dux!
Vecti subito in nivis cumlos
Cambullus est perterritus et unc eversi nos!

India—Land of Contrasts

The daily income in India is about two cents a day, but still India has the richest men in the world. These rich men are native princes who live in "fairytale places and deck their sacred elephants with bushels of pearls and rubies."

India is two-thirds as large as the United States and has many races. Among them, 222 different langugaes are spoken. There are eight main languages and each has its own alphabet. Since most of the educated Indians learn English, they are better able to understand the outside world.

What to do for AAA-Choo!

If you belong to a British Navy you would know what to do for a cold in the head.

You would take an anticold drug called patulin. The English sailors last year used it on a large scale. It cured 57% of colds in 48 hours. Patulin is a substance made, like penicillin, from mold.

Prof. W. E. Gye, Director of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, happened to have a cold when he received some patulin. It was to be used in cancer research. He took the medicine just to see if it would help his cold and the next day he was surprised to find he was feeling quite well again. It'll be a happy day when the doctors agree that patulin is a sure cure for colds.

Until that time we suggest:

1. Eat a well balanced, nourishing diet.
2. Get plenty of sleep.
3. Avoid sudden temperature changes.
4. Keep your fingers, your pencil and other germ-laden objects out of your mouth.
5. Keep away from people who have colds.
6. Stay out of crowds.

If you do catch a cold, go to bed and stay there for at least two days. The community, as well as your system, will be grateful.

—Marjorie Haynes.

MAIL INCOME BLANKS AFTER JANUARY FIRST

The treasury department, which likes its customers to be prepared for what's coming, came out with the news that the new federal income tax forms will go into the mails shortly after January 1.

These forms, of course, have to do only with 1943 income and do not have to wait for the further complications of the new tax bill now taking shape.

But most of the 50,000,000 taxpayers affected must wait until they have been furnished with a statement, not later than Jan. 31, showing their 1943 earnings and the amount of tax already withheld from their pay checks before they can begin computing their tax position in earnest.

HEAVY FIRE LOSS WEDNESDAY MORNING

Harry Mann fire Wednesday morning about 2, cost him his large barn, equipment, and live stock, amounting to several thousand dollars loss. Donald Hart and Clayton Baker, on way home from Ft. Wayne, discovered the fire and when they arrived the Mann family were still in bed, and the barn was completely enveloped in flames. Several cattle, sows with pigs, and all machinery were burned. The cause of the fire is not known.

INTERSECTION ACCIDENT TAKES LIFE OF BOY

A verdict of accidental death will be returned by Coroner Kenneth Kaylor, of Auburn, as a result of his investigation into the automobile crash which resulted in the death of Roy Edwards, 13, son of Mrs. Julia Edwards, of Auburn, Saturday night.

Roy was born on Aug. 15, 1930, and was a student in the nfth grade room of the Harrison Building. The accident took place at an intersection 3 miles north-west of Concord at the George Corners, on the St. Joe Road at 3:30 Saturday afternoon and the lad expired Saturday night at 10:10 in the Sanders Hospital in Auburn. His skull was fractured and his right shoulder mangled when he was thrown out and pinned beneath the overturned car.

Roy was in a machine driven by Frank Monroe, of St. Joe. Others in the car were Mrs. Monroe, who was a sister of the Edwards boy, and Mr. and Mrs. Monroe's three year old son, Stephen Lee. Mrs. Monroe suffered a minor cut on her head, but no one else was hurt. The Monroes were on their way to Auburn, to return Ray home after spending the day in the Monroe home north of town.

Monroe was driving west when has car was struck by an automobile driven by Floyd Maurer, who was driving south. The Monroe car was upset and slid down the highway 5 feet before it rolled over into the field south-west of the intersection.

The Monroe car was rendered worthless, while damages to Maurer's car were estimated by Sheriff Paul F. Miller at $150. A trailer attached to Maurer's car contained a hog, which disappeared in the confusion.

Coroner Kaylor reports that at the inquest into the boy's death Sunday that Mr. Maurer told him he should have stopped at the intersection but that he did not see the Monroe car approaching.

The Dilgard ambulance was called to take the Edwards boy and Mrs. Monroe to the hospital. The latter was released after treatment at the hospital.

Surviving the Edwards boy besides Mrs. Monroe and his mother are five other sisters, Mrs. Pauline Selking and Berniece Edwards, of Ft. Wayne, and Donna, Maybelle, and Carolann, at home.

The body was taken to the Kaylor Funeral Home in Auburn, where services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Allen K. Trout, of St. Mark's Lutheran Church officiated and burial made in Woodlawn Cemetery.

DR. A. R. WYATT DIES SUNDAY

Funeral rites for Dr. Andrew Robe Wyatt, 88, a retired physician, who died at 10:45 A. M. Sunday, at his home in the Fairfield Manor, Ft. Wayne, were held at 2 P. M. Tuesday at the Getz & Cahill Funeral Home, the Rev. Carl G. Adams officiating.

Death was caused by pneumonia, developed Friday after a heart attack two weeks ago.

A native of Spencerville, he went to Ft. Wayne in 1921 and practiced five years before retiring. Dr. Wyatt was one of the first two Ft. Wayne physicians appointed honorary members of the Indiana Medical Association.

He was graduated from Auburn High School and the Physio-Medical College of Indianapolis, beginning practice at Spencerville in 1885 and later going to Rome City. Before going to Ft. Wayne, he practiced medicine 32 years at Lagrange where he took up his residence in 1890.

Dr. Wyatt was a life member of the Ft. Wayne Medical Association and was a member of Simpson Methodist Church and the Kendallville Knights Templar Commandery.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harrison Kendall, of Ft. Wayne, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Lawrence Mueller, now at New Orleans. His wife, Mrs. Ella Snyder Wyatt, died three years ago.

Mrs. Addie Patterson had been living in the Wyatt home since the death of Mrs. Wyatt.

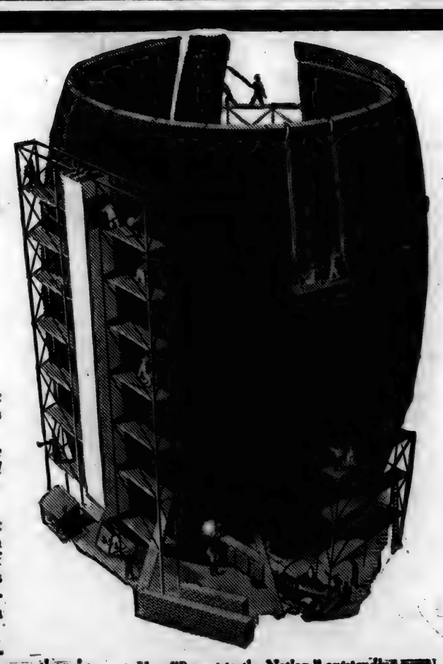
We built the barrel BIG



Early in the war, the electric service industry received this challenge:

You will be asked to scrape the bottom of the barrel to haul out more kilowatts for war production!

But fortunately, we had built the barrel big! . . . Big enough to meet all the power needs of factories, mines and shipyards — and still supply your home — without rationing — at bargain prices!

Today, America is producing five times more electric power than in the last war — more than all the Axis countries combined!

Was it luck that we built the barrel BIG? No, the electric companies under business management — which supply over 80% of the nation's power — look and plan ahead. That habit has helped us give you friendly, dependable service — and helped us meet the challenge of America-at-war!

Hitler remarked some time ago that "We have the courage to destroy." It looks as though the Allies aren't lacking in the stuff, either.

Then there was the small boy who wrote out a large order for Santa Claus. And in the postscript he wrote: "In case you can't handle this deal, let me know and I'll get in touch with Henry Kaiser."

We may not have peace by Christmas, but we aren't putting toys "Made in Germany" under our trees, just the same.

They can talk all they want about crippling labor but we haven't noticed them on crutches.

If you think man is such a hot specimen, look at what children can do with him out of snow.

Hitler has gone out after land, as though he was a real estate agent in an oil boom.

Time goes rapidly, for it isn't long between the coal-pile and the ice-house.

This war proves that just threats and bluster won't break the morale of a people.

It looks to us that those girls serving overseas are going to make wives who can "take it."

THE TIRE SHORTAGE

There are those in St. Joe who seem to believe that the tire shortage is about to end, have even spoken of how many new tires are available and insist the scare is over. Then why is it that rubber authorities, manufacturers of tires and rubber goods, government officials tire dealers, warn you now that there is a tire shortage? With the synthetic rubber plants working day and night, with such huge scale of production, you still wonder why worry about tires? The shortage is NOT in rubber, for the synthetic process has wonderfully solved this problem, but it is because this rubber is not coming to the civilians in tires, which is the reason for us to continue to take care of those we now have, to see they will continue to serve us for a long time. There is such a large tonnage of rubber being turned out that you can't understand why no tires. Millions of tires are already worn out, inventories of prewar tires are all gone now, the needs of the army have accelerated. Don't forget that rubber goes into gas masks, life rafts, besides tires for airplanes, tanks, jeeps, supply trucks. There is a man-power shortage and rubber companies haven't escaped from it. Consider that the nation's bus tires, its transportation truck tires, are wearing out and that these will be taken care of before we get ours. We should not feel confident the tire shortage is at an end. We must abide by the suggestions to make ours last longer as they become older and more threadbare.

NEED OUR HELP

Newspapers have undoubtedly done a magnificent job of backing and sponsoring drives, selling war bonds, aided each war campaign, given much free space for projects enacted for the general welfare. Now the newspapers, who need newsprint so badly, have such a paper shortage that they can't fully put across their call to the public. Even though there has been a decided reduction in newsprint already, there is soon to be a further one which will be felt by the daily newspapers. Publishers have cut and condensed and are pretty anxious now for outside help in order to keep going. Right now we are collecting only 35 per cent of the waste paper while the machinery that works to salvage it is working at only 51 per cent of its full capacity. Only two million tons of waste paper are collected and sold for paper board where normally there was six million. Consider alone the amount of card board used for shipping purposes by the army and you have one of the principle reasons for a shortage. Let us here in St. Joe and Spencerville come to the aid of the nation's press. Save your scrap paper of all kinds and give to the Lions Club member in your neighborhood.

PEACE, WE PRAY

This, the commemoration of a birth, of hymns of peace, songs of coarse straw, wise men and gifts, finds us at war. The Christmas spirit is grim when stripped of its glory, overcome by fear, in a world harvesting past year's crops of misunderstanding, disunity, selfishness, greed. What message of Christmas in this 1943 can we offer you in St. Joe and Spencerville, homes empty of loved sons, hearts anxious for absent husbands, children missing soldier-fathers? Can one conscientiously repeat the angels' prayer of "Peace on earth, good will toward men?"

Twenty centuries ago, midst poverty and where no man was famed for an insurmountable love, a glow marked a birth and a message marked a world's destiny. Through the long years the story of the Holy Child, Mary, a manger, has survived to keep man's faith renewed in the purpose of the coming of the Bethlehem child. Certainly, had man through these centuries, followed sincerely and courageously the angels' hymn of salvation that peace be with you, that love hold you in fellowship, then would this Christmas be celebrated in a different way. Laws have been made to govern peoples, to protect their property, their liberty, their general welfare. To break laws entails punishment from higher courts. But what of that spoken law of twenty centuries ago that did not bind man with seals and signatures but which was the code for all liberty, property spiritual and physical, a law protecting us, reassuring us, providing comfort in goodness and faithfulness, a law from the heavens for the wise men to hear. How unwise we have become, how heedless of our welfare. This is the comfort for our souls today—that we are not too old to learn, too far gone to revive, too spiritless to fight!

This is the time for prayers for our warriors and the world. It is the season for love and beneficience. There is work to be done as there is a future at stake in such a Christmas-blessed country. A peace on earth is not impossible if we believe in that Bethlehem baby. There must be hope in the fight if it is worth the battle. There is a harshness that is a far cry from a cradle.

This is Christmas in all its lovliness and we must believe in its promise, trust in its command that only through good will among mankind can we ever have peace on the earth. We are today's wise men, if we listen and consider, stand for principles from a Source who, "shall He be great unto the ends of the earth."

IN APPRECIATION

Taking for granted that our gifts and cards will be delivered before the great day, we jauntily proceeed to spend last minutes in posting cards, wrapping packages for the mail. We depend upon the post office department to manage this delivery and transportation the best way they can, usually offering them not even the courtesy of doing our shopping early to off-set the congestion. This whole year has been one to try the efforts of the postoffice department, for with the soldiers' mail as an added burden, it has been a tremendous task for those who work in the departments. We can find time in St. Joe and Spencerville to give the deserved appreciation to these workers and we might walk up to the window tomorrow and say "thank you."

OVER-CONFIDENCE

Here in St. Joe and elsewhere, many people are happy in believing that Germany is collapsing within. There have been reports by certain commentators that have led one to take hope in the prediction that the people inside Germany are becoming so terrified over the bombings, suffered so long under Hitler, that they are ready to seek peace and a probable unconditional surrender. Such type of wishful thinking is not good for national morale for it is not a completely true picture of the conditions. Analysts insist that the people are so controlled by the Nazi party, the military organs, they are practically helpless in overcoming them. Bear in mind that not one Allied soldier occupies one foot of Germany and consider that if they are crumbling within they are holding out mighty well. Wishful thinking perhaps on our part, we must not relax for one minute our effort to make it come true. Over-confidence has jeopardized many a position in history's past wars. We must not make this mistake.

YOUR CHRISTMAS STORY:

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

CHRISTMAS PARTY For ALL CHILDREN IN DEKALB COUNTY, SPONSORED BY AMERICAN LEGION, DEKALB POST NO. 97, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24

Court Theatre, Auburn, Indiana, Doors Open 1:30 P. Party to Begin at 2 P. M.

ADMISSION: Scrap Iron 5 pounds or over per child.

Instead of giving treats this year to the children, the children will give to UNCLE SAM a piece of Scrap Metal! We have a hard fight ahead of us and a lot of hard work to do here at home to win the war. We must gird ourselves for a long, hard pull—we must be scrap metal conscious every hour of every day until the war is won. Let's continue to build our scrap banks higher and higher—they will be needed even after the war is over! The greatest gift we can give is the gift that will bring our boys in Service back home soon—alive. A ton of scrap metal is the "down payment" on a share of Victory!

If your metal scrap exceeds five pounds and is too heavy for you to handle, please ask the cooperation of neighborhood children to assist you in its removal.

COME, Build the Metal Scrap Pile High!

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club held their Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Don Burley.

The songs, "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day," "Silent Night," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," and "Jingle Bells," were sung by everyone. Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser read the poem entitled "The Christmas Setting." Mrs. Clarence Woodcox read "Tradition Time" and "If This Were the Last Christmas." Mrs. Maurice Kline told the story, "Christmas Leave." The group sang "The First Noel." Mrs. Don Burley conducted a quiz.

"The Night Before Christmas" was pantomimed by the committee composed of Mrs. O. K. Shull, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser, Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, Mrs. Don Burley and Mrs. Maurice Kline.

After the exchange of gifts the committee served chicken sandwiches, cranberry salad, vanilla ice, and cookies.

Mrs. Hollis Dilley and Mrs. C. A. Woodcox were guests.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred B. Leighty, Dec. 29.

DON'T WORRY

Someone in St. Joe suggests that life back home is going to be mighty dull for the boys who have been seeing many parts of the world at war. In fact, letters from fighters mention how much free travel they recive and how they are seeing sights that they would never get to view any other way. Some lads go so far as to figure the hazards of war are worth the sight-seeing! But as far as our boys not welcoming that home-coming, not appreciating small town Main Streets and corner drug stores, you might study letters of boys who definitely state why they fight as they do. Home is the victory, the end of war, the symbol of peace. To return to family, friends, comforts and advantages, out-weighs the touring and sight-seeing. These lads will have their fill of strange sights and faces.

ST. JOE MAN WRITES POPULAR NEWS COMMENTATOR

Frequently this section of Indiana is referred to on the Earl Godwin news broadcast, out of Washington, D. C. because of the information given by John R. Leighty, who has acquired a real friendly recognition by the noted analyst.

We are reproducing the latest communication sent Mr. Godwin:

Dear Mr. Godwin:

"When I was a boy I had a pet cat that put a lot of energy into chasing its tail around. My mother has told me that about the first words I spoke were "silly cat." Of course it did not take much intelligence to make that remark. Mother had to dispose of the cat because it insisted in making the housekeeping more burdensome than it should have been.

"When something made me remember this circumstance the other day the unexplainable association of ideas brought to my mind a transaction in wheat that has taken place here lately. It might be captioned:—

War Time Transportation Wastage

"In the first nine months of this year there has been shipped out from this village 36 cars of wheat and four shipped in by the Commodities Credit Corp. This leaves a net outward movement of thirty-two cars of wheat.

"I asked at one of the mills that grind stock food if the wheat that shipped in was of any different feed value than what was shipped out. The answer was 'no we make the same mixture with it.'

"Now it takes about five days at least to place a car for loading, transport and unloading. Five days each on the cars in is a total of twenty 'car days' and twenty more for the four offsetting cars out, forty car days, and no more or less wheat here for stock food.

"In 1932 the railroads averaged thirty-two loaded freight cars per train, so these forty 'car days' would equal 1.25 freight trains moving 3/5 of a day, or about one train for three-fourts of a day and the cars idle for the balance of the day.

"From there on only an economist can figure it out but it would be interesting to know who pays the freight."

Sincerely yours,
Jno. R. Leighty.

mediately. Each tent takes a personal pride in its own fox hole and the area around all tents is kept free of grass, etc., and is swept often. The P-X gets a few supplies about twice a week and men stand in line for a can of spaghetti, tomato soup or tomato juice.

Ice is practically unknown and if one had a canteen full of ice water I'll bet he could get a pound for it. I haven't had a bottle of coke since San Francisco.

The boys make what furniture they have and some are quite ingenious at making various pieces. The area has some running water for washing and bathing but quite often (as often as not) the water is turned off for a vast number of men must be supplied with an inadequate water supply. So more often than not each tent has a can or bucket of water with which to wash when no water is available in the area.

We can have laundry done once a week(when the equipment will operate) for ten shillings per month and I can really appreciate that after my laundry experience in Australia. There are three G. T. shows per week and usually from lack of anything else to do everyone goes and ends up by sitting on the ground in the rain for we are now in the beginning of the rainy season which usually lasts for six months. This place is said to be the only place in the world where a man can stand in mud up to his waist and complain about the dust blowing in his eyes.

There are innumerable mosquitoes and flies and the worst time is at dusk, after the mosquitoes have started and before the flies have quit. We sleep under mosquito nets at all times for malaria is by far our worst enemy. We take atabrine tablets about four times per week which keeps the malaria bacteria under control in one's blood stream. However, these pills are a bright yellow color and as time goes by the person taking it sees his skin becoming the color of the pills. I suppose we will all look like Chinamen when we come home. I take it faithfully for I do not wish to spend any time in a hospital.

In spite of the drawbacks in regard to living conditions one would expect and does find in a place like this, I think the scenery and views are some of the best I have ever seen. It is impossible for one to begin to describe the beauty of the sunrise and sunsets one sees here. They are much more beautiful than ours although after this is over I will never want to look at any but ours in the States—any state!

The trees are much different than ours, most of them being rather straggly except in the jungle. We do not live in the jungle although we are only a few minutes away from it.

After seeing the jungle it is something you never forget—great tall trees probably about 100 feet high growing straight up without limbs except at the top forming a cover the sun can not come through so it is always rather dark in the jungle. Below these high trees grow the real jungle reaching the height of about 20 feet and is an almost impenetrable mass of vines, shrubs, bamboo tall grass, fallen logs, rotten vegetation, etc. In fact the jungle usually smells considerably.

We also have cocoanut trees, some banana trees, (without bananas) but there are bananas, rubber and pineapple plantations non-operating now, of course. The jungle is truly beautiful in a way I find impossible to explain.

A couple of weeks ago on my afternoon off I went (with 8 others) to the waterfalls up in the mountains. They were really something to see although they are not as large as Niagara, I believe they are higher. I was the only one who would climb out on the rocks until I was right under them. I tried to take some pictures but they weren't any good. (Didn't think they would be for I was as wet as a drowned rat and the water was running out of the camera.) The falls were about half way up the mountains and when we started back we could look down into the valley but all we could see was the top part of the mountains and the top of the clouds below us.

The food is fair here—I hope I never see any corned beef or any kind of hash again. We had music in the mess hall today for the first time. When we went in they were playing "Strip Polka" but when I went through the mess line and they threw some 'nigger steak' (boiled liver) at my mess kit I lost all interest in either food or music.

We do have a good pastry cook for I can eat his cake—but not his pie. A lot could be done for our mess hall from a sanitary standpoint. However when one considers the number of men they feed, with K. P. help, and the fact that the food comes from Australia, one should not expect too much.

In regard to my work, I like it better than any work I have done in the army. It is the kind of work my Uncle Sammy sent me to school but of course I work on a different type equipment than I was taught. The fellows I work with are, without exception, a fine bunch of fellows, much more so than any group of soldiers I have ever been with. The Lieutenant in charge is a quiet sort of fellow who knows his business and, I think, believes that if he lets a soldier alone or helps him that he will get a lot more work from him than if he stood over him cracking a whip. I am new here and without experience but am really trying to do as well as I possibly can. As far as advancement in rank is concerned there is no chance here for any of us. I cannot blame these boys for feeling bitter when they have been over here working hard and going thru a lot of Hell for a couple of years as a private to see a punk fresh from the states with an arm load of stripes or a couple of bars not knowing beans from apple butter come in and prepare to take over while he remains a private.

But then I guess someone in this war has to be a private and—I'm not proud,for as far as I'm concerned stripes or bars mean nothing to me for all I want is to see this finished so I can come back and start in with everybody where I left off.

I am not a flag waver but after seeing a few of the other places in this world one comes to the conclusion that the U. S. A. is a mighty fine place to be from and that any time he can get back there, it will not be soon enough. But as long as I am here and am in the army I intend to see everything I can and get as much enjoyment from plans made and things I see and do, as I possibly can.

This has been a long letter and possibly boring to you. I did not realize I was writing at such length but in it I have attempted to tell you of places I have been, the things I have seen and done, the conditions which exist and as much as possible how I have reacted to them. It is my opinion that we have in training many more soldiers than we will ever need. I doubt if 25% of them ever see foreign service.

It is time to close now and for me to get to bed as reveille comes awfully early in the middle of the night it seems for it is still dark. Remember me to those of your family who know me.

Sincerely,
Pfc. Wayne W. Miller.

One-half of the taxes assessed for state, county, and school purposes are due and payable on or before the first Monday in May, 1944.
The second installment is due on or before the first Monday in November, 1944. BOTH INSTALLMENTS ARE OF LIKE AMOUNT.
In case either installment is not paid when due, it becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of eight per cent. Administrators, guardians, agents, and others, who pay taxes on property in trust and persons whose taxes are complicated, such as undivided estates, etc., are requested to settle such taxes before the last few weeks, as it takes time to make divisions and the separate receipts therefor. All persons should be careful to examine their receipts and see that all property they wish to pay taxes on is included in their receipt. Real estate transferred in 1943 will appear in new name in Treasurer's office in 1945.

THE TREASURER WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE

For the penalty and charges and delinquent taxes resulting by reason of any omission of the person paying such taxes to state definitely on what property, in whose name and in what township or corporation it was assessed. Persons are liable for taxes on all property owned by them on the first day of March, 1943. Property will appear in the same name for payment of the second installment as for the first installment each year.

Call on the auditor for errors or reductions claimed in taxes. The treasurer cannot make such reductions. No extensions will be given after the FIRST MONDAY IN MAY, 1944 AND FIRST MONDAY IN NOVEMBER, 1944.

County orders will not be paid to anyone owing delinquent taxes; all persons are warned against purchasing such orders. The annual sale of delinquent lands and lots will take place on the second Monday in April, 1944.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I want to thank you for publishing contents of my card to you last week. I have received several cards from friends of former years who had no way of getting my address so soon.

My Company address is 4510 instead of 4610 as you had it printed. I have received all mail with Co. correction.

Pfc. Victor D. Kelley, who entered the B-24 Liberator bomber mechanics school at Keesler Field, Biloxi, Miss., approximately 17 weeks ago, was graduated today from this unit of the Army Air Force Training Command.

Pvt. Kelley, son of Mrs. Elmer Smith, Spencerville, Ind., will go either to active line duty servicing the four-engine airplane, to aerial gunnery school or to a factory school for speciailzed training in maintenance of big craft.

The several scores of men graduated today after approximately 17 weeks in the school were trained in B-24 fundamentals, structures, propellers, instruments, fuel systems, electrical and hydraulic systems, engine operation, and aircraft inspection.

The last eight days were spent at "Fort Liberator," a field test area where the soldiers put into practice under simulated combat conditions the things they learned earlier during the intensive course.

In a recent letter from Sgt. James Draggoo, is a little idea of Christmas in India, he also said the weather had changed and he was now wearing his sweater and leather jacket, that he was fine and sends his best to all back home. His parents were very much pleased to receive some beautiful flowers wired to them from India.

"NEW DELHI—Christmas will be just another day to American combat fliers pasting the Japs in Burma—but those back on the ground in India will celebrate as best they can in cities, remote bases or jungles.

"There's no snow, few pine trees, and no familiar decorations in India. But many of the American boys are planning to put up some kind of tree, using cotton for snow, and improvised decorations.

"Bomber crewmen usually tune in to the States while flying to Burma targets, so most likely they will hear carols on Christmas Day. In North Burma jungles, they will hear Burmese nurses singing carols the Americans taught them.

"At Gaya, services will be held in a little Catholic mission within a stone's throw from an old Buddha temple. At Calcutta, they will be close to the spot where goats and buffalo were slaughtered in worship of the Indian goddess Kali.

"The Hindus don't celebrate Christmas themselves, but they do give parties and presents to American friends. Jim."

CONCORD TWP. SCHOOLS

On Thursday and Friday morning, Dec. 23 and 24, the teachers graded papers, made out grades, and filled out records.

On Friday afternoon a short Christmas program was enjoyed by the St. Joe School. The program was started by prayer and the singing of "Silent Night" and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear" by the audience. Miss Merril accompanied on the piano. Next Mary Louise Woodcox played a group of Christmas carols. Then Rev. Sharp gave a short Christmas talk. After a piano solo by Carol Rosenbury, the audience sang "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." As the pupils left the program they were each given a treat by Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Sharp. The pupils went to designated places to receive their grade cards and to exchange gifts.

Roman Christmas

Most scholars are agreed that Christ was born in March or April. Christmas was not celebrated until the fourth century, when the churches changed the date to Dec. 25.

At this time of year a series of pagan festivals usually occurred. These were held in honor of the winter solstice, the birthday of the new son about to return toward the earth. In this feast the transition to the Christian point of view was easily presented, so it came about that Christmas was to celebrate the birthday of Jesus, the Son of the spiritual world.

The church was anxious to distract the attention of the Christians from the old heathen-feast, as they celebrated Christmas on the same day. The Christmas feast inherited its customs from two sources, Roman and Teutonic paganism. They also believed that the time when the day began to increase, and light to triumph over darkness "was a fitting time to hold the feast of Christ, the light of life."

The Roman festival was held in honor of Saturn, to recall the age of prosperity. It was therefore a time of goodwill and joyousness. Schools and courts were closed. The gifts for children were clay dolls. A special feature was to free the slaves for a day. The slaves usually sat at the table while their masters waited on them. —Janice Bragg.

Mr. J. N. Scholes is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. J. D. Fetters was a Sunday dinner guest of her son, Jay and wife. The family holiday dinner was served.

Woodrow and Franklin Trostel, of Garrett, are here spending the holidays on the farm with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Trostel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fluke and family, spent over Christmas at Huntington. Bouncer and Pattie stayed over for the week, while Marceil Fluke returned to spend the week here.

Mrs. Chas. Bassett and children are spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Bointman at Grand Rapids, Mich. Charley made the trip Sunday and returned for his work at Ft. Wayne.

Cecil Ramsey returned Monday from Taswell, Tenn., where he reported to his draft board and visited his parents a few days. He was accompanied home by a cousin, Tommy R. Ramsey and Ross Buchanan.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jarrett and two children, of Grace Lake, Mich., and Garold Kitchen, wife and two sons, Tommy and Thama, of near Butler, spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kitchen. They also celebrated the wedding anniversaries of their daughter, Mrs. Jarrett, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kitchen.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The Lions Club held their last meeting at the K. of P. hall in St. Joe, Monday evening, it was a "carry-in" feed and how those Lions did eat.

The president acknowledged a greeting card from Lion DuWayne Kinsey, who is located in California. Lion Kinsey does not forget his old friends.

Lion Rectenwall, educational director, read the code of ethics of the club. Lion Stemen reported the salvage project as going fine and $23.75 has already been realized from waste paper and much more is coming in. All present who failed to bring scrap paper to pay for their supper were fined by the tail-twister. Lion Mark Williams led in several rousing songs, and Lion Robinson then took charge as the head of the entertainment committee, introducing Herman Zuber, who stated in his remarks that he has a hobby of collecting the unusual in animal life and he had with him several interesting specimens which he ably explained to his hearers. In his exhibit was a Dipper bird. When discovered it was seen feeding on the rocks in the stream picking the water life. It is the only bird known to feed under water, and has been seen feeding in stream beds three and four feet deep.

The second specimen was the trap-door spider which builds in the ground, makes a silken lined house and then closes the house with a trap-door hinged on one side. The life of this animal was fully explained by Mr. Zuber in an interesting manner.

His third specimen was the Lemming a very small animal, a native of Norway. When these tiny animals migrate it is always toward the sea, and they travel in such great numbers that they completely destroy all growing crops. One peculiarity is outstanding in this tiny animal (smaller than our red squirrel) is that they never change their course, always straight ahead. Should they come to an obstruction they either go through it or over it, never around or die in their attempt.

Lion Claude Laub introduced his guest, Lloyd Blaker, son of George Blaker, of Troy Township. Mr. Blaker, a Purdue graduate, has been located in Panama. He defended our forign policy in regard to Latin America. The United Fruit Company sends 90% of the bananas that reach the United States and we are getting quantities of gold from Central America. When the war started, Germany was outselling us in Central America and they had thus made friends of the natives. We are sending men to these people to the South, to help them to better food production, sanitation and good roads and the benefit will be mutual.

Mr. Blaker's work was along the food production line and his experiences in teaching the natives to raise their own vegetables and grains was very interesting. The natives have been undernourished and Mr. Blaker's work is to raise their standard of living, thus making better workers and better citizens of them. They want our manufactured articles and our object is to get them in a position where they earn and buy our products.

Uncle Sam's present good neighbor policy will prove beneficial to us in the post-war days ahead. We neglected these people during past 25 years and there was much bitterness against us, which of course was fostered by the Germans. We have a big job now to overcome the prejudices of these Latin American peoples.

Lion Zuber and Mr. Blaker were thanked for their splendid talks. Mr. Blaker arrived home from Central America, Sunday evening, after an absence of four years.

Twenty-four members responded to roll call, and after the secretary had calculated the contest percentages it showed that Lion Ridgway stood at 85% and Lion Rectenwall 81%. The special committee received the thanks of the group for the splendid evening.

SAVE ELECTRICITY TODAY FOR A BRIGHTER TOMORROW

"WE ARE helping to speed V Day and THE day our sons and brothers and loved ones all come home to us. . . . Then the 'lights can go on all over the world' as the song puts it, but right now we are helping every time we turn off an unneeded electric light or the switch of an iron or the radio, when we leave the room even for a short time."

Homemakers, today, realize how important it is to use Electricity wisely . . . not that there isn't enough Electricity, for there is ample for war and civilian needs, but your Government urges the conservation of critical materials and the resources that are required for the production of Electricity.

Use the Electricity you need—but be sure you need it.

A NEW YEAR

Hail the New Year and make ready for it! Normally we greet the advent with boisterous celebration and put it in its proper place on our calendar, in our bookkeeping as the time to settle accounts. It is a date for renewing our promises and perhaps old notes, for turning new leaves and starting fresh columns. We said goodbye to '42 with fanfare and welcomed a fresh beginning in '43 with a greeting and prayer for peace. We faced grim defeats in battle and sobered by difficult times, victories in war and peril for soldiers in performance of their duty. The year of 1943 was spent in sacrifice at home and abroad, of rationing of meat and butter, of shortages of paper, metal and rubber. We might say we have felt war within our homes by such curtailments but we cannot truthfully say we have actually suffered. On the credit side of ledger 1943 found us richer in understanding and more resolved to work with others in carrying out a universal program for unity among peoples. We have not, by far, reached the point where we even understand each other here at home enough to step into a foreign land and announce a perfect conception of their affairs. Such would be untrue and ridiculous. But, as we have started in this past year to become CONSCIOUS of the need for united effort and fellowship among nations whose people are perhaps not like us, but OF us, then it points to the possibility that we will grow in 1944.

This could be the underlying resolution of all our resolves—to try in every way possible to attain that place in the '44 line-up, a leader in a program for intelligent understanding and a protective co-operation, which points to peace. Other resolutions may be written in pencil, but this should go down in ink.

To our many friends: We take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks for your patronage in the past years. Your continued patronage will enable us to serve you better. We wish for you in the year 1944 Peace, Happiness, and Prosperity.

That we may be better enabled to serve you six days a week, we will be closed on Sundays and every week day at 6:00 P. M., except Tuesday and Saturday. All orders received, for funeral and wedding flowers, before Sunday will be delivered on Sunday. No other Sunday deliveries. We hope this will not inconvenience our patrons too much and it will help us.

This is what they mean by dangerous! A New York store discloses the fact of two girls in droopey slacks, handing $3,500 in wrinkled bills, to a clerk, in exchange for a mink coat that they both could wear. A truck driver parks his vehicle at the curb while he goes in to a gift shop and pays $125 for an artistic bowl. Selling nightgowns for fifty dollars while others at "bargain prices" of $29.95, are rapidly gobbled up. Pocketbooks for $100 and evening sweaters for $50 are the choice of spenders on benders. The wife of a man who has not had his income bettered by the war, was pushed aside as she waited to look at $5 purses, by two factory workers wanting "no cheap bags but something around $20! There was a woman who looked like she had need of a paper kerchief, buying five hankies at $2 each. Take these cases and add a few of your own to them and you have an idea of what is meant by the danger of inflation.

NEW FARM EQUIPMENT AVAILABLE IN '44

DeKalb County farmers will be able to buy during the comin year considerably more new machinery than they were able to obtain during the past year. This fact became known with the receipt of figures from the State Agricultural War Board giving the county's quota of new farm equipment, by Mr. Lautzenhiser, chairman of the DeKalb County War Board. The figures show that the following number of machines will be available thru local dealers for farmers of this county:

Corn planters, 24; combines, 24; corn pickers, 14; ensilage cutters, 3; grain drills, 19; hay loaders, 9; manure spreaders, 18; mowers, 27; pick-up balers, 3; potato diggers, 4; potato planters, 2; side delivery rakes, 15; tractors, 50.

All of the foregoing machinery is included in the farm machinery which has been rationed for the nation in order to help meet the demand and also to assure distribution to areas where it will contribute most to the demand for more food production. Allotments were made to each state by the War Food Administration and the state War Boards in turn have broken down the state allotments for each county.

To obtain any of the machinery listed herewith, it will be necessary for the local farmers who desire to buy it, to obtain a permit to purchase from the local farm machinery committee which is headed by Mr. Lautzenhiser. The permit then should be taken to a local dealer with whom the purchaser desires to trade and the order will be filled in so far as the quota for this county meets the demand.

The live stock and machinery were removed, but tons of baled hay and straw were burned. Coles suffered a loss of $1,000 and Holman $500 above their insurance coverage.

Mrs. C. C. Woodcox was hostess to the R. H. C. Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 28th. Mrs. Gladys Hart had the opening numbers which were Christmas readings by her grandchildren, Mary and Bobby Wilder, and were enjoyed by all. After a time spent in visiting a very appetizing lunch of chicken sandwiches, Waldorf salad, and coffee was served to the nine members and 3 children present. What a Team!

"A RACE HORSE is a pretty thing. But for my money give me a team of Percherons—there's power and beauty, too."

Today more than ever the farmer needs power to produce the food that fights for freedom—food to feed a hungry world.

The winning team of all is the American farmer teamed with Electricity—and that's where we come in. We have provided ample electrical horse power to supply war industries, farm requirements and civilian needs. But—electricity is made from fuel and fuel is scarce. So use all the electricity you need for that vital job of food production, but don't use it needlessly.

C IN PEEL

The peelings and parings of fruit that so often find their way into the garbage pail can contribute considerable vitamin C to meals if wisely used, according to Mary Lenore Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. The peel of oranges, lemons and other citrus fruits contains about three times as much of this vitamin as the pulp and juice. Adding thin slices or gratings of the peel to sauces, spreads and desserts will not only give an orange or lemon flavor but will add vitamin C as well.

In making candied peel or sweet marmalade in which the peel is parboiled and then the water discarded, some of the vitamin C is lost with the water. However, peel may be sliced or grated and added with no previous cooking to apple sauce, and other sauces, to spreads of various kinds, to most fruit desserts and even to quick breads.

The peel of apples is five times as rich in vitamin C as the flesh, according to research at the Virginia and Washington State Agricultural Experiment Stations. Scientists at these stations report that vitamin C is more concentrated in the outside of fruit, probably because the outside receives more light. Sunlight seems to have a favorable effect on vitamin C though this is not the so-called "sunlight vitamin."

Sunday guests of Mrs. Inez Hadsell were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hough and son, of South Bend.

Just a line to extend to you our sincere thanks for your patronage in 1943, and to wish you and yours a most Happy and Prosperous New Year. Remember, we are always at your service.

Lt. Dale D. Collins, 0-1315272, Co. C, 13th Bn., 1st Repl. Depot, APO No. 761, % Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

A holiday greeting card received Monday morning from Pvt. Harold L. Yeiser, from somewhere in England, says: "Will see you soon. I think of all the people every night and St. Joe as it was the last time I saw it."

Pvt. Harold L. Yeiser, 35552973, 865th Ord. Co. APO 518, % Postmaster, New York, New York.

New students include: Sergeant Otto J. Strombeck, son of Mr. John O. Strombeck, Sr., of R. R. 1, St. Joe, Ind.

The Armored School, of which Brig. Joseph A. Holly is commandant, trains the thousands of officer and enlisted technicians who perform the specialist tasks in the Army's mobile, powerful armored divisions. One of the largest technical schools in the world, it graduates several times more students each year than the largest civilian universities.

The Wheeled Vehicle Department trains the student mechanics in the intricacies of keeping peeps and jeeps, trucks and scout cars rolling in combat.

Dec. 25, 1943.

Hi Folks:

Well, here it is Christmas Day and I just finished eating dinner, and did we ever have a feed. It sure seems funny not to have any snow, suppose you have a lot back home.

For our Christmas dinner we had roast turkey with sage dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, creamed corn, hot rolls, butter, lettuce, radishes, celery, olives, mixed pickles, assorted nuts, assorted candy, fruit cake, ice cream, cigars, cigarettes and coffee.

Have been shooting on the range all week and my shoulder is very sore. If I do as well on record day as I've done this week I should make sharpshooter or expert. My platoon breaks up on Jan. 14, then I'll find out where I go. This last month has been the longest one I ever went through but have learned more than in a year at school. I broke my bayonet on a dummy last week but will get a new one Monday. We get to box and play ball this afternoon, so thought I better get my writing done now.

Well, I suppose Clifford is in the army now, that's two of us that missed dinner at Grandma Blue's. Last night a boy in his tent sat and thought about Christmas at home and all at once he started crying and yelling about the dirty Japs. I pity them if he ever gets in a hand to hand combat with them. Must close for now. Wishing you all the best of everything.

Love,

Pvt. Donald M. Kinsey, Plt. 1068 R. D. M. C. B., San Diego, 41, Calif.

Wednesday, P. M. Dec. 22, 1943. New Guinea.

Dear Fred:

Thought I'd drop you a line to let you know everything is O. K. over here. I feel fine as I have the past five months. I'm still crewing a C-47 and keeping rather busy at all times. we sure have plenty of work laid out for us.

I surely like to get the St. Joe News but haven't received one now in over a month. I wish in this way to thank all the folks who sent me Christmas cards and packages, until time permits me to write them individually.

I've been on leave in Australia once and will go again in about a month. The Aussys treat us fine but sure like to see the Yanks spend their money. Had plenty of ice cream and fresh milk while I was there something that we never have here.

The eats here one could hardly call fair but we manage to get along. We had a swell Thanksgiving dinner but it don't look like turkey for Christmas, we were over here four months before we received our first pay, after all what can we spend it for. This money confused us for a time but it's clear now. One shilling, 16c. There are 20 shillings in a pound which is $3.20.

The natives here are a great help to us and the Aussys. The Australians are doing a swell job on the ground. As you know the war over here is much different than in Europe. You folk back home are doing a swell job building equipment, etc., it's the best. Hoping the war is over soon,

I remain a friend,

T/Sgt. Virgil Laux, 65th T. C. S., APO, 713 Unit-1, % Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

Dec. 21, 1943.

Dear Dad:

Surprised, I'll bet you've been wondering what happened to me or why I haven't written, well, where I've been they wouldn't let us write. I know that sounds funny but you know when you are on a ship going here and there, it isn't like being stationed at some certain place.

I'm feeling good, haven't been sick yet and we've had fairly good luck going across and back. I'm still studying hard and I think I'm getting some where by doing it. I'm planning on going to school again in three more months if everything goes the way I want it to. Am still a Chief Petty Officer, I would have been promoted to Warrant Officer if we had gone to New York as we were supposed to do, but we had a little bad luck coming across this time and we ended up here, so now think I'll just wait and go to school.

How is everything in Indiana. Haven't heard from anyone since the latter part of July. I still write whenever I get a chance, but don't know whether my letters are delivered or not. I wanted to get home for Christmas, but it is impossible. I have a 30-day leave coming up, but if this next trip lasts three months, I'll go right on to school and may have to make another trip before I can get home, so not much use to make plans.

Well think I will have to close this letter now and hope to hear from you and all my friends. Am working now, just writing this letter between times. Never thought one year ago that I would be able to handle the engine of a 14,000 ton ship all by my little self. Ha. Ha.

Good luck and wishing you and Hattie a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Love, Your son,

Bobbie G. Wyatt, S. S. Samuel Mordy, % R. A. Nicol, S/S Co., 17 Battery Place, New York.

PREPARING FOR FEDERAL TAX RETURNS

Will H. Smith, United States Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Indiana, has advised that the income tax returns for the calendar year 1943 would be released on Monday, January 3, and that blank copies will be mailed to all taxpayers of record. He stated however that in view of the various difficulties encountered in deliveries that taxpayers should not become impatient should the blanks be a few days late in reaching them.

The income tax returns for the calendar year 1943 must be filed not later than March 15, 1944 with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which the taxpayer resides or has his principal place of business.

Most taxpayers have already made substantial payments on their 1943 Federal tax through withholding from their wages or direct payments to the Collector, but nevertheless all taxpayers must file annual returns on or before March 15, 1944, as provided by law.

Any single person whose total income in 1943 was $500 or more. Every husband or wife whose individual income was more than $624. Every husband and wife whose combined total incomes were $1,200 or more. Every individual who paid or owned a tax on 1942 income.

Form 1040A, called the short form, may be used by individuals whose total income was not more than $3,000 and was all received from wages, salaries, other personal compensation, dividends interest, and annuities. Form 1040, called the long form, must be used by all other individuals and may be used if desired by any taxpayer regardless of the amount of his income.

Taxpayers upon receipt of their returns are urged to prepare and file them at once in order to avoid the inconvenience brought about by last minute crowds. "Look after your income tax for 1943 in January, if possible," Mr. Smith said. Blanks will be available at News office.

After a short business session the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Ralph Keeler Jan. 12. The hostess served ice box cake and coffee. Mrs. Loretta Hull, an emeritus member, was a guest.

COUNTY HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT REPORT

The following report of the activities of the DeKalb County Highway Department, was made to the County Commissioners, this week:

The Honorable Board of DeKalb County Commissioners.
Gentlemen:

Pursuant to Chapter 27, page 141, Ind. Acts of 1933, relative to an annual report of work accomplished and funds expended during the past year of 1943, I, Wayne T. Van Auken, Supervisor of Highways and Co. Surveyor of DeKalb County, here-in submit my report.

Cash on hand Jan. 1, 1943, $10,733.83.

Gas Tax Receipts for the year, $119,986.76.

Receipts for services and material, $2,332.73.

Total Receipts, $122,319.49.

Total Disbursements, $106.-416.75.

During the past year we have purchased and remodeled our own plant at Auburn Junction. We have installed there-in a modern up to date heating plant at a cost of $2700. We have maintained, in a high state of repair all of the gravel roads of the county. More than 35,000 cu. yds. has been placed on the roads this year alone. All of our black top roads are in excellent condition. None had to be rebuilt this Spring. As a matter of maintenance, we resurfaced, with asphalt and gravel nearly 30 miles. These roads have almost daily inspection. No small breaks are allowed to develop to the point of expensive repair. We believe in the old adage that a stitch in time saves a lot of trouble and money.

We have assisted, with services they were unable to obtain elsewhere, the cities of Garrett and Auburn and the towns of Butler Altona, St. Joe and Ashley. The cities of Auburn and Garrett have also given us valuable assistance and I am happy to state that our relations, in this respect, are an example of what can be done in co-operation between various municipal departments, when the will and desire to serve are uppermost in the minds of the several heads of the departments, all of whom are to be commended for their fine co-operation with this department.

During the past year, it has been a pleasure to work with the Office of Civilian Defense, assisting them with both manpower and machinery, when called upon, in all kinds of Salvage work.

Some of our usual functions were somewhat curtailed this year, due of course, to the abnormal war conditions, but nevertheless, despite the shortage of man power and materials, most of our 1943 program was carried out on schedule and in full.

Together with our cash surplus, and it should be regarded as additional to it, is our great supply of gravel and stone on hand. We have purchased and paid for approximately 12,000 yards of gravel and stone from the several gravel plants in this county, all on hand at present to be used this year in maintenance and reconstruction of our roads.

Our greatest need, in this county, is the construction and rebuilding of bridges and culverts to fit modern travel conditions. This is an enormous project. We have listed 200 or more of these antiquated structures for replacement. It is my opinion that this should be the county's contribution to the post-war planning. Within this project a vast amount of manpower and money could be incorporated efficiently, and at the same time, remove one of our worst highway hazards.

Our program for the coming year contemplates the same degree of efficient service as in the past, depending of course upon the necessary restrictions of a country at war. Nothing definite in the way of a set program can be announced at this time except that the restrictions covering the use of bituminous materials have been removed. Their fuller use, during the coming year will depend upon the availability of tank cars and the ability of the railroads to deliver to us. I think I can safely say that we will use more asphalt or tar than we did in the past year.

Lastly but by no means least, is the fact that we have, for the fourth time in the past two years, raised wages to all the employed personnel in the department. Our monthly and yearly wage paid at present, and although we do not and cannot pay war plant wages, compares favorably with wages paid for like work in other departments. In ratio, a greater per cent of our total funds go for personal service than ever before in the history of this department. We have no strikes or threats of strikes. Our men have all been loyal and industrious. What "gripes" they have, have been openly discussed and corrected. This is our policy and it seems to work. I commend it to others.

I am happy to report that we start the new year in a sound financial condition. We intend to remain that way. We intend to continue to help the cities and towns in this county, as far as we are allowed to, in the improvement of their streets with both material and machinery. This tax money all comes from the same place and I see no difference between the street in front of "John Jones'" place in town and "Will Smith's" place in the country. Any time any town or city in this county needs help they cannot secure through their regular channels, call on us and you will find the latch string out.

Wayne T. Van Auken, Supervisor.
Elmer Johns, Assistant.
DeKalb Co. Highway Dept.

Planless Planners

COLD COMFORT

Secretary Ickes told Congress recently that the country faces a fuel crisis unparalleled in its history as a result of the loss of 40 million tons of coal production through miners' strikes. He made this statement in asking for a $3,550,000 special supplemental appropriation to carry out a plan of allocating available coal supplies this winter. The plan involves setting up offices in about 65 strategic cities throughout the production fields and in consuming areas. Wiser planning could have prevented this coal shortage crisis, the need for an additional appropriation from the federal treasury which is already heavily in the red, and the creation of more offices and more federal employes.

OFF AGIN, ON AGIN

To facilitate marketing and slaughter of record numbers of livestock produced by U. S. farmers, slaughter quotas (for civilian consumption) until further notice have been suspended by the War Food Administration. When, oh when, will the flood of orders, suspensions, reinstatements and directives emanating from Washington either stop or be stabilized so food producers on the farm will know where they are at in planning "food for victory" programs?

With newspapers cutting down on white paper does it follow that yellow journalism is going to get a big play?

WHAT MEANS MOST

Look to your city dailies for the big time war news, the hot-off-the-wire flashes, the data that will be included in the future history books. Cut out their maps for study, the diagrams of Allied progress of arrows, dots and curves. Follow the correspondents from Africa, the reporting of the South Pacific scribes. List the Russian advance and check with the city news-sheets for details concerning probable invasion points. But, pick up your home town gazette, your weekly St. Joe newspaper, and get the real war from folks you really know. No historian will consult our columns for vital statistics in compiling a book for posterity. But, consider our local boy's triumphs of promotions and decorations, of their letters of adventure and sightseeing to stir the folks back home. This is our advantage, the fact that a small paper in a small town gets to talk almost directly to the boys from here. We know that a letter a subscriber stopped in to show us, from his son in Africa, is fresh from the warring front. It is vitally interesting to all of us. There may be a neighbor's son who writes from some secluded spot in the north and we can enjoy his account of the situation. We publish an article of a Joe Clark who is coming home on his furlough to marry a local girl, of a Johnny Smith who returns from the sea to see his newly born son, we mention perhaps that two lads happen to run across each other in Attu. We aren't making history, but it is all big news to the home-town folks who really care.

1944 LICENSE PLATES OUT JANUARY 15

The sale of Auto License Plates and the various types of driving licenses will start on January 15, 1944, according to a statement made today by Rue J. Alexander, Secretary of State, and Commissioner of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

The customary printed applications for plates will be mailed early in January to registrants of record in 1943. Mr. Alexander pointed out that, owing to the difficulty in obtaining material for supplies, there may be a slight delay in mailing these applications, and requested motorists to wait till they receive their applications before purchasing plates, even though it may be late in January.

Motorists are reminded by Mr. Alexander that 1943 plates and driving licenses expire February 29, 1944, but he urges motorists to obtain plates and licenses as early as possible after January 15, in order to avoid the last minute rush the latter part of February.

Mr. Alexander emphasized the provisions of the law which require that each applicant for license plate or any form of driving license must show a receipt for his 1943 personal property and poll taxes, or a statement from the county treasurer that such taxes have been paid or a statement from the county assessor that he is not assessable in his county of residence. Forms for these statements will be mailed with the plate applications. They may be obtained, also, at any Auto License Branch, or at The News office which plans again to take care of those who care to avail themselves of this home town service.

FUEL SAVERS IN COOKING

Whenever a meal is cooking, there's a chance to be thrifty with fuel. Or, contrariwise, there's chanec of being spendthrift, wasting heat on the kitchen air. Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent offers these suggestions for kitchen conservation of gas and electricity—two fuels vital to war industry:

1. Don't turn on a surface burner or unit until it's needed. Start the oven just soon enough, so it will preheat by time food is ready to bake.

2. Team the right pan with the right burner or unit. Fuel is wasted if a large burner sends heat flowing up around a small pan. On the other hand, a small burner can't spread uniform heat to the outer edges of a big pan. And remember, the most effective type of pan has straight sides, flat bottom, tightly fitting lid.

3. Bring food to boil on high heat, then turn to low heat—just enough to keep food boiling.

4. Don't be a lid-lifter or oven-peeper. Learn the approximate time it takes to cook the quantity for family meals, or to bake a particular dish. Lifting and peeping let out steam from top-of-stove pans, and let heat escape from oven.

5. Turn off heat as soon as food is done before removing pan from stove.

6. When heating water, heat no more than is needed.

7. Plan the oven's work shift. Heating the oven is a major portion of the fuel cost in each baking job, so it is thrifty to do several jobs in a row.

8. Use the oven to capacity, taking care not to overcrowd. When foods are baking and roasting is a good time to steam vegetables in the oven by cooking them in a little water in a covered pan. If not covered, the vegetables would give off so much moisture that the foods roasting and baking might not brown.

9. Follow the manufacturer's special fuel-conserving tips for the range in use.

10. Keep one-dish meals in mind, as many are fuel and time savers. Here is a recipe for liver stew with parsley dumplings, which needs only a beverage and a green salad, such as cabbage slaw or dressed lettuce, to round out the meal. To serve 6, cut a pound of sliced liver into small pieces, dip in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Melt 2 tablespoons fat, add the liver and brown. Add ½ cup chopped onion and cook 2 minutes. Add 1½ cups sliced carrots, 2 cups cubed potato, and 2 cups boiling water. Cook, adding more water as needed, until, vegetables are almost tender, then add dumpling batter. For the dumplings, measure ¾ cup all-purpose sifted flour and sift together with 2½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Beat 1 egg and add ⅓ cup milk and ¼ cup parsley cut fine. Mix with the dry ingredients. Drop spoonfuls of batter over the boiling stew, and cover tightly to hold in steam. Boil gently 15 minutes without opening the pot, by which time the dumplings should be fluffy and light.

Hypnotized by promises of power and glory, they gave up every human freedom to follow a fanatic paperhanger.

They fell upon the world and almost crushed it. But not quite. The "decadent" democracies rallied around the banner of liberty. Free peoples applied the dynamics of free enterprise to the grim business of war—and accomplished production miracles.

The sullen slaves of the swastika have come up against a force they cannot master or comprehend.

It is independence—the common heritage of Americans. Freedom of religion, speech, thought and individual enterprise. The right and opportunity of every American, within reasonable limits, to enjoy the rewards that his own work may bring.

This is the force that made America great. It is devoted today to the needs of all-out war. It must not be lost when the war is won.

INDIANA'S WOOD IN WAR

Winter months of 1944 will be the best time for Indiana farmers to sell timber they have had for more than 20 years. This message was released today by the Timber Production War Project, whose office in Indianapolis is in charge of Rudolph H. Grabow, Supervisor of the U. S. Forest Service.

Ceiling prices on Indiana hardwoods recently were raised 15 per cent, Mr. Grabow pointed out; thus bringing selling prices to the woodland owner to their present wartime peak.

The nation's armed forces are in need of nearly all types of Indiana hardwoods, with special emphasis on lumber for truck bodies, ship-building materials, and for boxing, crating and dunnage.

The Timber Production War Project further disclosed the fact that if all the sawmills in Indiana could operate an extra day each week for the next 10 weeks, even at only half capacity, an additional ten million feet would be produced.

Farmers and woodlot owners are being urged to cut marketable timber this winter, while other work is slack and while good prices prevail. Surplus seasonal farm labor is urged to help in sawmills. Lumber is the third most critical material for the war, there being more than 1,200 different items of military equipment made from wood.

Department of Agriculture services, including the County Agents and the County War Boards are helping in the drive to get production and can assist farmers wherever needed.

Vacation is over and school was resumed on Monday morning, Jan. 3. Most of the pupils were present on this first day after vacation.

Helen Wiers visited school Monday.

The Junior Class of St. Joe High School will present "The Patchwork Quilt" sometime in January. The exact date will be announced later. "The Patchwork Quilt" is a romantic drama of true literary value and is by the famous author of "Mignonette," "The Charm Shop," and "The Garden of the Moon." Laid in the most romantic of all American cities, New Orleans, the story of the play goes over a period of years, and brings in a multitude of historical facts, such as Mardi Gras, the beginning of the World War, the Armistice, etc. The unusual plot concerns a woman, thwarted in love, who keeps a diary of her life in the form of a patchwork quilt. Each little square of material is taken from some gown she wore at a crucial moment of her life. When the first act begins she is making the pieces into a quilt for her daughter's wedding present. An unforeseen difficulty arises and she is forced to tell the story of her life. This is told in a series of flash-backs wherein the characters enact the different episodes. The local cast are enthusiastic over the production and no expense has been spared in order to make the play camparable with a professional stage production.

The Big Three

Three men of very different backgrounds and characters met together to plan the world's future.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was born on January 30, 1882, at Hyde Park, N. Y. He was the son of a wealthy country gentleman. He was Assistant Secretary of the Navy in World War I and an unsuccessful candidate for Vice Presidency in 1920. An attack of infantile paralysis might have hindered him from his career but he carried on in spite of his handicaps. He became president of the United States after serving two terms as Governor of New York.

Winston Churchill was born in a palace on November 30, 1874. He was the son of an English nobleman and an American mother. After a fine schooling, he served in various military campaigns in Egypt and South Africa. He was in Parliament when he was 25 years old. He was Lord of the Admiralty during World War I. "In spite of a lisp and a stutter, he trained himself to become one of the greatest orators of our time. His bull-dog courage and his inspiring words were Britain's greatest strength in her hour of weakness."

Joseph Stalin was born near Tiflis, Dec. 21, 1879. He was the son of a village shoemaker. "He studied for the priesthood, but soon became interested in the underground movement to free Russia from the rule of the Czra. He led a life of violence and hardship. He was thrown into prison time after time. But, during World War I, the Revolution he had worked for took place. A communist state was set up under Lenin. When Lenin died, Stalin took over the leadership. Stalin is no orator. He speaks little, but to the point."

Planning the World's Future

Around the last of November and the first of December, the world was wondering about the stories they had heard concerning "The Big Three." At their conference these men discussed where to have the second front and when to have it. It will probably be in the Spring and in the Balkans unless the "Big Three" decide otherwise.

Germany must suspect this for they have taken their troops out of Rumania and put them in Yugoslavia.

Russia is trying to get Turkey to enter the war with the Allies. She may not be able to help the Allies with her army, but she can let us use her air bases. She can also open the Dardenelles to British warships to join the Russian fleet and attack Rumania and Bulgaria.

Russian armies are coming from the east on Germany, British and Americans are coming in from the south. They are getting plenty of bombs, too. With this threefold attack, Germany might collapse any minute.

MUTES TAKE THE SOLEMN MARRIAGE VOWS

One of the most unusual wedding ceremonies took place Christmas morning at the Church of Christ in Auburn, it was revealed Tuesday of last week. Not a word was spoken during the entire service.

Donald Musser, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Musser, of Coleman's Corners, and Eileen Alberta Shanvfelt, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oral Shanyfelt, of Saratoga, Indiana, were the contracting parties. Both are mutes. They pledged their vows in the sign language in a double ring ceremony at which the Rev. C. T. Herod, pastor of the church officiated.

The groom graduated a couple of years ago from the state school for mutes at Indianapolis and had been employed at Auburn until recently, when he went to Muncie and found employment, where he is now located.

CHANGE IN DRAFT SET-UP

After February 1st, men called for military service will only have to take one physical examination as a rule—the complete army examination. That means no more local board screening tests.

The 21-day post-induction furlough also will be abolished, but under the new set-up at least 21 days will elapse between the time of the physical examination and actual induction.

During that period the man will be "on call." He may remain on call longer than 21 days. If he stays on call as long as 90 days, he will have to take another physical examination.

The chief purpose of the new rules is to eliminate uncertainty—cases in which men wind up their affairs, actually are inducted on the basis of a local board screening test and then fail to pass the general army physical.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The Lions Club held their regular meeting at the high school building and a very good meal was served by th Home Economics class.

President Leighty introduced several visitors and the secretary announced the anniversary meeting in two weeks.

Lion Stemen announced that another waste paper drive will be made in the near future.

Homer Stemen, one of our soldier boys, home from Camp Atterbury, Ind., was called upon and responded with some camp life information.

President Leighty introduced Prosecutor Hugh Sanders, of Auburn, who gave a fine talk on "The Peculiarities of Our Presidents." Nearly every one of our elected leaders had their own ordinary traits. Andrew Johnson was the one that could not read until after he was married, his wife being his teacher. Only one of our presidents was born west of the Mississippi River, Herbert Hoover.

Some of the wives of our presidents also had their peculiarities, two of them being pipe smokers. Most of them were highly intelligent matrons of the white house. Theodore Roosevelt was a boxer of no mean ability and lost an eye as the result of this rough fun. Presndent Taft, weighed 332 pounds when inaugurated.

No man whose name begins with H was ever re-elected. After retiring President Jefferson spent nearly all his means entertaining friends. Grant lost his fortune as the result of poor investments and misplaced confidences in business partners and friends.

President F. D. Roosevelt is a man of independent means, and his predecessor, Herbert Hoover, was also a wealthy man, having made his own way from a laundry worker to an accomplished engineer and consular. When 40 years of age he was worth $4,000,000 and he was also a liberal giver to worthy causes.

Mr. Sanders reminded his hearers that any man who gets to be president of this country, really has "something on the ball" or he could not gain this great position.

Twenty-nine men were in attendance. The result of the contest announced by secretary Wicoff showed that Lion Ridgway was in the lead over Lion Rectenwall by a small margin.

ROLAND HAYS WILL APPEAR AT FORT WAYNE

The internationally famous Negro Tenor, Roland Hayes, will appear in a Recital at the Shrine Auditorium, Ft. Wayne, on Monday evening, January 24, under the auspices of the Men Civic Builders of the Wheatley Center Social Center.

The career of Mr. Hayes is without parallel in the world's musical history. From bare-foot boy on a Georgia farm of his widowed slave-born mother, Mr. Hayes toiled his way to the heights of world-wide musical fame, to receive universal, critical acknowledgement as America's greatest native-born concert tenor of this era.

Ticket prices are: $1.10— $1.65—$2.20 and may be secured by writing: The Shrine Box Office or The Wheatley Social Center, 486—38 E. Douglas Avenue, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

The $2.20 tickets are for reserved seats.

DeKALB COUNTY QUOTA SET FOR FOURTH WAR LOAN

At a district meeting held in Fort Wayne Thursday of the Fourth War Loan drive committee, DeKalb County was assigned a quota of $1,029,400, which is about $100,000 less than was asked in the Third War Loan drive. The national goal is $14,000,000,000, and Indiana's quota is $233,000,000.

In attendance at the meeting from DeKalb County were: Fisher West, of Auburn, county chairman; Albert Yoder, of Jackson Township, rural chairman; Arthur Lautzenhiser, of Franklin Township, representing the war board; and other special city committee leaders.

The drive will get under way on January 18 and continue through February. All bonds bought during January will be counted on the quota assigned. No house-to-house canvass will be made and no special quota will be assigned to any town or township. Everyone can feel free to pitch in and buy all the bonds they can without solicitation, and we are sure that this will be done. $117,250 worth of bonds were sold in December, and this amount was $17,158 above the quota.

Readers of The News, get set and let us all do our best.

BUTLER PRINTER TAKEN BY DRAFT GOES IN NAVY

R. Burdette Powers, of Butler, has been accepted for Navy training according to word received Friday by the selective service board at Auburn. Powers has been a linotype operator at Butler for the past nineteen years, working on the paper with his father. Burdette has been married for 16 years and said he was old enough (37) to be the father of 90 per cent of those inducted into the Navy with him. A. S. Powers makes the following statement in the Record-Herald which shows the gravity of taking men from business of such age:

"Mr. Forrest Oiler, who has been floor man for the past nine years, and who was recently rejected for service, has assumed the responsibility of setting the paper, and every effort will be made to continue the publication, but no promises are being made."

MAKES RURAL FIRE RUN MONDAY AFTERNOON

The fire department made a hurried call to the Don Washler farm home, east of town, Monday afternoon where they found corn fodder on fire which had been placed around the back porch to keep the cold from getting into the cellar.

Their young son had set the fodder on fire to see it burn. During the morning the youngtser had seen his father start a fire at the water tank with fodder and cobs, and this a called to the little fellow and he wanted to help light the kindling.

Mr. Washler explained wh he could not help but when the opportunity came the little fellow started its own fire which might have warmed up more had it not been discovered so promptly.

INDIANA CIO PREDICTING A THIRD PARTY

And what might we expect? An Indiana CIO official reveals that his union is forming a group which may emerge as a third party.

Secretary Walter Frisbie of the CIO refers to the union's political action committee.

Frisbie says the committee hopes to control the next election by the solid-bloc voting of the members. But he adds, "maybe five elections from now we can emerge completely independent—of the CIO and of anything else—as a third party"

He says he refers to the information of a third party only in Indiana and that they expect to control 150,000 persons. Already organizing efforts are shaping up in eight of the eleven congressional districts. There will be little effort put forth in the third, seventh and ninth districts because of such few members.

RAY HAYNES FARM HOME BURNS SUNDAY

The two-story frame residence occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Haynes in Jackson Township, three miles southeast of Auburn, burned to the ground Sunday afternoon about three o'clock. The blaze is believed to have started in the attic from a defective chimney or from sparks falling on the roof.

The Auburn fire department was summoned but was unable to save the house because of a lack of water. The cistern was almost dry as there has been but little rainfall or snow and an electric pump on the farm would not work. The firemen used soem water from the booster tank on the fire truck but saved most of it to use on other buildings if there should be a change in the wind. The wind fortunately carried burning embers from the house away from the barn and other buildings on the farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Haynes heard a cracking noise and upon investigation found that the attic of the home was on fire. A member of the family ran to the home of a neighbor who had a telephone and summoned the fire department. Neighbors assisted the family in removing all of the furniture and the household goods from the lower part of the house but all of the furniture and other possessions on the second floor, including a diamond ring owned by Mr. Haynes were consumed by the flames.

The fire soon spread throughout the house and in less than an hour the residence was totally destroyed. The firemen remained at the scene until the blaze died down so that there was no danger of spreading to other buildings.

The residence was owned by a life insurance company which is represented by Kenneth H. Knowlton, of Freeport, Illinois. It was carried on the house. Mr. Haynes carried insurance on the household goods.

TO ERECT NEW COUNTY HOME FOR NOBLE COUNTY

A new Noble County home, to replace the present 84-year old infirmary, northwest of Albion, is to be erected to meet the need of a more adequate facility for housing the county's indigents and, at the same time, comply with the recommendation of the Indiana state fire marshal's department that the present structure be replaced with a new, modern home. Present plans call for the construction of a home, large enough to accommodate at least 100 inmates and of design which will be modern in every detail. While definite plans and specifications have not been completed, it is estimated that the new home will entail an expenditure of $125,000 to $150,000.

CANDLELIGHT SERVICE

We will have a Candlelight Service for Our Men in the Service Jan. 23. Each man in the Service will be represented by a candle. Each candle will be carried to a large lighted candle, (representing Christ, the light of the world,) and after the candle has been lighted, a short prayer, thanking God for that soldier's safe keeping and asking for his safe return, will be offered. Promptly at 8 o'clock the program will begin. From 8 to 8:30 songs by the congregation and special numbers will be enjoyed. At 8:30 sharp the first candle will be lighted and the prayer offered. In most cases the one carrying the candle will offer the prayer. Some felt they wanted to carry the candle but didn't feel equal to the prayer, and so in that case another will offer the prayer. The candle lighting schedule is given in detail so every man will know when his own candle is lighted, who carries it and who offers the prayer. Although some men will see that their candle is not carried by some member of his family yet in most cases his family will be to the service, so he can feel that his family is having a part even if it be a silent one. We are sure many silent prayers will be offered along with the audible one.

KEEPING WARM

Take notice of the soft sweaters the young girls are wearing, of the pretty wool suits in attractive weaves that our feminine contingent dons so mornsmy. Look at the men swaggering in their Christmas wool cardigans and vests, babies in warm snuggiees and fuzzy creepers. In spite of increasing buying, of limited conditions, we are still garbing ourselves in all wool and a yard wide, this winter. The winds may blast forth a hearty bit of blasphemy, but the air is filled with mittens and mufflers. The frosted breath asks for warmth and comfort and ships returning from over seas are seeing to it that we are kept so.

BETTER CARE

Modern warfare is so advanced in design that it becomes more destructive in nature and consequently there are more wounded in this war than in any early ones. The men today have a far better chance of recovery than did the other fighters. We can look back in our history and find where 50 per cent of the wounded died, and that as recently as World War I the death rate among hospitalized American soldiers ranged between 7 and 10 per cent. The 96 out of every 100 who reached a hospital at Pearl Harbor, survived! In the horrible Guadalcanal fighting, in spite of the worst possible climate, the Navy Medical Corps held the death rate among the wounded there, down to 1 per cent. Russia with their heavy fighting on a far flung front is keeping her death rate among the wounded to an average of 1.5 per cent. We give thanks for all of these encouraging facts.

DRIVING PRIVILEGES OF 600 INDIANA PERSONS SUSPENDED

Driving privileges of more than 600 Hoosiers have been suspended. Indiana Public Safety Director Don Stiver says the suspensions were ordered for failure to file proof of financial responsibility after the motorists were involved in accidents.

The law requiring motorists to file proof of responsibility in case of an accident was passed by the 1943 general assembly.

Stiver reports that during the first full month of the law's operation, suspension orders were issued against 1,782. However, 1,152 of the motorists complied with the law.

About 60 per cent of the persons reporting accidents were covered by liability insurance. Others failing to produce proof were required to post bonds totaling $9,500 during December.

Four thousand motor vehicle accidents during December caused damages estimated at more than $700,000.

Financial responsibility security under law must be furnished in the form of cash, negotiable collateral or surety bond.

CONCORD TWP. SCHOOLS

The St. Joe High School Chorus classes will present an operetta "Bab Boy," by Clark and Lee in the High School Gymnasium. The exact date of this operetta will be announced later. It is under the direction of Miss Merrill the music director of the St. Joe School. The story is an interesting one, of a wealthy man who founds a retreat for working women in honor of the birthday of his daughter. There is comedy, a mirth trio, and romance. A very pleasant evening's entertainment awaits you. There will be the following special numbers: a solo by Doris Trenary; a duet by Doris Trenary and Patricia Fluke; tap dancing by Jack Bowser; an acrobatic dance by April Bowser; a duet by Betty and Becky Inlow, and a duet by Blaine and Wayne Warstler.

The teachers of the St. Joe School had their regular bi-monthly teachers meeting Thursday morning at 8:00 o'clock.

The DeKalb County Teachers Institute was held Saturday, January 8 in the Court House Auditorium in Auburn, Ind. Roll call was taken at 9:00 A. M. Mrs. Margaret Cather then directed the music. Dr. Robert Phillips, Head of the History Department at Purdue University, gave an address "When the Lights Go On Again" at 9:30 A. M. After the dinner hour, Dr. Phillips gave another address entitled "I Am An American." The institute was adjourned after announcements and group meetings at 1:30 P. M.

When the Juniors present "The Patchwork Quilt," the famous romantic darma by Arthur Jearne, they are confident that the production will go down in local history as one of the finest performances the Juniors have ever attempted. The local cast have worked hard and diligently, under the capable direction of Mrs. Buckner and a first class performance in every respect is promised the audience. The setting for this unusual play is all laid in New Orleans, before, during and after the Mardi Gras. The play itself covers a period of twenty years and the plot embraces romance, suspense, comedy, and pathos—all the factors that go to make up a perfect evening's entertainment. The young people who take part in the production will have the opportunityof a life time to snow what they really can do, and if one can judge by the rehearsals and the splendid cooperation of everybody concerned, the result should be more than satisfactory.

In a game that was close all the way, the St. Joe Junior High team lost to Butler's Junior High five 17-27. At the end of the half the score was 9-10 Butler. Next Monday, Jan. 17, the St. Joe team journeys to Butler for a game at 7:00 P. M.

An interstate tourney was held last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday noons with the seniors eking out a close victory over the juniors in the final game on Friday noon 14-12. In the semi-finals the juniors beat the freshmen, 25-14 and the seniors won over the sophomores 28-19. A lot of enthusiasm was shown by the classes and the final game proved to be really an interesting one to watch. A boys' ping pong tournament is now in progress. —Earl Sharp.

We Fight A War With Paper

When you look at a sheet of paper, you may wonder how it can help to fight a war. Every shell fired in battle reaches the front in a paper wrapper. The powder to fire a shell is made partly of paper pulp. Paper containers carry grease, glue, paint, and even gasoline. These containers even withstand water, weather, and wear. Paper sun helmets protect soldiers from heat in the tropics. Army huts and buildings here and overseas are insulated with paper. Buildings and gun installations are hidden from enemy eyes by camouflage paper in nine assorted colors. Every battleship which is launched has used up 37 tons of blueprint paper by the time it is built. Fifty-three carloads of paper went into Ration Book No. 3.
—George Mansfield.

DEKALB COUNTY CIVILIAN DEFENSE FACTS

In connection with the statement made by D. E. Messenger in resigning as Chairman of the DeKalb County Civilian Defense Council, the members of the DeKalb County Board of Commissioners and the DeKalb County Council, have issued the following statement:

"Our attention is called to the statement issued by D. T. Messenger in connection with his resignation as Chairman of the DeKalb County Civilian Defense Council. In view of the distorted picture given by this statement, we feel that the people of DeKalb County are entitled to a statement of the facts."

In 1943 the DeKalb County Civilian Defense had a total appropriation of $2680.00 consisting of $1300.00 for clerical help and $1380.00 for general expense. Of these amounts they expended $1300.00 for clerical help and $375.55 for general expense, leaving $1004.45 of the appropriation for general expenses unexpended.

At the time the budget for 1944 was made, the County Council directed the Auditor to make a survey of surrounding counties as to their appropriations for civilian defense. A survey was made of eight counties and upon this survey the council then made an appropriation of $1250.00 for Civilian Defense of which $500.00 was for general expenses and $750.00 was for clerical hire. In arriving at these figures the council made the appropriation well above the average of eight other counties, comparable in size to DeKalb County. They allowed $500.00 for general expenses although only $375.55 was spent in 1943. This amount is certainly ample.

The survey further showed that no other county had or provided a full time secretary to the Director and that only part of them has a part time secretary. The council therefore appropriated $750.00 for a half time secretary at $62.50 per month. Considering the fact that the changed status of the war has eliminated much of the necessary functions of Civilian Defense, the council thought the appropriation to be fair and liberal and equal to or in excess of the appropriation of other comparable counties. And all of this in the face of the fact that the necessary functions of Civilian Defense have greatly diminished.

It therefore appears from the facts as above set forth that the County Council of Civilian Defense has sufficient funds for every purpose except for the employment of a full time secretary to the Director and his controversy, therefore, narrows to the one question as to whether the council should have made a sufficient appropriation to pay a full time secretary of the Director the sum of $125.00 per month. The County Council was unanimously of the opinion that such employment was not necessary or conducive to any essential part of the war effort. Mr. Messenger apparently does not agree with this conclusion but it is a fact that the entire Civilian Defense Council of DeKalb County, other than Mr. Messenger, were satisfied and advised him to accept the appropriation without question and to apply to the council at a subsequent date for additional appropriations, if emergencies arose that required additional funds.

It is not the purpose of the County Council or the Board of Commissioners to enter into any controversy in this matter other than to give the public the facts. These agencies of DeKalb County are vested by law with authority to control the expenditure of the tax money of the citizens of DeKalb County and the burden rests upon them to provide for all necessary expenditures and at the same time to see that the taxpayers money is not wasted or expended where no real necessity exists for such expenditures. This function is doubly important at a time when taxes are high and when the average citizen is already taxed beyond his ability to pay. We feel we have discharged this duty fairly and well and we feel that Mr. Messenger should have accepted the appropriation in the same spirit it was made in and appeal for more funds at a later date provided conditions required such additional funds.

The members of the County Council and Board of Commissioners resent the statement of that "political selfishness" has plared any part in this appropriation or that they have refused to back up the war effort. Such a statement was unfair and untrue and can have no other purpose than to distort the true facts. No thought of politics has affected our judgment in this matter and our motives have been solely to perform, fairly and impartially, our duties as officers of DeKalb County. We submit that our patriotism and devotion to the men in service needs no defense and we stand at all times, ready and willing to take all steps, either as individuals or public officials, to support and sustain the men in service and the war effort. Such an attack as has been made by Mr. Messenger certainly adds nothing to the unity that is necessary in the war effort.

FREEDOM
in a radio program!

"OUT of all the programs on the air, I've got a few favorites. I listen to them and let the rest go by. . . . It's good to live in a country where nobody says you must hear this and you can't hear that."

Axis nations, of course, rigidly restrict radio listening. Other nations tax radio sets and broadcast only government programs. But American businessmen give America the finest, most varied radio entertainment in the world. They win and hold audiences by sheer human interest—by doing a good job.

This business freedom, this wide-open opportunity for energy and ingenuity, works just as well in other fields. It has helped American farms and factories set war production records. It has helped the business-managed electric companies provide power for both farms and factories—at low pre-war prices.

This freedom is part of America's birthright.

To the People of this Community

THINK IT OVER

How about doing a little cold turkey thinking after you lay aside this newspaper tonight?

You've got a good job. The chances are there is someone else in your family, perhaps two or three, working. Your son or your brother—may be away at war.

4TH WAR LOAN

This war must end sometime. Your whole family, your neighbors, are praying it ends soon and those fighting boys of yours will come home safely.

But will you be ready for whatever happens when peace comes? Will you have something laid away? We're all hoping there'll be jobs aplenty, jobs which mean making something for somebody's happiness and not for somebody's sorrow. That's where your War Bonds come into the picture. Sure, Americans own billions of dollars of War Bonds now; and before this 4th War Loan ends they will have put away billions more. But how about you? You're the one that counts. The bigger the pile of War Bonds you have when peace comes, the bigger chance you'll have to slip right into the post-war world you're dreaming about tonight.

So "Let's All Back the Attack."

THE EDITOR.

Battle Wagons

When Japan attacked at Pearl Harbor we had 17 battleships in service and 18 building. We were making preparations but the war did not wait. These 32 battle wagons cost American taxpayers three billion dollars for a two ocean navy. The war seemed far away then.

Now fifty million Americans have a personal stake in this war. It has been brought home to them. That's why everyone is increasing purchases of War Bonds.

New Deal Publication Says American Farmer Is Not Sanitary

Wants Japs to Teach Farmer How to Bathe

A slur aimed at every American farmer came to light recently when it was disclosed that the War Relocation Authority, set up by President Roosevelt, urged interned Japanese to take jobs on farms in midwest states in order to teach Americans lessons in sanitation.

On Dec. 5, 1943, almost exactly two years after the attack on Pearl Harbor, Washington newspapers featured the astounding story of how a New Deal publication, "Mid West Frontiers," published at taxpayers' expense by the WRA, addressed the Japs in these words:

"Believe it or not, some few tenants and seasonal workers (in Ohio and Michigan) do not bathe! They think it is unhealthy. We need you people to change our ideas about this. You have a lesson to teach Ohio and Michigan farmers in sanitation. It is a contribution you can make to our way of living."

Many Congressmen immediately apologized to the patriotic farmers for this slur against them.

This disclosure came as a climax to reports of poor management, wasteful administrative practice and excessive payroll-padding by the War Relocation Authority, a New Deal agency.

On December 7, 1941, all of the 110,000 Japanese in the United States naturally were suspected, although doubtless some were loyal to this country, and the Army moved them into inland camps where the Japs were kept under strict surveillance. No trouble was recorded as long as the army had charge of the Japs, but on March 18, 1942, President Roosevelt set up the "War Relocation Authority," without consulting Congress.

A typical New Dealer, Dillon Myer, was made director of the new bureau, which today has more than 2,000 employees (250 in Washington) and has obtained over $120,000,000 from Congress. Despite these enormous expenditures, the WRA has arrived at no successful formula for the interned Japanese.

Washington was astounded more than a year ago with reports that a Japanese association was working closely with WRA to have Japanese "freed" from the camps.

Still later came a well-organized move, originating in the WRA, to move all the interned Japs back to their West Coast homes.

A Democratic Congressman told the nation recently the true story of the Japanese riots at the Tule Lake Relocation Center in California and accused the present political Administration of mismanagement and of coddling the Japanese.

PLANNING POST-WAR PUBLIC WORKS FOR INDIANA

Governor Henry F. Schricker's office announces that the Indiana Economic Council has filed its first preliminary report of post-war public works tabulation.

Governor Schricker says that the Economic Council is charged with promoting and coordinating the planning of a reservoir of post-war public works projects for the State. A tabulation for each county will be made in the final analysis.

The report filed shows that 141 governmental units have reported 561 major projects. The list includes 19 Airports; 83 Public Buildings; 121 School Buildings; 19 Auditoriums; 7 Flood Control Projects; 58 Bridges; 5 Housing Projects; 34 Recreational Projects; 53 Sewer Systems; 39 Sewage Treatment Plants; 3 Garbage Disposal Plants; 23 Water Distribution Systems; 7 Water Purification and Softening Plants, and 4 Track Elevation Projects. This report does not include the very substantial future construction plans of the State Highway Department, nor any projects from first and second class cities, whose plans are not yet completed. Most cities and towns are working on their future plans, and it is anticipated that the next tabulation will show a very decided increase in the number of governmental units reporting.

FARM BUREAU MEETING

Lester Austraw, bulk plant manager, gave an interesting talk on the seed oats situtiom. Meeting was then turned over to S. & E. leader, Mrs. Brooks Trenary. Karol Rosenberry, of Wilmington Township, played a piano solo; Joan Trenary gave a reading entitled, "Dissatisfaction," followed with a song by the Trenary Sisters. From the Land Sunshine. . . . .

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.
Jan. 9, 1944.

To Our Indiana Friends:

Before leaving I promised to write a few letters for the paper. We left Ft. Wayne at 2:30 Thursday morning by the way of Cincinnati, Knoxville, Atlanta, Macon, and Albany, arrived at Tarpon Springs at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The trains were crowded to their capacity. We changed trains at Cincinnati, the only change in the entire trip. I had to sit on the suit case for fifty miles, the rest had seats scattered about through the train. After leaving Knoxville we finally got together and rode the rest of the distance together. The weatherr Friday was ideal but Saturday it rained in torrents probbly three or four inches and today (Sunday) it is quite cool.

Living quarters in the South are crowded to the limit. Our cabins are in a section where no war factories or camps are located. Many of the tourist cabins have been moved to places like Tampa where they rent for unbelievable sums.

Where we stay prices of living quarters have not advanced much. We pay fifteen dollars per month of course. They are not elaborate but they are comfortable.

Oranges are not plentiful as in other years selling at about $1.25 per bushel. The grape fruit trees seem to be loaded.

Fishing has not been so good but Fred caught a fine string of yellow tails last Friday. We had some for supper Friday and they were sure good. Will not be able to tell you many experiences because we have no no car to take long trips. People here are hampered by rationing and regulations as well as in the North.

Fred and O. K. with their wives send best wishes to their Northern friends.

Your truly
Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart.

SUSPENDED DRIVING PRIVILEGES OF INDIANA MOTORISTS

Driving privileges of 630 Hoosier motorists were ordered suspended in December for failure to post security following an accident, as required by the new Indiana motor vehicle safety responsibility law.

This was announced by Don F. Stiver, state public safety director, in making available statistics covering the first full month of operation since the law was promulgtee.

"With the transportation problem becoming more acute each day, I believe automobile owners soon will recognise the law's value in protecting them from undue loss of the use of their cars," asserted Mr. Stiver. He pointed out that universal liability insurance coverage protects motor vehicle owners and, at the same time, assures speedier action in getting the car back in service.

Of the total of 1,782 suspension orders, he said, 1,152 drivers since have complied with the law by filing proof of financial responsibility. This is done by attaching Form SR-21 to the driver's accident report, showing liability insurance was held at the time of the accident. In no case should the insurance policy be sent in with the accident report in place of Form SR-21.

Mr. Griffith explained that the buyer of a vehicle is to give the original copy of the receipt to the State Motor Vehicle Registrar when applying for a new registration certificate. The duplicate copy of the receipt and the tire inspection record are to be given by the buyer to his local board when he applies for a new gasoline ration for his car.

Without this receipt the board cannot issue a new gasoline ration.

While gasoline rations always had to be surrendered upon the sale of a vehicle, the plan of transferring receipts when a car is sold, and requiring that the receipt be presented at local boards when application is made for a new ration, will bring about greater compliance with regulations, Mr. Griffith said. Since more than 200,000 vehicles change hands each month throughout the country, full compliance with these regulations will prevent the possible diversion of substantial amounts of gasoline to wasteful or unlawful uses.

B. & O. WRECK SATURDAY NIGHT TEARS UP TRACK

About 6.55 P. M. Saturday, a B. & O. Co. car oil special traveling east, about 40 miles per hour, had a car of of borax, 27 cars from the engine, leave the rails immediately east of the Myers Elevator at St. Joe, causing the immediate following car loaded with ground glass to derail.

The entire train with the two derailed cars, miraculously traveled to and practically across the St. Joe river bridge, distance of nearly one mile, before coming to a stop. The caboose of the train stopped on the bridge.

What prevented the derailed cars from becomming uncoupled from the balance of the train, perhaps tioping over causing following cars to derail and pile up, is not exactly known, unless it was due to the fact that section foreman Ridgway has a road bed that is smoother and more solid than a new cement highway.

Cause of the accident was deemed to be a broken truck frame and arch bar on the car of borax.

St Joe river bridge was damaged considerably. 115 new ties on the bridge were broken. The job of installing the new ties on the bridge had been completed Saturday night about two hours before the accident happened. Luckily the old ties were still on the grounds and used to replace the broken new ties.

The wreck train from Garrett was ordered immediately after the accident happened. Section crews from Sherwood, Mark Center, Hicksville St. Joe and Auburn and three bridge gangs worked all night Saturday night and all day Sunday repairing the damages to bridge and track.

The eastbound track was restored to service at restricted speed about 3 P. M. Sunday. Bridge crews, section crews, and wreck train completed their work about 6 P. M.

The westbound track was not blocked and was used to handle traffic in both directions between St. Joe and Hicksville. In order to run eastbound trains over the westbound main, telegraph instruments were installed in the depot at St. Joe, and train dispatcher Trainer came out from Garrett, and handled train orders and instructions all night and was relieved by Agent Schendel, who remained on duty all day Sunday.

There were no serious delays to passenger trains and fast freights. But owing to the large volume of trains handled in both directions over the westbound main, the work of the wrecking crew and repair gang was hindered considerably as it was necessary for the derrick to work off of the westbound main.

Damage to the bridge was estimated at $1,700, to the track, $200, and to the freight cars, $600. G. W. Moss of Garrett, was engineer of the train and Guy Dissenbaugh, of Willard, was the conductor.

God and An Oyster

When God made the oyster.
He guaranteed him absolute economic and social security.
He built him a house, a shell, to protect him from his enemies.
When hungry, the oyster simply opens up his shell and the food rushes in.
God made an eagle, He said, "The blue sky is the limit.
Go build your own house."
The eagle built his house on the highest mountain crag, where storms threaten him every day.
For food he flies through miles of rain, snow and sleet and wind.
The eagle—and not the oyster—is the emblem of America.

DELAY IN GETTING LICENSE PLATE FORMS IN MAILS

This request is made by Rue J. Alexander, Secretary of State, and Commissioner of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, in a statement issued last week. Mr. Alexander explained that, while January 15 is the date set for license plates to go on sale in all branch offices and the main office in the State House, all applications will not be in the mail until February 1st. He pointed out that an inordinate delay was encountered by the department, in receiving these printed forms from the printer.

"Tell the public," said Mr. Alexander, "that 1943 registrations, and licenses are valid until March 1st, and we shall have all applications in the motorists' hands in ample time for 1944 registration. We are working day and night to send out these forms, as we receive them from the printer, at the rate of nearly 100,000 a day. Applicants who are obtaining a plate on a newly acquired motor vehicle, and those who have received the printed forms may apply on and after January 15."

THE FARM OF THE FUTURE TO BE A FACTORY

The farmer of the post-war period will be an industrialist as well as a producer of raw materials for industrial purposes, Dr. Howard Doane, of St. Louis, predicts in the December issue of Farm Journal.

Doane, the nation's leading professional manager of farms, with 350,000 acres under his supervision, says: "The next and biggest step in agriculture is establishment of fixed and movable processings plants, handling agricultural products grown near by, which will extract, compress, dehydrate, refrigerate, concentrate, and fabricate these farm commodities

"Most of this will be first-step processing only. Much of the product—often 50 per cent to 80 per cent of it—need never leave the community. The farmer will be his own best customer. For example, increasing soybeans, 80 per cent of the product is oil meal needed locally for feed. Why ship it somewhere, get it tangled up in a maze of distribution and selling, then ship it back?

"The rest of the product will usually go to city industry for further processing into refined and precision goods. For instance, the soybean oil, which may end up in cooking fat or soap."

Products which offer the best possibilities for first-processing in rural industries are those which are bulky, full of water, or perishable; or those where a large number of handlers have crowded between producer and consumer; according to Carroll P. Streeter, associate editor of Farm Journal.

Some of the processing will be done on individual farms, some by farmers' co-operatives, some by private companies, including rural branches of city industries.

Doane calls the new program "vertical diversification," explaining this to mean that, instead of raising many kinds of crops, known as "horizontal diversification," the farmer concentrates on his most profitable crop, and makes it as nearly ready for the consumer as he can.

"With horizontal diversification," he says, "a farmer stays a raw producer and in any line the raw producer, unless tightly organized, is the poorest-paid man in the picture, whether he be farmer, fisherman or wood-chopper.

"That's because there is such a multitude of producers, all competing one with another, and all forced to go on whether the price is high or low.

"We face three surpluses sooner or later after the war ends," Doane claims. "First will be a surplus of young people looking for jobs. More of them want to live in rural America than have ever been able to find opportunity there. They will be the most mechanically-trained young folks we ever had—well able to run the machinery in rural industries.

"Second will be a surplus of certain agricultural products. With less men, less machinery, less fertilizer, less everything, farmers last year produced at an all-time high. What will they be able to do when they get enough of all of these again, on top of further advances in farming methods?

"We won't be able to export much, in the face of increasing agricultural competition, all over the world, nor will we go on indefinitely with a free feeding program for distressed nations. Rather we will help them build their own agriculture. It will be cheaper for us and better for them. All of this means that from here on, farmers will have to depend on something more than mere raw production.

"Third will be a surplus of factory space, which could well be turned to making the new machines and tools farmers need for producing and processing farm crops."

Vertical diversification is already being applied successfully at the 7,000 acre Bobshaw plantation in Mississippi, one of the many extensive agricultural operations under Doane's management.

The Culture Club will meet Jan. 19th at the home of Mrs. John Dilley.

★ HAVE YOU BOUGHT YOUR Extra BONDS

4TH WAR LOAN

THIS is what we've been working for all along. This is the year to hit and hurt the enemy. This is the time when everything you do counts double. If we all get together and do all we can, we'll be over this hurdle and well on our way to complete and crushing victory.

No question about the men in uniform—they'll go "all out." But can we count on you to back them all the way? Your quota is where you work—you've got to buy your War Bonds and then buy more, until every last loose cent you have is fighting. Tough? Of course, it's tough—unless it is a sacrifice you're simply not doing your share!

Make the sacrifice now—buy more than the extra $100 Bond your country counts on you for—winning the war is worth any sacrifice you make. Besides, you aren't giving, you're lending to America! You'll get back every dollar you invest in War Bonds, with interest.

An extra $100 War Bond now is the minimum for everybody—can't we count on you for more?

4TH WAR LOAN

This sticker in your window means you have bought 4th War Loan securities.

"You mean I don't need any coupons for electricity?"

THAT'S RIGHT, Mrs. Higgins.

Not that it's any less important than food, or fuel, or shoes. In fact, electric power has rightly been called the life-blood of war production.

But our government does ask all of us to use electricity wisely. Even though there's no shortage in sight, the making of electricity requires manpower, fuel, transportation and critical materials—things on which war has first call today.

So, be as careful with electricity as with coupons. Use all you need—but need all you use.

A FUTURE PROBLEM

It may not be too early for St. Joe to worry about the traffic conduct that will be an after the war problem. Not having forgotten the toll taken of lives before the war, due to carelessness in driving, we are probably unanimous in agreeing that there is always something to worry about in this line. It is suggested that the conditions will be worse because of the fighting men who will be so accustomed to danger that when they get behind a wheel they will really "let go." There are the many civilian drivers who have felt restrained by the eye-dropper method of tank-filling and when they no longer need reach for their gas coupons, they will forget discretion. It may be that we will have to set new standards for driving tests and make some new laws to cover the condition when it does arrive.

ENROUTE TO VICTORY

Do you enjoy the sight of happy, carefree children having fun?

So do we . . .

Even when the complex—sometimes they seem unsolvable—problems of today beset us, the honest grin of a four-year-old boy, or the shy smile of a little girl reaffirms the validity of our way of life and the need for still further effort to ensure its preservation.

To the People of this Community

YOU ARE IMPORTANT

There is no such thing as a "little" investment in the Fourth War Loan.

Your $25 or $50 or $100 Extra War Bond may not have great importance in your mind in making up a 5½ billion dollar total for individuals.

4TH WAR LOAN

But multiply yourself by 130,000,000 and then you see in real perspective how truly great each citizen becomes in massing national strength against the Nazis and the Japs.

Capt. Maurice Witherspoon, Navy chaplain aboard the Carrier Wasp when she sank, tells of a rescued wounded sailor, who, as he regained consciousness, asked: "Did I do my best?"

That's the only question you, too, have to ask yourself when you decide the extent of your personal participation in the Fourth War Loan.

There undoubtedly will be large single purchases of War Bonds in this community, but yours—if it is "your best" will deserve equally the red, white and blue shield you are privileged to display in the window of your home.

So "Let's All Back the Attack."

Invention for Private Smith

Private Smith is a private in the Quartermaster Corps. The Quartermaster Corps provides Pvt. Smith everything he needs for sleeping, eating, marching, and keeping in good condition.

Before Pearl Harbor we didn't have much equipment at all. In fact we didn't even know what kind of equipment to have.

But the Nazis did. For years they had been making equipment for all sorts of climates from Alaska to Africa.

But we soon caught up with them for our country is very inventive.

Now Pvt. Smith has everything he needs to fight with.

The first big problem was food. Now we have dried foods for every part of the world. Milk, eggs, cheese, vegetables, and soups are made into a hard brick-like fashion. They have butter that won't melt even in the tropics, and cheese spread that won't sour.

They have very appetizing rations packed in waterporof, indestructible packages. They have candy and cigarettes in each ration.

The next problem was clothing. The soldier boys had complained about their shoes rotting so quickly. So we invented the "jungle boot." They are rubber soled boots, and they are two pounds lighter than ordinary shoes. They have nylon strings in them that won't rot. They wear about five times as long as the others did.

In the Arctic Regions they have outer garments that weigh only about 15 pounds. They also have mosquito-proof jungle hammocks, water-proof nylon tents, soap that will serve as shaving soap or for cleaning the teeth. They have pills that purify jungle water; glassware that will not chip, crack nor break; handy talkies, and many more articles that will help win this war. Do you think these wartime inventions will help our peacetime living?

—Carol Rosenbury.

Setting Up the Confederacy

When the Charleston convention adjourned, it was voted that the same delegates and those from such other states as should join South Carolina should meet February 4, 1861, at Montgomery, Ala. In that city the government of the Confederate States of America was organized, with Jefferson Davis as President and Alexander H. Stephens as Vice President. The Capital was located at Richmond, Va. The Confederate Congress, at the height of its power, numbered 26 Senators, including two each for a short time from Missouri and Kentucky, and 106 Representatives. There were four sessions of the provisional Congress, the first assembling on February 4 and the last on November 18, 1861. The permanent Congress had two sessions. The first assembly began on February 18, 1862, it held four sessions adjourned same date, in 1864, the second May 2, 1864, and held two sessions, concluding its work on March 18, 1865.

Physical Education 9 and 10

For the past five weeks our physical education class has been playing games on Thursday and on Tuesdays we do folk dancing. We played the Virginia Reel in the American style and the Sellengers Round in the English style along with other folk dances. We enjoyed it very much.

The Sellengers Round was popular in Queen Elizabeth's time. The tune is thought to be one of the oldest now in existence. It is mentioned by Taylor in his book called "The World Runs on Wheels," as the "Beginning of the World."

Here is a description of this old dance in Playford. "The dancers take hands, and go around twice and back again; then all set, turn and repeat; then lead all forward and back, and repeat; two singles and back, set and turn single, and repeat; sides all, and repeat; armsall and repeat." It is danced as often in circles as in parallel lines.

This dance is included in many May Day customs, and is said to date back to 1450. It seems to have been a favorite tune to which villagers danced about a Maypole.

The folks back home sure keep up our morale over here by writing letters often. I sure appreciate all the fine Christmas cards I received from everyone and hope to hear from them again. We have a lot to do but usually find time to write home.

Thanks again for the Christmas cards, and will see you all in "44."

LOCAL PEOPLE FIGURE IN TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS

Three young people were injured, one seriously, as the result of a two-car collision at 6:25 P. M. Thursday in front of the Glenn Cole farm located two miles north of St. Joe on State Road No. 1.

The injured were Raymond Gift, 23, of Butler, lacerations of the head and face; Maxine Jennings, 19, of Edgerton, O., his sister-in-law, possible head concussion, chest and other head injuries, and Gerald Means, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Means of just south of St. Joe, lacerations and slight elbow injuries. Gift and the girl, who were on their way home from Ft. Wayne, were given emergency first aid treatment at Butler by Dr. Clayton Hathaway, when they were hurriedly taken by Pastor Frank Stevenson, who was a guest at the Cole home at the time of the accident.

According to the police, Means was driving a 1933 Chevrolet coupe and he drove the car out onto the highway from the Cole farm driveway and started to turn south. Gift was driving a 1937 Ford sedan north on the highway. The Cole driveway is at the bottom of a hill. The front of Gift's machine struck the left rear wheel of the Ford and both cars smashed together side by side. The Chevrolet then spun around once and stopped on the berm of the road facing east. The Ford car spun twice and stopped in the southbound lane of the highway. Neither car overturned. Both machines are total wrecks, damage to the Chevrolet being estimated at $350, and to the Ford $650.

State Patrolman Jack Nye, Sheriff Paul Miller, and Deputy Sheriff Frank Carpenter, all of Auburn, investigated the accident.

About a half hour after the accident Means passed out completely due to shock, at the Cole home. His parents were called and as soon as he was able was taken to Butler for further examination, and only minor injuries were reported.

Four St. Joe men were taken to St. Joseph Hospital in Fort Wayne Saturday evening for treatment of injuries received when the car driven by Earl Coburn, skidded side ways and rolled over three times, on the Schwartz road, across the river at Leo and then south, as he was taking his two sons, John and Robert to work at Ft. Wayne. They were accompanied by Argil Richmond as a rider making the trip as company for Earl.

It seems that a tire blew out throwing the car side ways. The injuries were: John had a wrist broken and ankle sprain, Earl badly cut on face and head, Robert was cut and bruised and Argil has a broken shoulder. Mrs. Richmond was called to Ft. Wayne Saturday night, and John and Robert were able to be brought home while her husband and Earl were not returned until Monday afternoon.

Because of the crowded condition at the hospital the boys thought they could be cared for better at home, so they signed their own releases.

The automobile, a Buick coupe, was badly damaged and was brought home Sunday by Wilbur Yeiser and James Reed.

HOME ECONOMIC CLUB

On Thursday, Jan. 20, the Spencer Township Home Economics Club met with Lois Fisher, with Jennie Walter as assistant hostess. 14 members and one guest, Mrs. Irma Sunday were present.

The meeting was opened with the club repeating the Club Creed followed by the song of the month, "Old Folks at Home." The response for the roll call this month was "What I enjoyed most for Christmas." The business session opened with the handing out of the new programs. This portion of the meeting was closed with the singing of another of Stephen Foster's songs "Old Black Joe."

Ruth Baker and Bessie Witt gave very interesting accounts of their recent trip to the Purdue Round-Up. Edna Goldsmith gave her poultry report followed by our first auction of the year. A luncheon of chicken salad with saltines and potato chips, cake, fruit salad and coffee was served by the hostesses.

—LOCAL SCHOOL NOTES—

On the illuminated bulletin board in the hall at school is the following: "Sure signs of wisdom and success are cheerfulness, Self-confidence and simplicity."

The Senior Girls defeated the Junior Girls in basketball with a score of 18-10 Friday noon. Jean Hurni, Joan Diederich, Pat Carpenter, Bessie Baughman, and Beverly Swander played on the Senior team. April Bowser, Leora Wilmot, Joyce Cook, and Jean Billow.

Local theatre-goers are promised a rare treat when the Junior Class presents the lovely romantic drama "The Patchwork Quilt," by Artnur Jearne on the evening of Feb. 3 in the High School Gymnasium. Ever since the moving picture of "Little Women" has made such a tremendous success, clean, sweet, plays of romance and heart interests have been the vogue. "The Patchwork Quilt" embraces all of these elements besides adding a touch of authenticity and excitement in the scenes wherein the hero goes to the World War, and when the Armistice is signed. This play has been chosen for presentation by the local group because of its novel plot and human characters and its adaptability to the talents of the local cast.

The History II Class studied "The Domination of Business" last week. Tariffs, pensions, and the surplus were discussed. Donald Gall, Bessie Baughman, Eugene Gee, and June Strong took part in the debate: Resolved: That high tariff fosters monopoly. Cal Hull, Norma Beckwith, Joyce Cook, Carmen Freeburn, and Rosemary Yeiser gave the debate: Resolved: That although the purpose of a protective tariff is to keep goods out of the country, its effect is to decrease exports. Beverly Swander, April Bowser, Maxine Converse, Joan Diederich, Virginia George, and Jean Hurni, took part in the debate, Resolved: That Hawaii should become the forty-ninth state. Gerald Means gave a floor talk on pensions and Bill Billow gave a floor talk on the Samoan Incident.

Lee Bragg has withdrawn from school since he had enough credits to graduate at the end of the first semester. He is going to take drafting and electrical engineering in Ft. Wayne. Lee has been an outstanding senior this year as president of the senior class and also student manager.

Dwight D. Eisenhower

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander-in-chief is 53 years old. He spent his early days in Texas and Kansas. He had five husky brothers and they grew up on a farm where they shared their chores of milking, tending chickens, gardening, and cooking.

He was a good athlete and a good student in school. In World War I he won the Distinguished Service Medal. After this war he felt sure that the peace terms would result in another war so he studied military history and geography. Gen. Eisenhower served as General MacArthur's special assistant in the Philippine Islands.

Roman Funerals

After the Roman dies a notice is given to the neighbors and friends. In the funeral procession his tomb is carried by his sons and relatives. At the head of the procession a band of musicians went, followed by people singing dirges, then jesters imitating the dead man himself.

The funeral oration was held in the Forum. A son or relative recited the virtues and achievements of the dead person. It was usually false and much exaggerated. Arriving at the tomb there were ceremonies: the consecration of the resting place, the casting of the earth on the remains, and the purification of all polluted by death.

"Nine Days of Sorrow," began with the burial by the immediate family. At the end a sacrifice was given. The Romans thought much of their dead especially the funerals of those of sufficient consequence were very elaborate and ceremonial.

Her husband associated with another woman and when she protested about his conduct he threatened to kill her, Emma Freeburn, of St. Joe, charges in a divorce complaint filed in the DeKalb Circuit Court against Glenwood Freeburn.

The couple lived together more than 28 years, having been married Dec. 30 1915, and separating Monday. The plaintiff says the defendant stayed out nights and sometimes was away all night.

NEW RULING MADE IN SELLING USED CARS

Motorists and automobile dealers of DeKalb County have been reminded by Mr. Griffith, chairman of the local War Price and Rationing Board, that the new plan designed to assure the return of outstanding gasoline ration coupons for all new and used automobiles and trucks that are sold is now effect.

Persons buying new or used vehicles from anyone, whether a dealer or a private individual, are required to obtain a duplicate receipt from the seller in order to be eligible for a gasoline ration. Mr. Griffith explained.

"Under the plan, the owner of a vehicle intending to sell it must return to the board, in person or by mail, all unused ration coupons issued for the vehicle," he said. "After it receives the coupons, the board will issue in duplicate a 'receipt for surrendered gasoline rations.' Both copies of this receipt together with the tire inspection record are to be given by the seller to the person buying the car or truck."

Like private individuals who sell their cars, automobile dealers are to obtain duplicate receipts from each car they have for sale, and will deliver both copies of the receipt to the buyer when a car is sold.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The local Lions Club met at the K. of P. hall Monday evening, and greatly enjoyed a "drag-in" feed. Phil Smith got out his musical saw and favored the men with a fine selection.

Educational Supt. Rectenwall made his part of the program short but instructive. Feb. 5th will be the next scrap paper day. At the Feb. 14th meeting each Lion will have to bring 25 lbs. of paper to the Spencerville Methodist Church or be fined 25c. Our Lion secretary, Dale Wicoff, gave a talk in keeping with Founder's Day.

When the local club was organized there were 22 charter members and eleven of these remain active. Quite a number of them have come in since the first of the year. The charter members present each fittingly responded to Pres. Leighty's request that they tell what prompted them to affiliate with the Lions.

Lion H. C. Willis, of Waterloo, was present to install the new memebers. Clyde thinks he is kind of a "daddy" to the local club and our Lions do not object in the least to being fathered by the dean of the newspaper fraternity of DeKalb County.

The new members who were received by Lion Willis were Glen Cole, Ed. Lake, Donald Kinsey, Rev. L. B. Sharp, Hollis Dilley, William Staman, C. O. Duker, and Ralph Keeler.

The ceremony of receiving new members is impressive and obligated those coming in to be of service to their community and their fellowmen. The speaker also added some wholesome advice. He reminded them that if they hope to get anything out of Lionism they will have to put something into it.

Believe it or not, an old fashioned testimony meeting was held, led by Pres. Leighty. The members acknowledged the benefit of being a Lion is of great value to the individual and the pleasure gained by being of some service to their brothers.

Lion Zuber, our naturalist, gave a very interesting talk, noting the unusual in animal life and illustrated his remarks with specimens, of which he has a large number.

Did you know our Tailtwister is an orator—he is.

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.
1-12-'44.

To My Indiana Friends:

I would like eto tell you in this letter about the birds. I have never seen the robins as thick as they are here. The palm trees bear a little fruit that looks like a wild cherry. This contains a hard brown seed. The robins feed on this fruit and thousands of them inhabit the palm groves around our camp making sweet music for us.

Another bird flies over our camp at dusk each night from the mainland toward the gulf, it is as large as a turkey buzzard and its music sounds like the bark of a dog. This weird noise is not as pleasant as the song of the robin.

Sea gulls and pelicans are not as numeerus as in former years.

This afternoon I went over near the gulf to watch the aeroplanes practicing, shooting at a target above the gulf.

An aeroplane flies out pulling what seems to be a huge white balloon. It is hard to say just how far back of the plane the big bag is but I would say two hundred feet. After reaching a far height other planes dart toward and shoot at the bag with machine guns. It sure gives one a picture of what is going on in Europe.

Fred Wilmot and wife are here in Port Richey. They are in an apartment up the river about half a mile. We eare all well and happy.

Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

We'd really have something to worry about if all the political candidates would walk out on us.

We are becoming a nosey people. It has reached the place that when you see folks driving around you wonder where they got the gas.

Women in St. Joe won't need to worry about their spring millinery. All they need do is move the bunch of flowers from one side of the head to another.

SPEAKING OF UNITY

The toughest road lies ahead, they say. We are not to take certain gains as proof of an early climax to war, for there is a struggle ahead. But still, many men turn their efforts to the peace to come and speak of the unity that must be established between the nations who make the terms. We COULD warm up for the peace terms and the unity by trying it out here at home, especially in Washington. Congress and the Administration fights lustily over subsidies and taxation. There is bickering on the soldier voting. Legislating for air fields for the back-home vote, politics plays house. There are the major parties vieing for first place, the threat of the Southern Democratic Senators to form their own wing from the Northern branch. We read of other cases but this lists a few factors that might lead us all to believe that unity begins at home!

THEY SHOULD KNOW

There are ever those around St. Joe who seem to drive cars just about as much as they did before gas rationing. Then some person will remark that they drive their car so little they they might as well sell it. The newspapers issue a statement about a current shortage of gasoline in a southern state and the society column mentions that so and so is running hither and yon and you ask your self questions. You know that a single Flying Fortress on a bombing mission from England to Berlin burns up about 1600 gallons of gas on the round trip, but do those people who are driving north and south, east and west? That amount of gasoline would fill the tanks of 97 American automobiles allowing about 17 gallons to a car. General Doolittle told us that one day's operations of our Air Force in the Mediterranean area took 1,100,000 gallons of gas and that fills nearly 70,000 autos. At home to train a pilot it takes 12,500 gallons to get him ready for war. The tanks of an armored division use more than 10,000 gallons in driving 100 miles and its a long way where we are going. One thousand Flying Fortresses use 2,500,000 gallons in a single six-hour mission. Since we are not thru with war as yet, it seems that people here at home should remember that it takes a heap of saving on our part to make a heap of strafing on theirs.

A BUTTON FOR SERVICE

A friend mentions a story he heard of a case of a boy who had seen active service and been wounded and honorably discharged, was insulted on the street by a man who felt such a healthy-looking specimen of manhood should be in uniform. There are many such cases where men, not physically able to serve their country have been berated because they didn't wear a uniform. You know of instances where men who stuck by the plow to help feed the world, were sniffed at by folks who probably haunt a War Bond to their name! Side-walk critics can make a young boy out of uniform sick with embarrassment and shocked at such a lack of understanding. One chap who was wounded during the early days of war and has been honorably discharged, tells how men in uniform have called "politician" after him, and others in uniform have asked, "why aren't YOU in uniform, buddy?" Canada has a large sized badge that is worn on the coat lapel which plainly answers the inquiring public, which wins approval rather than raising thoughtless questions. The Canadian badge puts a stop to embarrassing experiences that are occurring all over the country. Perhaps you think there is no such need for a button like this in our country, that we wouldn't call "coward" and show such intolerance as was displayed in World War I. But human nature doesn't change at the Canadian border!

AN INDUCEMENT

Now that waste fats, turned in to the government, bring the housekeeper points as well as money, it is hoped that more fat will go to war. It was necessary to devise some way to interest more housewives to turn in the waste fat since the fact alone that by so doing they were bringing destruction on the enemy and help to their own men, wasn't enough. The small amount of money paid for each pound of fat didn't entice them. Came the plan that for each pound of fat one receives not only the 4 cents per pound, but also two BROWN points. It is hoped that this will encourage more women to save the waste fats and make an effort to turn them in. The points also reward those St. Joe housewives who have been faithful from the start and all along have been converting kitchen waste into bullets.

IF YOU CARE

Scarcely a spot that hasn't had its seige of flu, the death rate from the disease not being of epidemic proportions but at least enough to warn us that influenza can spread in intensity. We have not finished with winter colds and germs and those who have had a touch of flu or averted having it, can still get more and worse. The epidemic of flu that visited us during World War I has not had an opportunity to catch up this time and we in St. Joe and Spencerville will take care to prevent it doing so. Protect ourselves by getting enough fresh air and sunshine, drink plenty of clean water, eat wholesome food, dress for sufficient warmth and get enough rest, and of course keep away from other's colds. Prevent rather than cure.

FEWER SCHOOL BOOKS

The paper shortage faces publishers of text books and educators wonder what effect it will have on our schools. The contents of the present ones being altered to meet war demands as, for instance, English texts stress the crisp language of military commands, history deals more strongly with preparation for citizenship, physic courses entail a line of learning that it needed in army life. The demand is great for maps and geopraphical texts, for works dealing with the lives and customs of our Allies and Southern neighbors. Vocational training is being stressed and many new books are printed that relate to electricity, radio work and machinery. Lack of school books would hinder our educational plans and interfere with proper instruction. The United States has the best text books in the world and we hope a curtailment of them will not put us in second place.

A REAL SCRAPBOOK

We pass on this suggestion of a reader and since there is hardly a family hereabouts who hasn't someone in the armed forces, it might be a welcome hint. There is often much in the way of home town news that might escape you when writing letters to lads away from home. There are lots of intimate items that would mean interesting reading to the boys. If they don't receive the paper they are opt to miss the news, so why not make a scrapbook and fill it with clippings from your paper? Make the book interesting with ticket stubs of entertainments and put notations underneath. Glue in athletic programs, schedules, list family happenings that will bring a laugh. Make the book sort of a working diary and give a heap of pleasure to a homesick soldier. See the new book styles at News office.

AS THEY FIGURE IT

The war to be over by Christmas, said some. The war to be over by the New Year, said others. There are those who insist upon an early spring settlement and you haven't forgotten those folks who way back yonder insisted that Germany couldn't fight a war because she couldn't finance one? You might call on the prognosticators for an early peace and say they are optimists hopeful in wishing.

We are learning that those who thought Germany would be all washed up "in a few weeks" were mistaken and that the ones who predicted that Germany had collapsed within months ago, were wrong as time has proven. There are hopeful signs that all is not well in Germany through our repeated bombings, but the foe continues to fight. Though there may be a weakening the battle is not won for us. Take the guesses of a few correspondents who are right on the job, closer to the actual scenes than are we, and you will find that there is plenty of heavy fighting ahead. A correspondent in India predicts Germany will fall in the summer of 1944 and Japan in 1946 if we are lucky! From London a brighter view of peace by the spring in 1944, but not with Japan. From Cairo comes a correspondent's guess of the early summer of '44 and from Switzerland the autumn of that year. Moscow correspondent suggests late in 1944 and from Honolulu there is no prediction for Germany but that it will take from three to six years to defeat Japan. They do not know, any of these correspondents, but here in St. Joe we should mentally conduct our war as something to be done today, and pray for an early peace.

YOU CAN HELP

Why don't people who do not need to travel, stay home and give transportation a chance! This is as true of city busses and street cars as of railroad and plane travel. Late busses crowded by office and factory workers while housewives down town to a late afternoon movie take seats. A woman stands wearily in the aisle of a street car after working over a machine all day as two women in a seat beside her discuss the difficulty of shopping today, and of the reduction in food portions they noticed at the dining room in the hotel where their club met for luncheon that noon! Passenger traffic has about doubled in a year. Railroads face a serious situation for repair and replacements are difficult. A troop train starts off every six minutes of the day, a freight starts off every four seconds—and all handled with practically the same equipment as before the war. Let us cooperate and not tie up traffic in transportation if we can help.

KILL OR BE KILLED

United States Marines paid the stiffest price in human life per square yard for the capture of Tarawa, vital Pacific outpost.

It was kill or be killed. Your boys did not flinch when they ran into the deadliest firepower along the beaches of this important Gilbert Island stronghold.

4TH WAR LOAN

This assault, bloody and costly, is one of the many which must be made before Tokyo and Berlin are pounded into dust and ashes.

What are you doing to back up the boys? Remember these are boys from this very community, perhaps from your very home. Any home in your neighborhood which today does not display the treasury's red, white and blue 4th War Loan Shield proclaiming "We bought Extra War Bonds" is not backing the attack. Every Extra War Bond you buy becomes a direct fighter against Japan and Germany. If you could but see one man die on the battlefield, you would not count the cost of your slight sacrifices to buy Extra War Bonds to make each succeeding assault less costly in the lives of our boys.

You can't afford NOT to buy Extra Bonds in the 4th War Loan if you would help these boys.

CHICKS AS THEY ARE RECEIVED BY CLUBS

Announcement has been made by the Division of Fish and Game of the State Conservation Department of an increase in the prices to be paid to local conservation clubs throughout Indiana in 1944 for the release of quail and pheasant.

The brooder contract payments in 1944 will be as follows:

For birds not less than eight weeks old, 50 cents per bird.

For birds liberated between the age of six and eight weeks, 35 cents a bird.

Payment will not be made for birds released at an age of less than six weeks, and it was announced that the total amount to be paid to any one club shall not exceed $80 for a single brooder, and $160 for a double brooder, regardless of the number of birds liberated. conservation clubs operated 797 electric brooders to take care of this work it was necessary for the game farms of the division to handle over 275,000 eggs in order to provide 76,580 day-old pheasant chicks and 67,937 day-old quail chicks for the club brooders, and to distribute over 60,000 eggs.

Indiana's game bird program has been very extensive during recent years and the cost of operation has been increasing annually.

During this year the Division of Fish and Game will furnish to each club 200 pheasant or quail eggs, and will pay the clubs at the rate of 50 cents for each bird liberated at an age of not less than eight weeks. The total payment under this contract will not exceed $50. The same provisions will be in effect for junior clubs and 4-H clubs.

SURE, there is plenty of electricity. It's cheap and it's not rationed, but you are right, soldier, it is not G.I. to waste it for production of electricity requires coal, oil, transportation, and other critical resources. Consequently, the Government has asked seven basic industries including the electrical industry to cooperate in a nation-wide program to conserve these resources.

The war has made extraordinary demands for power used in the manufacture of all the instruments of war from battleships to bullets. In spite of these demands we were ready when war began and have continued to provide the increased facilities necessary to take care of them. We have also been able to supply necessary civilian requirements for our product.

This Government program is simply a war on waste and there is no intention of curtailing the light you need for reading and working, or the current you need for cleaning, cooking, and refrigeration, but be careful to turn off all appliances when they are not actually in use. In the same way, offices, shops, and factories are asked to reduce ornamental and display lighting, but there should not be any lessening of light or service that is important to public safety, morale or production efficiency. For the duration remember this simple rule about electricity, "Use all you need, but need all you use."

Gus Has Competition Again

Now that future weather is no longer a military secret, Gus Groundhog is feeling the effects of competition. For the past couple of years newspaper and radio weather forecasts were banned for reasons of national security, and Gus had things pretty well his own way. He paid no attention to official edicts. This year his February 2 prognostication will be greeted with jeers instead of cheers. The official weatherman has come back into his own with the weather-conscious public.

OPA RULES ON FARM SLAUGHTERING POINTS

Twelve Red Stamps in war ration Book Four, with a total value of 120 points, were validated by the office of Price Administration for the buying of pork and other rationed meats from farmers, as announced by OPA.

This will give consumers ample ration points for buying meat — particularly pork — from farmers who want to slaughter their hogs on the farm and market them in the form of fresh meat.

OPA has always provided that the meat stamps in any one book could be used ahead of their regular validity dates for farm slaughter purchases. As relatively few points remain in Book 3, it is thought advisable to make some points from Book 4, good for this purpose.

The advance use of stamps, it is expected, does not give the individual who buys from a farm slaughterer a larger meat ration than anyone else. It merely allows the individual buying from a farmer to follow the normal practice of buying fairly large amounts at one time.

At the same time, it encourages farmers to slaughter on their farm, thus cutting down the number of hogs coming into the congested markets.

The Red stamps in Book 4 which may now be used for buying meat from farm slaughterers are those numbered "8" and letter from "A" through "M." These stamps are worth ten points each, making a total of 120 points.

In addition, the Brown stamps in war ration Book 3 may be used ahead of their regular validity dates when buying from farmers. This means that the 96 Brown points remaining in Book 3, which are for use between now and February 27, may be spent in one block when rationed meat is bought from a farmer.

OPA pointed out that consumers with lockers or other adequate storage space for meat can buy substantial amounts from farmers. One side of a carcass hog, weighing 80 pounds, would cost only 176 points at the present value of 2.2 points per pound. A 16 pound ham, purchased from a farm slaughterer at the current ration value of 5 points per pound, would cost only 80 points.

Individuals in a position to buy from farm slaughterers have a total of 216 points—120 from the twelve stamps in Book 4, and 96 from the remaining stamps in Book 3—which they may use. Unlike the Brown stamps, the Red stamps of Book 4 are worth 10 points each regardless of the number appearing on the face. These stamps will not be used by consumer in general until ration tokens are put into circulation next February 27.

The advance use of meat stamps is permitted only when purchases ar made from farm slaughterers and today's action does not affect housewives who buy from retailers, OPA appointed out.

New Jersey Farmer Sets Good Example

Describing his October feed subsidy as a "dole," Thomas C. Sanderson, Sussex County, Glenwood, N. J., dairy farmer, sent the entire amount to the Republican National Committee, Washington, D. C. With the check for $95.50, Mr. Sanderson sent a letter which read in part:

"I am sending this to your organization asking if you will please use the proceeds to elect some one with brains enough to understand the farmer's problem. I do not believe the consuming public wants to see my two boys, who are in the service and who volunteered, when they are released after the war, have to pay the cost of living in the form of taxes for these fellows who have stayed back home."

Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, continues in public addresses to declare that "the voters of America should cry out in clear and loud voices to force President Roosevelt to run for a fourth term in 1944." In a recent speech at Bridgeport, Conn., Communist Browder is credited with asserting that "the only important issue of the 1944 campaign will be the question of the support of the Teheran Declaration."

Obituary

In its "Milestones" column TIME magazine in its Jan. 3, 1944, issue chronicles this significant obituary notice:

"DEATH REVEALED. The New Deal, 10, after long illness; of malnutrition and desuetude. Child of the 1932 election campaign, the New Deal had four healthy years, began to suffer from spots before the eyes in 1937, and never recovered from the shock of war. Last week its father, President Roosevelt, pronounced it dead."

To which should be added: Voters of the USA will conduct an inquest during the 1944 presidential campaign as to the causes for the New Deal's death and will sign their attest to the death certificate at the November 7 election, when final interment will take place. May the deceased rest in peace.

CONGRESSIONAL QUOTES

Representative John Taber (R.) of New York: President Roosevelt has said "out damned spot" to the New Deal, but it will not out. However, the combination of organized minorities with a pipe-line to the Treasury which formerly moved under the name of the New Deal is thus left a nameless orphan. We Republicans like to be constructive rather than negative. And while the President says it is the ex-New Deal, that is a purely negative approach. Therefore, I suggest that from now until next November the description, with the addition of just two letters, might be "The Exit New Deal Party."

New Deal Waste Worries Iowa Farmer

In a single-handed effort to impress the New Deal with its wastefulness, an Iowa farmer has returned AAA parity payments totaling $900.27, received over a period of six years, to Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury. The farmer is Lester A. Crandall, father of 11 children, who operates a 300 acre farm near Dallas, Iowa.

Return of the checks received for cooperating with the AAA farm program is Crandall's method of "expressing disapproval of a wasteful administration whose policies can only lead to ruinous taxation." Accompanying the return of his 1943 AAA parity payment was a letter to Secretary Morgenthau in which Crandall stated:

"With our government borrowing from the future at an unprecedented rate, and public debt proven to be the greatest enemy of a free people I don't feel that I can use this kind of money at the present time. May I ask that this money be used directly in our war effort and not be used to corrupt the electorate."

From the Land of Sunshine. . .

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.
Jan. 2, 1944.

To my Indiana Friends:

This is Sunday, and what a day! Thermometer at 1:30 P. M. registers 70 degrees. Sun as bright as a June day in Indiana. We all went to Sunday school and church this morning, there was thirty-one present. The minister is from St. Petersburg. I tried to present the morning lesson.

At noon the camp had a dinner it was spread on the table in the Palm Grove at the rear of the camp. There were sixteen who partook in fact all who are camped here at present.

There are people here from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Massachusetts. Fred Wilmot and wife are not in our camp, but spend a great amount of time here. They are enjoying themselves.

The robins I told you about in a former letter have all disappeared, probably they are on the way North.

I think commercial fishing might be an interesting subject to tell you about. Of course, I do not know all about it, but I might tell you a few things I have learned. It is a hard, rough life and the men engaged in it are rough men. They leave the docks not more than three hundred feet from our camp. The men's names are Clark and Stevenson. The grandparents of these men started the industry here many years ago and the work has been handed down from father to son.

They leave the dock each evening at about 4 o'clock and go out in the gulf fifteen or twenty miles where they set their nets. Then all night long they run them, removing the fish. They sometimes find a large school which they hedge in with their nets. One night by this method they caught twenty-four tons. The varieies they usually catch are mullet and mackeral.

Mullet is a favorite fish in the South, they are vegitarians and can not be caught on a hook and line.

Fuel is scarce in Florida but we have plenty for our camp fire and cottages. You might say how did you get it. Two years ago when we were here we spied a large pine stub back in the waste land, but thot it was too big a task to cut it down so we left it. When we came down this year lo and behold it was still there.

The men in the camp took the saw and ax and downed it. We must have used two or three quarts of oil to keep the saw from sticking, the stub was twenty-five feet high and eighteen inches through at the base, it was a tough job when you know it was almost solid resin. This wood will supply the camp and eight stoves for more than a month. They sell wood here by the strand, this being about a cord at six dollars and fifty cents.

I am safe in saying the stub we cut was worth at least twenty dollars. I hope this finds you all well as we are.

Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

CONCORD TWP. P. T. A.

While the P. T. A. was late in organizing this year, the January meeting indicated that the organization is now in full swing. The program, under the leadership of June Baker, was especially entertaining and worth while and a splendid spirit of cooperation between parents and teachers prevailed.

The newly appointed Project Committee was: Carl Carpenter, chairman, Mrs. Trenary and Ralph Sechler.

At the February meeting, Feb. 15, we are having a basket supper in the gym at 6:45 P. M. All parents and adults interested in the school are urged to be present with well filld baskets and complete table service for themselves and families. Remember we are to be hosts to the faculty and their families at the supper hour. Following this, the faculty with the aid of their pupils will present a program to the patrons.

This is to be the Big meeting of the year and the executive committee is eager for its complete success.

THE SUPREME COURT

Celebrating February 1 as the birthday of the Supreme Court doesn't mean many years in the lifetime of a nation. This court was established in 1789 however, and that makes it stand the test of our national history. Washington, who named the six judges to the first court said of the body, "the keystone of our political fabric" and then it had little of the power it has today and less of the respect that it has gained through the years. It serves us by playing a role so important in our lives that it guides our destiny for today and tomorrow. The Supreme Court cannot legislate and create laws yet the justices of this court interpret, change or declare invalid, laws in which they do not believe. As a nation grows older it changes, its beliefs, its justices opinions. May this body, strong and powerful, interpret liberty and democracy through right dealing that we may ever honor its founding.

IT ALL HELPS

Standing peacefully and generally neglected in many a St. Joe backyard, is some kind of fruit tree. An old friend offering shade to children's play, it has been a total loss as far as production is concerned, perhaps because of the lack of care it has received. If you are now hoping to raise fruit for sale from such trees it will mean fertilizing, spraying and pruning will be a more rigid process than if you are planning upon getting the fruit growing for your own canning use. But why not plan to prune out dead wood, unproductive small branches and water sprouts, apply nitrogen fertilizer or chicken manure and do some spraying or dusting. It won't take many applications to get results and when the fruit is ripe you will regret that you had not started earlier to enjoy its bounty.

Strikes Help the Enemy

Strikes build up the morale of the enemy. Labor leaders say strikes do not have an effect because they are not that far reaching, but knowing how Germany would feature the fact that our government took over the railroads, is enough to convince us that the German people are aware of our troubles. Consider this sort of news if brought about by the Axis! With a good propaganda system to work on it would be optimistic about the enemy weakening and though tired of fighting and thinking of quitting, it would bolster our nerves and courage to the extent we would try hard to hold on longer since our enemy was fighting and striking within their own boundaries. We would welcome such news of our enemy and would they not of us? Sources say we are prolonging the war and taking American lives by such strikes. And it isn't a morale builder to our Allies, either!

The New Deal philosophy has been to "spend and spend, tax and tax, elect and elect." That is a phony set-up. As Mark Twain once said: "It's like feeding a dog on his own tail. He'll never get fat."

Queen of the Mardi Gras! In that sentence is all the romance of that most romantic of all spots in America—New Orleans. The title is annually coveted by every eligible young woman of good family in the Creole city. But what the layman does not know is the underlying tragedy, heartache and intrigue that such a position brings upon the one chosen for this high honor. This falls to the lot of the heroine in "Patchwork Quilt," the lovely romantic drama chosen by the Junior class for presentation in the High School Gymnasium tomorrow evening, Feb. 3 at 8 o'clock. The play is from the pen of Arthur Jearue, famous author of "Mignonette," "The Charm Shop," "The Garden of the Moon," and many of other stage successes. "The Patchwork Quilt" has just been released for amateur production and has met with instant favor because of its unusual plot, splendid characterizations and lovely atmosphere. Mrs. Buckner, who has directed the production, is most enthusiastic over the energetic reception of such a play by the local cast and is confident that the result will surprise the local audience. Those participating in the performance are: Gloria Zonker, Marjorie Haynes, June Strong, Rosemary Yeiser, Opal Kinsey, Leora Wilmot, Rolland Davis, Franklyn Shuff, April Bowser, Cal Hull, Donald Gall, and Leo Westrick.

The stage setting and properties were taken care of by Bob Rosenberry, Jean Billow, Dorothy Schrader, and Frances Miller, The costumes were selected and made by Freida Guilford.

The Leaf-Cutter Bee

Late in June the mother Leaf-cutter Bee is about her work. She is about the size of a honey bee, but not the same shape.

She cuts off pieces of the leaf in circular shapes, about as big as she is. She takes them back to her cave, which is just big enough for her to get in-side. The cave is made of mud and looks very much like a small cup. She puts the leaves around the wall, and at the end she puts a plug.

She gathers pollen from flowers, and stores it in the end of the cave, where later she lays an egg on the pollen, then puts a lid on the cup. These are called baskets. After she gets one done she has to put eight or ten on top of the first one. The mother bee is supposed to be one of the most intelligent animal mothers there is. The eggs in the basket hatch out grubs. The pollen the mother puts in the basket is supposed to keep the grubs living until it becomes a pupa.

The oldest grub is on the basket at the bottom of the line, so he has to wait until his younger brothers and sisters get out of their baskets.

Grand Canyon

There is one natural sight that never disappoints a traveler when he is at Grand Canyon. The greatest scene is "divine abyss" which the Colorado River has cut for itself thru the plateau region of Northwestern Arizona. The words canyon, chasm, and gorge mean the same thing.

Grand Canyon is a steep-sided, narrow valley, but it has a more or less level floor. It is two hundred seventeen and one-half miles in length, one-to-eighteen miles wide, and about one mile deep. If you are standing on the rim of the canyon you can hardly hear the water below.

Fifty-six miles of the most beautiful part is included in the Grand Canyon National Park. To describe Grand Canyon is impossible, the many shapes and the beauty of Grand Canyon can only be gained by actual sight.

Korea—Japan's First Victim

Korea's history goes back more than 3,000 years ago. Early in the 15th century Korea was printing books and inventing a language to make printing practical. The Korean alphabet is made up of 11 vowels and 14 consonants. You can learn it in 2 weeks but Japan forbids the teaching of it.

Korea broke away from China in 1897 and became independent. Russia and Japan went to war and Japan went across Korea and then took them over.

Citizenship 8

The eighth grade Citizenship class have been studying about "The Citizen as An Individual." It teaches us to co-operate with other people and to spend our money wisely. If we have good health we will be a better citizen.

We haev a Citizenship notebook in which we keep all our assignments. Part of our grade is based on how neat it is written and if it is kept up to date.

Should We Have Food Subsidies?

A subsidy, or grant of money by the government, may be used for various purposes. In connection with food it is used for two main purposes.

1. Is to increase production.
2. To cut retail costs.

Arguments against Subsidies

1. It is unfair to ask our fighting men to help pay our grocery bill. But when these men come home they will have to pay taxes.

2. Higher food costs, instead of leading to inflation would prevent inflation. The Americans are getting higher wages so they can pay more for food.

Argument for Subsidies

1. Subsidies save money for the consumer. It is estimated that each dollar put into subsidies saves five dollars in higher living costs.

2. The main reason for subsidies is to help prevent a dangerous rise in the cost of living, leading to uncontrolable inflation. Inflation comes about when wages are high and goods are scarce.

—Charles Freeburn.

Soldiers, Too!

The Soldier Medal is awarded only to soldiers who take their own life in their hands to do a good deed. These medals are given to WACs also. Private Margaret Maloney, a WAC, received this medal. She saw a soldier fall into a pool of blazing gasoline. She dashed in and drug him out, smothered and poured out the fire. The injuries on herself kept her from duty longer than it did the soldier. This is only one of a few things the WACs do.

They operated switch boards during the Cairo and Teheran Conference as far as they know nothing has been told about the conversations that went on. WACs also work in offices, fight control, weather, and radio stations. The success of our Allied Forces are largely do to the Air-WACs.

You can find WACs in about every place where our soldiers are fighting. They are "essential" to our Army. WACs located in India have an advantage over other WACs, because they find natives there who will do their work for them for three dollars a month. They are more than decorations to the Army you can plainly see.

Mrs. Portia Hough, of South Bend, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Inez Hadsell.

Edgar Lysher had quite an experience with cigarettes last week. He had smoked several out of pack when he noticed a small hole in the wrapper of one, and he opened it to investigate. He found several nice fat worms, and found the rest of the pack in the same condition. They looked like small apple worms. Edgar gagged around for awhile, but finally forgot it and went to smoking again. So boys look out for worms.

WAR BONDS . . your way to back your country's attack!

Mrs. Grace Sheffer and son, Basil Sheffer, of Hicksville, were in St. Joe Tuesday evening calling on friends.

Roy Koch and Lela Northrup were dinner and supper guests in the Wm. Essig home in Jackson township Sunday.

Clarence Jarrett, of Grass Lake, Mich., who is spending a week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kitchen, was Monday supper guest of his uncle, Leonard Jarrett.

Truck arrived Wednesday morning from Fairmount, Ind., to move the household goods of A. M. Baker and wife to that city. They will live with Mrs. Baker's sister until Meade is able to work again.

Mrs. Ervin White is in the Sanders Hospital. She was operated on at Hicksville for adhesions and ruptured intestines were discovered. She was removed to Auburn for special treatment. She is reported much better. This is Mrs. White's third operation.

Mr. and Mrs. "Buster" Brown of Garrett, received the sad news Sunday morning that their only son, Berwin, had been killed in action in Italy. Mrs. Brown will be remembered as Inez Guysinger, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Guysinger lived in this vicinity a number of years ago.

Rev. William D. Koehnlein, wife and son, Billy, of Bath, Ind., were callers at News office for a short time Saturday morning, enroute from Harlan where they visited his sister, to Hickville to visit other relatives and then on to their home by night. They are all well, looking fine and enjoying their pastorate. "Bill" said he is now located in the cleanest town in Indiana, "Bath."

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Foltz were called Friday night by telephone from North Baltimore, stating that his brother-in-law, John Roos, 60, had been found dead in bed by his wife, Viola. The Foltzs left Saturday to be with his sister and family for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham were unable to make the trip. Mr. Roos had been ill for the past two years, but was about as usual. Besides his wife, he leaves one son at home and a married daughter. By request the body was cremated on Monday.

IT'S IN THE AIR. You can feel it, every time the Axis is struck. This is the climax year, the year of decision.

In history, 1944 will be the big year of the war—every stroke for victory counts more now. That's why it's vitally important for every American to be at his post, doing his part right now.

You, personally, have an important job in winning the war—buying War Bonds. It's not glamorous—no, not even a sacrifice, really, because you are only lending your money, to be returned with interest. But it is essential to complete victory.

Your part in this year of decision is at least one extra $100 Bond, above your regular Bond buying. That is your minimum individual quota. But don't stop there. Remember wars are won only by all-out effort. So buy $200, $300, $500 worth—buy more than you can afford. And buy your Bonds where you work—at the plant or at the office.

Your country is counting on you—let's make the year of decision OUR year!

HOW NOT TO RUN THE COUNTRY

So much is heard these days about the harassments and annoyances to which business men are subjected by the crop of government officials who have sprung up by the hundred thousand and whose amateur orders and demands cause hair to turn gray, that the following incident brings a chuckle to relieve the exasperated:

The manager of a wholesale food house had a visit from an Office of Price Administration official. The official's name seemed strangely familiar to the manager, but he couldn't place the man.

The official went into detail as to how the business should be run, what the company should do and what it shouldn't do. He practically blueprinted a plan of operation.

The manager sat and listened, and finally he said, "Your name is Mr. _____, isn't it?" The official confirmed the statement.

"I remember you now," the manager said, "you went broke in the grocery business a couple of years ago owing us $4,000."

Three weeks after a Republican Congressman pointed out that Uncle Sam now publishes some three or four hundred daily, weekly and monthly periodicals, Elmer Davis, who had been appointed almost two years before, promised to start doing something about federal paper output. Better late than never.

"For want of a nail the shoe was lost;
For want of a shoe the horse was lost;
For want of a horse the rider was lost."
Poor Richard's Almanac

"A LITTLE neglect may breed mischief," said Benjamin Franklin in 1757, going on to point out that "for want of a nail, the shoe was lost; for want of a shoe, the horse was lost; and for want of a horse, the rider was lost."

The moral is clear and applies even more today with wartime shortages of materials, equipment and man-power. Overhaul every piece of equipment—see that it is well oiled and in good working condition. Make that electric motor in your shop do its part in tuning up, so that when planting time comes, you may do your part in producing for Victory.

Italy, Jan. 19, 1944,

Dear Mom and Dad:

I recall that not very long ago I was hoping for and considering spending next Christmas at home, but that was 3 or 4 months ago; now I don't even harbor the thots. I feel sure, as so many do, that the war will be over during the coming year—sometime. I'm afraid that some of us had the attitude that because we had won a few skirmishes or battles the was was all but over; however, that is far from the actual case.

During the past year and a half, I've spent a few bad times—not too many — but enough to know that men can take plenty before they give up. The worst that I have ever been thru was during our entry here into Italy; bombing is bad enough if it is near, but when there is a bombing every few minutes coupled with artillery fire, the strain gets pretty heavy.

Jerry dumped a lot of stuff around us for a few days; and several times some arced over our heads—barely missing us. Later I had a detail up pretty close and things were going fairly serenely until one nite he opened up with some pretty big stuff which luckily was going over our heads; then out of nowhere the 88's came screaming in, until then they had sounded like a big fast freight train, from then on for 5 days and nites we spent most of our time down in a fox hole. The worst of it was, we were living right next to an ammunition dump which we were afraid would go up any minute providing Jerry luckily shortened his range.

It is times like that when one thinks that somebody is pointing a finger at him and that the whole damn war is being fought right where he is standing. No one knows how it feels until you've been thru it; then people sometimes smugly wonder why we don't move faster or this or something else. I wonder how many people would go out and celebrate every time there is some minor victory if they had crawled on their bellies in the mud and the rain and kept wondering if the next one would miss. And let me tell you, you can hear 'em coming.

However, one can forget a lot of the unpleasantness and later on laught at it. Every time that the wind blows now even a zephyr—we have had more than that lately—we think of the nigth shortly after we landed. It had been hot and the dust had billowed up until it looked like clouds in the sky and we were all suffering from the heat and from being grimy. Since there had been no rain for a long time we disregarded the big black cloud that was hanging out over the Sea; in fact, we disregarded the sharp wind that sprang up a couple of hours later until it was too late. Suddenly there was a roar and our tent was gone with the rain starting to come by the bucketsful. Naturally, it was dark. But even then we salvaged the one important item to any soldier—our beds; the rest was a bit of a mess after a nite of wind and rain. I know we must have looked odd running thru the flashes of lightning with a bundle of blankets to any place of shelter.

It hasn't been so bad lately except for the rain; when it drys off just a little, there is quit a bit of dust because a lot of the country is covered by lava dust which, when dry, has the appearance of a good grade of Portland cement.

I have seen some marvelous buildings, country side, and plenty of history—if you know anything about Latin. Then, of course, I have seen some buildings and towns that were only shambles. One can see everywhere the demarcation between the people with money and the people without—those without work for the people with.

We were bivouaced in a beautiful and picturesque orange grove; but to the people who did the work it wasn't either, it was only a very meagre livlihood. They all are old at 30; how different than at home!

Somethimes, though, I wonder about home. By that I mean just what the people think about the men in the Army. I realize that we are the government's responsibility, but aren't we just about the same ones who were there a year or so ago? Don't we have any rights or privileges anymore? For myself, I want to vote and there are a lot more who do. But from what I can gather about and from some of the movements for legislation, the majority or possibly lobbyists for certain groups, try to give the impression that we are a bunch of very small children who shouldn't be allowed to have an idea and must be watched over in a fatherly manner. A sort of "your not old enough nor wise enough to know what you do need or want"—I wonder. Something to remember for the future—a lot of men (us) are not going to forget a lot of what other petty individuals did when our backs were turned.

I have covered almost everything that I want to at the moment, I am now writing from my sumptuous headquarters which consists of a tent with a nice solid floor—dirt; the last one was dusty and we had mice.

Write when you can.

Love,

Lt. Warren B. Rectenwall, O-1548294, 991st Ord. Co. (HM) (TK) APO 464, % P. M. New York, New York.

The following was taken from the Sport Page of one of Cincinnati's papers: Sports Editor—Clam Crowe's Cage team unpublicized but red hot.

"We've just made a startling discovery, Athletic Director Clem Crows, of Xavier University, is coaching a basket ball team. It's probably the best basketball team in greater Cincinnati. It may be better than some of Xavier teams which Clem used to turn out, only this one doesn't represent Xavier.

"Clem's team represents the 30th College Training Detachment and is made up of Air Forces boys who are training Xavier. No civilians. Clem has been coaching the team since the first of the year. They have played about half a dozen games and all have been secret

"The only game lost was one they played over at U. C. against the 29th Training Detachment. The boys had an off night and the margin by which they lost was only a few points. The most recent game was against a team from Ft. Thomas. Clem's boys won 83-26. This is a part of the boys physical education program and they are not allowed to play any civilian teams.

"The game between Clem's boys and boys from Ft. Know Saturday night will probably be one of the best games of the season. Every one admitted free."

—Crowe Praises Squad's Ability—

Clem is enthusiastim about the kind of talent represented on his squad. Several of the boys are good enough to play on any college basketball team. He mentioned one youngster, John Beck, of Syracuse, Ind., a center and a freshman on I. U. team. Another, Frank Curie, of St Joe, Ind., a forward, who made a great impression on Clem. The Saturday night's game is the first to be given any publicity and the field house is expected to be packed.

BOND DRIVE DEMONSTRATING PATRIOTISM

Indiana's drive for $233,000,000 in Fourth War Loan bonds passed the half-way point today following a week in which Hoosiers expressed their resentment against Jap murder and torture of American war prisoners by lending Uncle Sam an unprecedented total of fighting dollars.

In one record-setting day, last Friday, $13,200,000 in bond sales were reported.

Meanwhile, the drive in many localities reached the clean-up stage.

Because of the volume of purchases stirred up by the stories of Jap atrocities on Bataan war prisoners, Eugene C. Pulliam, state chairman, urged men and women who had signed bond orders to purchase heir bonds as quickly as possible.

"If everyone waits until the last minute to make his purchase, the banks, post offices and other bonds sales places will be swamped and there is a chance that some bonds bought late in the month will not be cleared in time to count against quotas," said Mr. Pulliam.

The war loan drive ends Tuesday, Feb. 15, but all bonds bougth in February on the payroll savings plan will be counted against quotas.

CULTURE CLUB

The annual guest night of the Culture Club was held last Wednesday night in the Spencerville Methodist Church, when they entertained their husbands. The decorations were purple and gold, club colors, and favors were in keeping with Lincoln's birthday.

Preceding the three-course dinner, Mr. Erby Messimer expressed thanks. Mrs. Earl Hodges, president of the club, then extended a welcome to the guests, in the form of a poem, which portrayed each in his own personality. Mr. Clyde Duker then gave the response.

After the second course Mrs. Reign Schondelmayer led in group singing. After enjoying the wonderful food prepared by the ladies, all went to the sanctuary and then enjoyed a miscellaneous program featuring the Chaney Sisters, who gave a musical program including vocal solos, duets, saxophone and clarinet numbers. Mrs. Gerald Briggs gave two violin solos, accompanied by Mrs. C. R. Baumgartner. Mrs. Baumgartner played two piano solos and these numbers were much enjoyed by all. Mr. Wilmer Monroe gave the address of the evening, using India as his subject, this was not only educational but much enjoyed as well. The evening's entertainment was brought to a close by all singing "God Bless America."

Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Briggs and sister, Mrs. B. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. John Dilley Mrs. Paul Drerup and sister, Fara Lee Baidinger, Mrs. Pluma Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hurni, Miss Nelle Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Erbv Mesismer, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reasoner, Mr. and Mrs. Reign Schondelmayer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Olen Waltz, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Duker, Mr. and Mrs. H. TWO AUBURN BOYS CRASH WABASH FREIGHT

Woodrow Hursh and Warren Rathert, both of Auburn, were injured in a railroad crossing accident just west of Spencerville at midnight Wednesday of last week.

The men are employed in Ft. Wayne during the daytime and also put in part-time employment at a Spencerville garage. They were on their way home from Spencerville when, because of the fog, Hursh, who was driving slowly, failed to see a freight train moving south on the crossing.

The car struck the side of the train and the occupants were thrown forward in the automobile. Hursh was lacerated about the mouth and a knee while Rathert had a knee bruised. Hursh entered the Dr. J. A. Sanders hospital in Auburn and was taken home Friday.

The front end of the 1940 Ford car was badly damaged.

Another Statue of Liberty

This artist's conception of Abraham Lincoln, standing rock-like amid the threatening waters, is symbolic of his steadfast fight against the powers which threatened the republic during his presidential reign. On Lincoln's birthday, February 12, the nation again will remember his determination that "these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.

Dear Friends:

The last letter I wrote you about the birds. This letter I want to tell you about fishing. Last Friday was the most beautiful warm day I have ever seen in Florida, but it started to rain in the evening and rained all night. Saturday it cleared up and the boys proposed that we go to the bridge and try their luck, fishing, which by the way has been poor for some time even the commercial fishermen have not been able to get a catch.

But back to my story. I used a cane pole and caught a few shiners, the boys used these for bait. Finally the big ones began to strike and in less than an hour they caught twenty-eight speckled trout weighing from one to three pounds, one red fish, and one lady fish.

Fred, Howard Roark and Mr. Frost from Michigan caught most of them. Before they quit, the bridge was lined with spectators, news of such catches travels fast and many come to see how they do it.

Today (Sunday) the weather is cool, but the big catch of yesterday brought out a lot of fishermen to the bridge today, but I think most of them went home empty handed.

There are a great number of Northern people here for the winter. I see several Indiana cars every day. We are all well as usual and I hope this finds my Hoosier friends the same.

Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

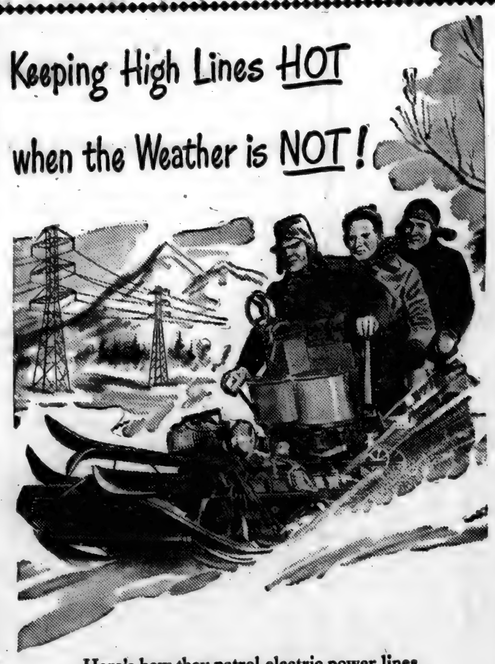
Keeping High Lines HOT when the Weather is NOT!



Here's how they patrol electric power lines out in the Northwest, when the snow piles up and the mercury plunges down. This novel ski-mobile is driven by a motorcycle engine and spiked caterpillar treads. It will do 35-40 miles an hour on the level—if there's any level!

The ingenuity, skill and courage with which these linemen keep current flowing are typical of the way electric company men everywhere meet such emergencies, including the greatest emergency—WAR.

Under America's system of freedom of enterprise, the business-managed electric companies provide over 80% of the nation's vast power supply.

Without subsidies or tax concessions, these companies have met every war demand for power and satisfied every essential civilian need for electricity.

WAR BONDS a "must" buy this month to speed victory!

During the other war we were urged to clean our plates, while during this one our plates are cleaned without much persuasion.

The prophet, who a few years back, said that all Americans would be crazy by 1961 made a mistake of 16 years.

After visiting a war plant, would you still call them the weaker sex?

For our own good we are told not to worry, but why not tax our minds, since everything else is.

The more we think about it, the Munich pact was just to serve as a breathing spell between rounds.

With all the costs, many of us are in debt from the moment we are born and we never grow out of it.

More humble grows the automobile that carries many a man to his home, sweet home.

Another thing about a shortage, you wouldn't be bothered by agents at the door, selling magazines.

A News reader says the only thing extra about newspapers today is that they are extra thin.

What Started Inflation?

Despite the efforts of President Roosevelt and New Deal propagandists to shift responsibility for a course that leads to inflation by placing the blame on Congress, the American people know what has contributed to the inflationary trend. Several of the contributing factors enumerated by the Belleville, Kans., Telescope are:

"The New Deal, which has been none too thrifty or zealous about saving the taxpayer's money, started inflation when it permitted contractors to bid up prices on government contracts and approved the 'cost-plus' policy.

"The New Deal encouraged inflation when it encouraged a 40-hour week and time and one-half for overtime when there was a shortage of manpower in the country.

"The New Deal encouraged inflation when it drew government workers from the farm, factories and private industries and paid them exorbitant wages, while it denied this same right and privilege to private industry.

"The New Deal encouraged inflation when it permitted the willful and deliberate waste of lumber, steel and other critical materials in war contracts and used public funds to replace this profligate waste.

"The New Deal encouraged inflation when it employed at high wages 3,000,000 government clerks, stenographers, auditors, inspectors, lawyers, publicity directors, public relations officials, so-called efficiency experts and technicians to write complicated government regulations, formulas, questionnaires and letters to further confuse and perplex the tired, overworked taxpayer on the home front who is working 50 or more hours a week (without overtime) struggling to keep his business from bankruptcy.

"So it comes with poor grace for the President or anyone else to charge Congress—the only remaining link between the people and their government—with being responsible for inflation. Every American citizen should search for the truth in this critical hour—because 'the truth will make them free.'"

"Ten years of reckless spending and pyramiding debts has resulted in the creation of inflationary forces that threaten the nation. Now Congress is told it must provide the side-office Caesars at the White House with unlimited funds for socialistic price-juggling schemes, or America will have runaway inflation . . . The responsibility for runaway inflation, if it occurs, lies with the administration that piled up these debts and stifled production."—Congressman Howard H. Buffett, (R.) of Nebraska.

"The Patchwork Quilt" was given Thursday evening, Feb. 3 and was an outstanding success. Gloria Zonker acted well as a charming southern lady with noble traits. Marjory Haynes played her part well as young Diane, the attractive daughter. June Strong furnished plenty of laughs as Chloe, the negro servant. Rosemary Yeiser, Opal Kinsey, and Leora Wilmot, friends of the DeBoussac family, put plenty of pep into the performance. Rolland Davis was a very handsome soldier in the flasback scene to 1917. Franklyn Shuff was the villian of the cast but he did look pretty nice in his clown suit in Act II. April Bowser portrayed the part of a selfish, spoiled sister in a very dramatis way. Calvin Hull was Paul Elsworth, young Diane's fiance and he did all right as "Romeo." Of course the play wouldn't have been complete without

PATSY MONTANA

A little singing cowgirl who has been a prize favorite with radio audiences for more than she probably would care to recount is Patsy Montana, who is coming to the Auburn High School Gym as a feature of the Hoosier-Crost Show on Thursday, Feb. 10th.

Patsy Montana first scored as a radio entertainer when she appeared as the featured soloist with the Prairie Ramblers on several WLS programs, among them being Smile-Awhile. Before that, however, she had appeared with Al Pearce and his Gang on KFI, Los Angeles and her very first radio appearance was made from a horse's back at a rodeo.

Patsy isn't just a city girl dressed up in dude rancher's clothes. She's a real rodeo-ridin cowgirl. She spent several years in the west, where she rode in the great roundup at Pendleton, Oregon, in addition to riding in several rodeos staged by Hoot Gibson at his ranch in Saugus, California.

For most two years Patsy has been away from WLS, but now she's back with a greater popularity than ever.

Their Valentine to the Axis

A bullet-splattered heart and target best convey the St. Valentine's day greetings of these Harlingen (Texas) army gunnery school students to the enemy. This February 14 greeting came from boys who are now behind machine guns in the turrets of our bombers—whence they deliver a deadlier message in person. A miserable St. Valentine's day, Adolf!

Donald Gall and Leo Westrick as older men in the cast. Leo Westrick made a striking appearance as a southern gentleman with his black silk hat, waistcoat, and his cane.

Carol Rosenberry played appropriate numbers betwe e n acts. June Davis played the accordion. Jack Bowser, as a blonde tap dancer, made a big hit with the audience.

In appreciation for their services t h e juniors presented Mrs. Buckner, the director of the play, and Mrs. Guilford, the costume designer, bouquets of red roses.

The total stamp and bond sales at the Concord Township School was $315.05 last Tuesday, Feb. 1. This makes the total for the year $2,153.80.

T h e schools of DeKalb County have been requested by the government to participate in the salvage program. Wayne T. Van Auken, County Surveyor, h a s arranged to have the county trucks call at your school on the following dates for any waste paper the schools have collected: Thursday, Feb. 24, Thursday, March 30, Thursday April 20. The county trucks will take the paper to the dealer where it will be weighed and a copy of the weight sent to the school. The dealer will pay the school 50c per hundred for the paper.

The last home game of this basketball season will be played against Woodburn Friday night, Feb. 11.

A St. Joe team that was fighting every minute of the game lost to Leo, recent Allen County champs, 29-55. The Tigers played excellent ball all the way through and outscored them in the third quarter. Tharp for Leo poured too many baskets in, scoring 23 points while Davis was scoring 15. The second team lost 47-7.

Butterflies

A butterfly is an insect whose life is divided into three parts. The butterfly is some times called the "Winged Flower."

The first part of the life of the butterfly is spent as a Larva or caterpillar. The caterpillar hatches from an egg in a worm-like shape. It stays like this for a few months. During this time it eats greedily.

In the second part the butterfly is called a pupa. It eats no food at all during this time. All during this time it is incased in a chrysalis with a hard outer case. Some butterflies stay in the chrysalis a few weeks, others a few months.

In the third part the butterfly becomes a perfect insect. In this part of the eggs are laid on plant leaves to be hatched by the sun. All butterflies have four wings and fly only in the day time. Of the thousands of different kinds of butterflies my favorite is the Monarch which has the pretty green jug-like chrysalis which looks like it was decorated with gold nails.

—Barbara Oberlin.

The Humming Bird

The name refers to the whirring sound made by their wings. They have no singing note. The smallest of the humming birds, when stripped of its feathers, is about the size of a bumblebee, and they are only about six inches long. Insects form an important part of their diet.

There is another kind called the Ruby Throated Humming Bird. It is the smallest and daintiest of the birds of the United States, and it is the only one of the Humming-bird family found east of the Mississippi River and north of Florida. In winter it seeks the warm regions from Southern Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

The mother bird prefers a situation h i g h up in the branches, and very often she covers the outside of the nest with lichens or bits of bark. With the background o n e hardly knows the little home is there. Two tiny white eggs are laid, and the young are hatched without feathers.

—Juanita Likes.

The Future Queen of England

On her 18th birthday, in April, a pretty young English girl will become a symbol of her nation. As you may have guessed, she is Princess Elizabeth, eldest daughter of King George VI. Some day she will become Queen Elizabeth, the second queen of that name.

The first Queen Elizabeth ruled in the days when England was a weak nation, struggling against the great power of the day, Spain. This queen was ruling when the Spanish Armada was defeated. England was starting on the road to world empire. This mighty empire is now fast becoming a family of nations, held together only by loyalty to the crown and mother country.

Princess Elizabeth and her younger sister, Margaret Rose, have breakfast at 8:00 A. M. At 9:30, classes start. Elizabeth studies French, German, history, Biblical history, literature, constitutional law, and arithmetic. She is not allowed to merely "get by," for she is studying so that some day, when she may be called for important dicisions, she will not be found wanting. Classes are over at 1 o'clock. For two hours of the afternoon, Elizabeth studies, practices on the piano, or sketches. This is her only time for recreation.

Princess Elizabeth likes to ride horseback, to bicycle, to swim. When Elizabeth and Margaret Rose are in the country, they tramp over the fields, taking photographs and home movies. Elizabeth writes, acts in, and directs plays. She has little time to romp with her dogs and pet chameleon. She and her sister had a Victory garden last summer. Elizabeth studies first aid, home nursing, child welfare, and various forms of civil defense with the Sea Rangers, (an organization of former Girl Guides, English Girl Scouts.) Both Elizabeth and Margaret Rose are encouraged to read the daily newspapers and listen to the war news on the radio.

In the past year, Elizabeth has had a foretaste of her coming duties. She has gone with her father to review or inspect various schools, camps, and war projects. She was "on her own" when they reviewed t h e Grenadier Guards, of which she is a colonel.

She has had long talks with her father, has been invited to attend meetings of ministers, she has been made a member of the royal council which rules England when the King is out of the country.

Elizabeth is tall and slender, with wavy light brown hair and gray blue eyes. She likes to laugh and romp with her younger sister, but she has dreamy and thoughtful moods which the war has increased. This great-great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, with the blood of William the Conqueror, Charlemagne, Robert Bruce and Mary Queen of Scots in her veins, feels her great responsibility. She knows that the future of her country may be largely what she makes it.

INDIANA EXCEEDS HER SALVAGE QUOTA

Incomplete returns from salvage directors of Indiana's 92 counties reveal a total of 181,303 tons of scrap metal collected in the Hoosier Victory Scrap Bank Campaign during the last six months of 1943.

The total, 31,303 tons in excess of the 150,000-ton quota, gave Indiana the record of having collected 121 per cent of its quota, according to Frank G. Thompson, Executive Secretary for the Indiana General Salvage Branch, who made the announcement.

In all, 22 counties exceeded the quota set for them last July, one county collecting almost 10 times the amount set as its goal. However, Mr. Thompson pointed out that several of these counties with large collections have centers where scrap collected from smaller counties is brought in to be baled and processed, with the larger county getting credit for the collection.

This was the second consecutive six-months' period in which Indiana has exceeded its quota by a large margin.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Josephine Kees, Pres. No. 283.

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post Auxiliary No. 283, St. Joe, Ind.

Regular meetings each 4th Tuesday of each mouth.

The February meeting will be held Feb. 22, 7:30 P. M. at the country home of Mrs. Vernie Monroe. Those wishing transportation c o n t a c t the president.

During the month of February, our program calls us to emphasize two fundamental activities:

National Defense, and Americanism.

Ten million men and women have held up their right hands and have sworn to defend America with their lives.

Few homes in our little community that have not given a son or a daughter.

Over world w i d e battle fields they are fulfilling their pledge, depending on us at home to do our part.

Until "Victory" comes, we at home must do our utmost, how to make sure that after this "Victory" America does not again neglect her defenses.

Americanism is that which we are defending not only the free soil of America, but the ideals and institutions of freedom which have flowered from this American Soil.

Guns, Sailors, and Soldiers are not enough, it is a thing of mind and spirit and it requires the constant protection of education, and constant nourishment of our Youth of America.

Don't forget your soldier's mail.

Josephine Kees, Pres.

A TRIBUTE

We are just a little village,
At the St. Joe River's bend,
Where you know every body
And where friend greets friend.
In a land the pilgrims dreamed of
Where the Stars and Stripes on high,
Proclaim our faith in freedom
To a world that's passing by.

Every town and every city,
Flies a flag above it's trees
And there always must be some one
Who will raise it to the breeze.
So, I bring a little tribute
To a fellow you all know—
It's Ray who flings the flag aloft
To wave above Saint Joe.

There's some who see that flag each day,
And note its colors bright,
But they don't know how it got there,
Nor who lowers it at night.
Well, it's Ray—the last name's Bowman,
Just a common sort of guy,
But he's faithful night and morning,
And he keeps our flag on high.

A little thing to do, you say—
And nothing very great?
It has been said they also serve,
Who only stand and wait.
We can't all be MacArthur
Tho' the honor some might crave.
There must be men behind the men
To keep the home front brave.

The hardest things in life to do
I find are things that's small.
We like to march to beating drums,
And hear the clarion's call.
That flag Ray flies each morning
Is an emblem of our land,
And it speaks a forceful language,
That's not hard to understand.

It speaks of mercy—justice,
Of a day when wars will cease.
"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again"
There IS a "Prince of Peace."
Ray's task is small, he flings the flag,
To meet the morning air,
While boys we love are facing death,
To keep it flying there.

So, when our eyes look upward
To the grandest flag on high,
Just think it's Ray who runs it
Up the staff to meet the sky.
Our boys!—They'll come back heroes,
But who is there to say
That Ray's not been a hero,
In a modest sort of way.

GERTRUDE BORTHWICK, St, Joe, Ind.

Oranges for London

Londoners were happy the first of January because they were going to get their first oranges since 1940. S m a l l time bombs painted to look like oranges had been found among the fruit crates. One bomb exploded while the ship was still at sea. No oranges could be given out until every crate had been examined carefully. The bombs may have been placed in the crates by the Nazis working in the orange groves of Spain.

—Marjorie Bleeks.

Columbia: Gem of the Ocean

The life and customs of the people in Columbia, South America, are very interesting. Their homes are built well in Spanish style. They are usually built around a central courtyard or patio.

The boys in Columbia wear knee length pants until they are 16 or 17. A lot of the girls try to copy the Hollywood styles that they see in movies. They wear their hair braided and wrapped in a halo around the head. They wear school uniforms.

A Plan for New Superhighways

The United States is one of the greatest industrial nations of the world, it is because we have the greatest system of highways in the world. We have more miles of highways than Asia, Africa and Australia together.

The United States has 78,000 miles of highways which our Army thinks of as a military highway.

These highways are being used to carry troops to our training camps and to seaports for the voyage overseas. Altogether there are about 550,000 miles of good, main highways. Besides the main roads, there a r e 3,000,000 miles of Rural Routes. President Roosevelt asked Congress to approve a plan for 34,000 miles of superhighways t o crisscross the country. T h e building of these roads would cost 750 million dollars.

—George Mansfield.

Sgt. Paul A. Moore returned Tuesday to Ft. Worth, Texas, after a 15 day furlough with his parents and friends, at Spencerville.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The Spencer Township Home Economics Club furnished a fine feed for the Lions Club Monday evening in the Spencerville Methodist Church.

Roll call by Lion Dale Wicoff, showed a remarkably good attendance, thirty-two responding to their name.

Educational Director Rectenwall gave some well chosen remarks. The attendance contest is very close and the result is still in the balance. The paper scrap drive proceeds apace and the tonnage increasing. Lion Mark Williams led in singing "The Little Brown Church in the Vale," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny."

Lion Zuber, our naturalist, was the talent for the evening. his travels in accumulating his large number of specimens has been extensive and his pleasing manner of telling his experiences, is very entertaining and instructive. The unusual in animals allures Mr. Zuber and if possible he comes into possession of rare specimens. He also has many natural formations in stone, oddities that are hard to explain. He described several interesting trips to remote places in his efforts to gain specimens of pecularities in animal life.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST OF AMERICAN LEGION BUYS A HOME

A real estate deal was made recently whereby the local Post of the American Legion became the owner of the Dr. B. S. Sheffer Homestead which will become the home of the Post.

The local Post was organized nine years ago and since its organization has had to depend upon individuals or organizations to furnish a meeting place. Most of the regular meetings have been held in the K. of P. Hall and the members of the American Legion are very grateful to the members of the lodge for extending them this courtesy.

Looking forward to the return of the men who are now serving in World War II, these men will all be eligible to membership in the American Legion, the present members of the Post thought they should get busy and buy a home sufficiently large enough to accommodate this prospective large membership. The men who fought in the last war know from experience that when this war ends, when the bands stop playing, when the parades are over and the heroes forgotten and these new veterans settle down to their former walks in life, these new veterans will be glad to have this fine new meeting place provided for them.

This building is a very substantial one being of brick construction with a slate roof, it is spacious and well arranged and one that any American Legion Post could well be proud of.

The funds for the purchasing of the home are being raised by popular subscription.

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.
Feb. 1, 1944

To our Indiana Friends:

It has been several days since I wrote you last. I have become quite an expert fisherman since then. Fred Wilmot and I caught two pails full of "yellow tails" yesterday. They resemble our rock bass in size and taste. The other fellows catch the big ones.

The weather here for the last 10 days has been ideal, the temperature ranges around 75 degrees during the day and drops to 65 in the night.

"Believe it or not" O. K. Shull, Fred Wilmot, Fred Hart and myself with two Michigan men have taken a job of cleaning up and landscaping a property here in Port Richey. We work during low tide and then when the tide begins to come in we lay off to fish.

Property here is going up by leaps and bounds. A property across the river which was bought two years ago for $1700 is now held for four thousand dollars. The people here are looking for a boom like they had several years ago.

Living here is very reasonable, food prices are as low as it is in the North but many things are very scarce, especially butter, and eggs, are fifty cents a dozen.

Bamboo or cane grow here freely. This forenoon in our work we cut out two clumps about five feet in diameter. I would be safe to say each clump contained eight hundred poles. We piled them on a heap and will burn them when we finish the job.

Hoping this finds you all well.

I remain,
Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

SLEEPER FLEET— Units of new fleet of 1,200 sleeping cars are placed in operation for the Army by The Pullman Company as rapidly as they are built. Fleet will facilitate handling of Pullman troop movement burden, which approximated 10 million troops in 1943.

GRASS SKIRT FROM HUBBY—Lieut. Fred Losee (U.S.N.R.), fighting in the southwest Pacific where the native girls wear grass skirts, sent this one to his wife, screen actress Eleanor Parker. The Lieut. asked her to model them as they should be modelled and—she does.

Boners

THE MOA BIRD, OR WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

Once there were a lot of Moa Birds. They belonged to the Ostrich Family. They had the habit of burying their heads in the sand when they did not know how to handle a situation that threatened them. The Moa Bird is now extinct.

When this war is over there are going to be some questions that cannot be side stepped or avoided by sticking our heads in the sand. These are your questions and some one must settle them for you. Unless you make up your mind how they should be settled and tell your political representative what you think, he will have to act without your advice and you will not be entitled to a kick about what he has done, because he did not know what you wanted.

One of the things there seems to be no difference of opinion about is that something must be done to prevent any more "World Wars" and if possible, no more wars of any kind. There is also a general agreement, that wars are a losing proposition for every one. These ideas are good as far as they go but they bring up the question of how we are going to make them realities instead of only ideas. There is a wide spread thought that some kind of an agreement between nations will do it. That plan was tried after "World War I" and it did not work. There is no agreement as to why it did not work and the reasons advanced seem to be based on the point of view or interest of who happens to be doing the explaining.

Before making up your mind about such a plan following this war it might be well to recall a few things about our own "League," the U. S. A. That is what we have, a league of States bound together for mutual protection from outside, from each other and for the general welfare of all.

The conditions leading up to this union were ideal for its success. The colonies were peopled by one race, having one language and a common grievance. True the reasons for the Colonists coming to America were somewhat different in some Colonies from those in others, but after they were here they all felt they were being treated unfairly by the home land and the reason for rebelling was common to all.

There was, then, one race of people, a common language, one religion, and a common grievance. Add to these a bloody war to cement them together and you have a situation as different from the world situation as it will be after this war as day is from night. There will be many races of people, most of them jealous of each other and who never have been friendly, speaking different languages, with different views of life and different basic religious ideas.

It only needs a skimming of our history to shudder at the times our Union nearly went on the rocks during the first seventy years, and it took a bloody war to finally knit us together in what we hope will be a lasting Union.

We must keep in mind that human nature in mass is the same every where without regard to time or place as is evidenced by historical cycles and repitions. Also keep in mind that no nation ever lasted very long unless it was strong enough to protect itself without depending on some other one. Maybe we could keep out of future trouble if we were so strong that it would not be a good investment for any one to try to take us over. Anyhow think it over, dont be a Moa Bird.

FOREST FIRES

The many campaigns for thrift have brought up programs that are wise and long-headed. What would be more apt to win public approval than to campaign against forest fires and to preserve this nation's timber? There is no time like the present to name figures since we are fed enough of them daily to reduce us to a heap of numbers. Total the cost of forest fires through the past and it equals a 3,000-mile-long timber belt destroyed. This devastation has kept many states from building industries to produce forest products and this alone is surely enough of a lesson for thrift. The U. S. Forest Service states that in 1942 out of 426 million acres of forest that needed organized protection only 292 million received it. Snce loss of timber means loss of business, it behooves states to protect and increase what they now have. The greatest damage caused by fire is laid to nature lovers who hie themselves to the woods and by bonfires and cigarettes start forest blazes that become uncontrollable. Consider our thoughtlessness in the light that we have burned more timber than we have cut. What a terrific waste against nature and our own welfare. Realize the value and then all will want to protect the country's timber.

WE LOOK AHEAD

The time has come to confront pages of luscious looking tomatoes, gigantic ears of corn, round full heads of lettuce that add glory to pictures of beets, cucumbers, beans, peas, and radishes. Turn to the onion section that will make the mouth water while the eyes remain dry. Hurry to fill in the order blank so your seeds will be ready for early planting. Put a start in the seedling plats and have your equipment ready for the first suitable day for transplanting. Perhaps we'll wait until April when the ground is not so cold, the wind so piercing, the spirit so chilled for outside labor. Sow early, reap at will, fertilize and spray through the season. Keep out the weeds, in the moisture, tie up and transplant, pick and thin, cook and can. So we go from seed catalogue days to a summer of the bends. Hasten, spring!

SAFETY FIRST

Recent findings of the National Safety Council disclose the huge cost of accidents during 1943. Lives lost, 94,500. Injured, 9,700,000. Loss in money, 5 billion dollars. The time lost because of accidents to workers equals a complete shutdown for a full year of ALL war plants that employ 150,000 people. Think of it! The hope of those fighting a war is that those who remain at home are safe. The cost in lives, the cost in money, of accidents, is something to worry about in St. Joe, for right here we have contributed to this enormous total and will probably continue to do so this year. Many men, have in this section, been taken out of production lines for weeks because of accidents.

KIDS ON OUR STREETS

The damage done by our air force in two years of fighting, the fellows who fired all of those millions of rounds of ammunition, downed planes, burned so many gallons of gasoline, were youngsters once on our streets. Remember the kids who were handy at wiring and hitching together those crazy looking jalopies that whizzed through the town spilling youth from all sides? These competent fliers were boys who popped birds from trees with sling shots and then grew into the buck-shot class. They used air rifles and graduated to machine guns. They could monkey around with worn out radios and build new sets from bottle caps and spools. As resourceful as the young American technical sergeant in the China-India area who saw four bombers grounded because they needed new insulators and those things were many miles away. It didn't take the sergeant long to figure out how to use water-buffalo horns as material for insulators and get the bombers back to fighting Japs. An offshoot of puttering the American way!

The Nth Freedom

FREEDOM FROM UNCERTAINTY is a contribution of the insurance business to better living. By measuring risks and spreading costs, insurance frees the individual from the threat of disastrous loss. The record of modern insurance is one of sound business management at moderate profit, and constantly broader protection at lower cost.

The primitive man whose house was destroyed by fire or a falling tree lost all he owned. For thousands of years the dread of loss haunted men and made them wretched.

It was a heartening day when the first little group of citizens banded together to share such losses. That far-sighted plan, improved through the experience of generations, has been extended to cover a wide range of home and business hazards. And its cost is so low no prudent man can afford to be without it.

To enjoy the peace of mind that goes with thorough protection, you do not need to be an insurance expert. You can safely trust to us.

Ash Wednesday Services

With Ash Wednesday, February 23, churches throughout the world begin observance of the season of Lent. Here an army camp chaplain conducts services in his chapel. This year religious leaders of all denominations point to a resurgence of religion. Part of this is attributed to the impact of war, with servicemen and civilians alike seeking the solace of religion in time of stress. Church leaders express the belief that the tendency will continue to grow, in peace as well as war.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

Spend a little to save a lot by making a good duster or sprayer a part of your garden equipment, County Home Demonstration Agent, Mary Lenore Moore advises DeKalb County victory gardeners. The gardener who spends money for insecticides and then dusts them on his plants through a burlap sack or a sifter can is getting the cart before the horse.

The same applies to liquid sprays used in the small sprayers such as one would use for fly sprays. Many insecticides also are needed in furthering the war effort and should not be wasted in this manner.

A hand duster with a long delivery tube and upturned spout is recommended for the victory garden. Dusters of this kind are inexpensive, easy to use, and make good insects control possible because all parts of the plant can be dusted. The smallest type of sprayer suitable for garden use is one of the compressed air holding two or three gallons of liquid.

Fancy tools and "gadgets" add only to the cost of gardening, and not to the garden's productivity, advises County Home Demonstration Agent, Mary Lenore Moore. The average gardener can get along nicely with a hoe, a rake, a spading fork, and a valuable hand duster or small sprayer. For larger gardens of a quarter of an acre or more a good wheel hoe will save time and labor.

Now is the time to buy what ever garden tools may be needed for the season, so that any possible delay in obtaining tools will not be a hindrance at planting time. Although it is advisable, where possible, for each gardener to own his own tools, a "lend lease" arrangement between neighbors may prove valuable to everyone concerned.

Last year numerous "gadgets" and substitutes made their appearance on the markets. They proved in many cases to be both costly and inefficient. One "gadget" gardener found that the cost of his equipment was far greater than the profits from his garden.

For economical and efficient gardening, the watchword is "Use simple tools and take good care of those you have" says Miss Moore.

North Africa.
Feb. 2, 1944.

Dear Fred and Wife:

Since I haven't written you for some time I might write you a few lines to tell you that I miss the St. Joe News, it came regular to me in the States and the weekly items were of interest. Since we have been in Africa I have seen lots of sights, I remember the pictures that I've seen in the Geography and History books, those are exact pictures of the people here. The natives sit around cross legged and sell their wares.

I attended market one day to watch them trade, it's a very crowded, smelly and messy place. The natives jabber a lot to make a simple deal. Most of them know a certain amount of American slang. Kids beg for bon-bons (candy) and cigarettes. We get along with the natives fairly well by gestures, pointing. using our hands, feet and some words we have picked up. Inhabitants are Arabs and French.

Its hot here now, blossoms are out, it's like June in America, farmers are plowing and cultivating grapes, their main crop.

I've visited Casa Blanca several times and there are many things of interest there, lots of beautiful buildings, and have ridden lots in the native taxicabs which are carts or carriages pulled by horses and driven by an Arab.

Have seen a few people whom I knew in the States, but no one from right at home except one fellow, Lt. Arrants from Hicksville.

This is not a very long or newsy letter but maybe it will suffice for now, here's hello to all the fellows who happen to read The News and all the folks at home. Write soon!

So long for now,

Lt. Dale D. Collins, O-1315272. Co. C 13th Bn., 1st. Repl. Depot, APO. No. 761 % Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

CHAPLAIN WRITES HOME

Feb. 12, 1944.

Dear Floyd:

Well even if I am in the Army I am still pretty much Navy. In other words, I am in the Transportation Corps on the Sea-going Army. I am assigned to a troop transport, as Chaplain.

I am sure you will be interested in the organization of a transport. The actual Captain is a part of the Army Transport Service. The crew is made up of Merchant Marine.

In addition there is a gun crew commanded in this instance by a Navy Lieutenant (J. G.) My C. O. is known as the Transport Commander. He is in charge of the actual troops on board, being both Commandant and executive officer, there is also a Medical officer and an Army Captain. My C. O. is a First Lt. so I am equal in rank. He is a fine appearing fellow.

Mess is very formal. I sit with the Captain, Chief Engineer, Asst. Chief Engineer, etc. We are expected to be dressed in our uniform complete. I had my first meal tonight on board ship, the best yet in the Army.

Shore leave is cancelled at 8:00 A. M. Monday, that means we will leave the pier Monday. When we sail I do not know, but will proceed to N. Y. first. We are in Baltimore now. Our ship was refitted here. I think this is her first trip as a transport.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Gerald Briggs Feb. 16th. Meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Earl Hodges, with the reading of a poem entitled "The Nicest Valentine." Miss Nelle Merrill then gave the special work for the evening, "Art Through the Ages." This not only proved interesting but educational as well. In conclusion she told us of Indiana Art which of course, was very interesting.

Mrs. Hodges had the lesson in place of Mrs. John Dilley. We all read "Soldier's Paradise," and "How the Mason Place Affects You." Critic pro tem, Mrs. Clyde Duker gave her report after which roll call was taken, response being jokes. Secretary's report of last two meetings were read and accepted. An excuse from Mrs. Edna Jenkins was presented and accepted. Short business session was held after which the hostess served tomato aspic salad, potato chips and coffee.

Red Cross Asks $200,000,000 To Cover Wartime Needs

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Confronted with responsibilities of unprecedented proportions, as the war enters its most crucial stage, and with a staggering task ahead in the post-war period, the American Red Cross opens its 1944 War Fund appeal March 1, confident that the American people will respond to the limit of their ability.

President Roosevelt, president of the American Red Cross, Norman H. Davis, chairman and active head of the vast organization, and Leon Fraser, national War Fund chairman, join in urging the people of this country to help Red Cross reach its national objective of $200,000,000 because of the vital part it must play within the next twelve months.

Chairman Davis, in opening the campaign, will stress the fact that with the decisive stage of the war at hand, the Red Cross must assume a greater burden than ever before, and at the same time must provide aid to servicemen being returned in ever-increasing numbers.

An even greater burden will be placed on Red Cross services in 1944.

Thousands of American men and women are now in Red Cross service with U. S. troops at home bases and overseas. Field directors, hospital, club and recreation workers are with American armed forces in virtually every command, Mr. Davis asserted.

Both in Europe and in the Far East, Red Cross workers have either gone with invasion forces into new combat areas, or have followed within a very limited time.

On the home front, the Red Cross has broadened its service tremendously. Field directors are serving in every sizable military establishment and camp throughout the country, and recreation and social service workers are located in Army and Naval hospitals.

One of the most important and necessary war-time Red Cross functions has been the collection of human blood for plasma. Thirty-five blood donor stations are now operating.

The dramatic story of the Red Cross Blood Donor Service, through which thousands of soldiers and sailors have been saved from death, began in February, 1941, when the Surgeons General of the Army and Navy asked the Red Cross to procure 15,000 pints of blood. Last year more than 2,700,000 pints of blood were collected for the Army and Navy. This year the goal is more than 5,000,000 pints.

With major battles of the war yet to come, the Army has asked the Red Cross to supply many millions of surgical dressings. American men wounded in battle will depend acutely on the vast Red Cross surgical dressing production program.

Numerous other Red Cross home operations, such as Prisoners of War packaging centers, where more than a million parcels for war prisoners are prepared each month for shipment overseas, are supported by citizen-participation in the Red Cross War Fund.

So extensive is Red Cross service during this war that every American civilian can contribute something to at least one of its functions. To continue this gigantic work, all Americans must assume their share of the responsibility of carrying on this far-reaching service.

The $200,000,000 quota will enable Red Cross to alleviate suffering and pain at home and abroad, and to carry on its vast military welfare service.

CHAIRMEN FOR RED CROSS DRIVE NAMED

Chairmen who will be in charge of the coming Red Cross campaign in the various units of DeKalb County were announced Tuesday by Stanley Patrick of Auburn, county chairman. The quota this year will be $28,000, the largest sum ever asked by the Red Cross from DeKalb County residents.

The chairmen and the quotas for various units of the county are as follows:

Waterloo, Mrs. Eunice Campbell, quota $1,000.

Butler, Dr. L. L. Wolfe, quota $1,500.

Corunna, Mrs. Nora McDonald, quota $150.

St. Joe, Fred B. Leighty, quota $300.

Spencerville, Mrs. B. O. Shook, quota $300.

Ashley, Carl Swank, quota $300.

Garrett, Harry K. Lewis, quota $7,000.

Auburn, Rev. A. K. Trout, quota $9,000.

Townships, Carl Stallman, of Auburn, chairman.

The quotas for the townships are as follows: Keyser, $400; Butler, $600; Richland, $800; Fairfield, $800; Smithfield, $800; Grant, $400; Union, $400; Jackson, $800; Concord, $400; Spencer, $400; Wilmington, $800; Franklin, $800; Stafford, $400; Newville, $300; Troy, $300.

In Auburn, Glen Yoquelet will be in charge of the canvas of the residential district, C. E. Kile, the business district, and Irvin Rieke, the manufacturers.

The quota in the campaign last year was $18,000, so the Red Cross is seeking $10,000 more this year. The organization needs more funds because of the great increase in the number of men and women in the service. The campaign is to start March 1 and continue throughout the month of March.

Red Cross Sunday

Red Cross Sunday will be observed in the churches in DeKalb County on February 27. Answering plea from Norman H. Davis, chairman of the Red Cross, religious leaders will set the spiritual tone of the 1944 Red Cross war fund appeal "in line with those ideals of freedom, justice and the mercy for which the churches have always stood."

Appreciative of the work of the Red Cross, ministers, priests, and rabbis who have witnessed its humanitarian services to our armed forces at home and overseas will invite the continued support of their congregations in volutneer services as well as in financial support.

Chairman Davis in his letter to the clergy said:

"We are deeply grateful for the loyalty with which the church people of America have always supported the American Red Cross. In war time they know that wherever their boys go, the Red Cross is at their side. They know too that the Red Cross is the embodiment of human mercy.

"This year February 27 is being observed by our chapters as Red Cross Sunday. We are hopeful that churches universally will wish to make plans for this occasion. Red Cross Sunday will afford you an opportunity to inspire your people to continue to support the Red Cross generously, both financially and with their volunteer services. Their example as citizens is essential to the achievement of our tremendous 1944 objective.

"When so many of their loved ones are called on to give "the last full measure of devotion," the leadership as well as the rank-and-file of the local churches will wish to help the Red Cross accomplish its unprecedented task."

Even with the world at war, people still are effervescent in the spirit of spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Akins were at Ft. Wayne Sunday, as guests of Mrs. Hollis Akins and children. They have all been having the measles and the baby is seriously ill.

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.
2-10-'44

To my Indiana Friends:

Today finds us on the last half of our sojourn in the Sunny South. I have enjoyed my trip this year more than any time I have been here before, although hampered by government regulations in food and travel. I believe I have ridden less than fifty miles in an automobile since I arrived here.

You probably wonder what we do. O. K. Shull and I do a lot of reading. Fred, he fishes most of the time and the ladies sew and attend club meetings, and to top off the day's work we play about ten games of Chinese checker each night.

Fred Wilmot and wife are now located in our camp and he is becoming an expert fisherman.

The sea shore has always been an interesting subject, never the same, always changing. We are not located on the gulf, it is about ten miles down the river, but we see its effect day as the tide ebbs and flows, for six hours it flows and six hours it ebbs, each day it is one hour later. When the tide flows is the best fishing time because the fish come in with it and go out to the gulf when it ebbs. I wish you might see some of the crabs they catch. When they spread out their pincers from their circular bodies they are about a foot across, their color is white and sky blue.

Some of the campers attended a Negro Church meeting last Sunday night, the church is not in town because no Negro is allowed to live in this city. I am planning to attend some night and will describe it in one of my future letters.

We are all well. Hope this finds all our friends the same.

Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

SMALL TOWN BUSINESS

So much attention is given big industrial organizations that we might lose sight of the fact that the great bulk of all business enterprise in this country is in the hands of the small business man. For instance, the small towns account for 50% of the gasoline sold, 60% of Cadillac cars sold, sends a larger percentage of youngsters to colleges per thousand population than the city, that a little over 99% of the manufacturing companies in our country employ less than 1,000 people each. This is why we stress small business, the importance of appealing to the small town sentiment. Look to what field a man eventually appeals for his vote getting, for your proof is the power of the small town market. Let us keep it free, unhampered and unprejudiced.

CALL OF THE LAND

Somebody said that you could take the man from the country but not the country from the man, and the longer we live the more we believe this is the wisdom of Plato. Thinking on it, study the many names of leaders in public affairs and find them country-bred and not straying too far from their father's quarter section! Travel doesn't remove it, this country from the man, for consider the sight-seers who return to the home site and call it good. Living in the metropolitan centers doesn't kill the yearn to get back with the cows and chickens for a vacation and a nostalgia for "those were the days." Read a story of rural life, see a painting of rolling farm land, barns, flocks, hay stacks, and the blood courses faster. The fact remains that the city streets smell not as sweet as new-mown hay. The boys who years ago worked at hard tasks on their father's land, chaffed at the bit to leave it all for a job in the city where fortunes are made. So off they went, acquired a home, a family, a position of responsibility perhaps, a feeling of well-being. Then they get him to look back, to reflect upon the heritage of the soil, and the idea which comes as a notion develops as a definite plan. They decide to invest in farm land, and the country gets its man. Many of the citizens of St. Joe have seen it happen again and again. The man comes home.

ALL OUT

A popular pastime with us has been the game of questions and answers. Guessing contests have been in favor in our national parlors through the recent years. Now it becomes a political fancy and we are asked to play the contest with the same pleasure. What we mean is, that so far none of the probable candidates intend to commit themselves on whether or not they are probable candidates for the presidency. Only one has definitely thrown his hat in the ring, at least you don't see him wearing one very often.

Would it not be a sensible plan, asks a Spencerville man, if some of the close-mouthed, supposed to-be aspirants would come out dennitely and make a few decisive statements on their policies, their hopes, aspirations, peace proposals, their sentiments regarding the handling of the labor situation? Would it not be wise for them to discuss openly and publicly the oppositions policies and then name their cure, to give the voters something to digest? Surely we deserve to know something of what these strong, silent types think, of their characters, their fitness. Must we wait until late and then leap in judgment, not know what we choose or why, not have an idea of platforms and plans that are to remedy certain ills? Make honest and free statements, refresh the jaded public mind with an open policy that may be bold in nature but at least a statement. We want to know intelligible plans on domestic problems and foreign policies and at least give us an opportunity to see the cards on the table before they start the play on the hand. But maybe it isn't that kind of a game.

WAGS

During the Civil War many thoroughbred horses were loaned to the sides by sympathizers of the conflict. They played an active part in the fray, the horses and their owners. Today our Army buys its horses which are highly prized for their service. However, we have an animal loaned to us today who is trained for war and serves us faithfully. War dogs or WAGS, are the pets of man who are conducting themselves under fire with the heroism and valor of man himself. Dogs have long before served in battle as sentries, messengers, rescue agents, and today they sniff out all kinds of danger traps. So daring and willing are they, so efficient in their duties that many of them have been decorated and commended for outstanding performances. It is fitting that we pay tribute to man's best friend.

The reason a man had to have his back treated was because he got a pain from bowing to the inevitable.

Have you noticed there is a shortage of poets who like to sit warmly tucked inside and write about the beauty of snow on your sleeve?

Overheard a man say it seems a little too early to plant the seed catalogue.

Lenten Menus

You can keep your menus interesting during Lent if you serve well-cooked, good combinations of favorite foods. Keep in mind the same balanced menu patterns that you use during the rest of the year so that the family will be well fed and happy. That pattern includes a good protein food such as fish, cheese or eggs. Add to this a supplementary nourishing food like macaroni, noodles or spaghetti and milk, and use plenty of vegetables in the diet.

These sample menus will give you an idea of what the balanced meal should consist:

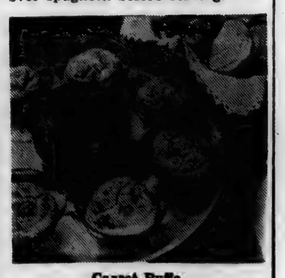
Spaghetti with Mushroom and Tomato Soup Sauce
Grapefruit and Endive Salad with French Dressing
Pickled Beets Mixed Pickles
Whole Wheat Rolls
Pineapple Upside Down Cake
Beverage

Carrot Puffs Creamed Asparagus
Chopped Spinach Salad
Hot Yeast Rolls
Lemon Chiffon Pie
Beverage

Here are recipes for two of the main dishes in the above menus:

Spaghetti with Mushroom and Tomato Soup Sauce.
(Serves 6)
1 8-ounce package of spaghetti
1 can condensed mushroom soup
1 can condensed tomato soup
1 soup can of water or milk
Hard-cooked eggs

Combine soups with milk in top of double boiler. Cook until mixture is thoroughly heated. Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and arrange on platter for serving. Garnish with quarters of hard-boiled eggs. The tomato-mushroom soup sauce may be served from a side dish or poured directly over spaghetti before serving.



Carrot Puffs.
(Serves 8)
1½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1½ cups grated carrots
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg yolks, add milk and stir into flour mixture. Add carrots and butter to flour mixture. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill greased individual baking dishes ⅔ full. Bake in a moderately hot oven (425 degrees) 25 minutes. Serve with a cheese sauce.

HONEST INJUN!

That's what the professors call a "paradox"—it sounds screwy but it's true.

If we say simply that the price you pay for electricity today is only about half what it was fifteen years ago, you don't believe us.

You figure that we're wrong because your electric bills are about the same now as they were then—or even a bit bigger. How can electricity be cheaper?

Like most folks, you forget all the electric appliances you added over those years. You were building up your use of electricity while our rates were coming down. And even though the present price is a lot lower, you're using a lot more electricity.

That's the way it is. HONEST INJUN!

Today, the average American family gets about twice as much electricity for its money as it did fifteen years ago.

The Nth Freedom

FREEDOM FROM UNCERTAINTY is a contribution of the insurance business to better living. By measuring risks and spreading costs, insurance frees the individual from the threat of disastrous loss. The record of modern insurance is one of sound business management at moderate profit, and constantly broader protection at lower cost.

The primitive man whose house was destroyed by fire or a falling tree lost all he owned. For thousands of years the dread of loss haunted men and made them wretched.

It was a heartening day when the first little group of citizens banded together to share such losses. That far-sighted plan, improved through the experience of generations, has been extended to cover a wide range of home and business hazards. And its cost is so low no prudent man can afford to be without it.

To enjoy the peace of mind that goes with thorough protection, you do not need to be an insurance expert. You can safely leave that to us.

Grades Five and Six

The pupils of our room have purchased a total of $390.50 worth of stamps and bonds during the school year, up to and including Feb. 8. On Feb. 1, the number of pupils participating was 78%.

A survey of the reading habits of the Fifth Grade showed that many of the pupils do serious reading in the daily papers. The list included everything from Ernie Pyle's column to the Want Ads.

We have a very active Stamp Club in our room. At present there are twenty-seven Hobbyists. Wednesday of each week is "Trade Day," when we bring in our extra stamps and trade for others. At present our collections are general, although some of us are beginning to see the desirability of specializing.

Paper collection in our room is beginning to mount. Altho the term is nearly over, we hope to be able to raise enough money to buy a few books for our library.

How Bees Live and Work

The bee eats moistened sugar when it can't get anything else. Then, too, they get beebread, beejelly, and honey.

The queen never goes outside the hive, so she never has any use for her sting except when she finds out there is another queen, becomes alive in the same hive.

Bees live in large groups. In the colonies there are as many as ten thousand to sixty thousand bees. There is just one queen bee to the swarm. There are several hundred males, but when winter comes, the workers sting them to death. Egg-laying is the queen's job. When there are enough cells made the queen goes around and glues an egg fast to the bottom of each cell.

The queen lives for about three or four years. The workers only live for about six weeks because of their heavy work. When the bees get weak and drop, there is no sympathy shown for them.

In the summer there is one work to be done, so the queen lays as many as three thousand eggs a day. Heavy laying starts about Feb. 15. Important duties of the workers are the care

In the summer there is more of the young. The mother queen pays no attention to them. The workers have to do all the work. All the male bees have to do is just sit around in the sun.

The Frog

Frogs are tailless animals which belong to the leaping family. They have four legs, a flat head, rounded nose, and a large mouth. They have long stout feet which are webbed. They have five hind-toes and four front-toes.

The frog makes a loud croaking sound. The bullfrog of North America grows to be between fifteen and twenty inches long. They are usually green in color with dark brown spots on their backs, and have yellow throats.

The female frog lays six hundred to one thousand two hundred eggs. They are usually laid in March or April. When the frogs are hatched they are tadpoles. The tadpole first grows gills. Next it grows hind legs, then the front ones. After that it loses its tail and it is a frog. —Lois Wyne.

In a game that saw the score deadlocked most of the way, the St. Joe Tigers playing headsup ball defeated Woodburn 32-30. The Woodburn team was giving everything they had to revenge the early season defeat that the Tigers had handed them. The score at the half was tied at 15-15.

Rarest Day of Calendar Has Legal History

That rarest day in the calendar comes around again this year—the twenty-ninth of February. As everybody knows, it was put in every fourth year to pick up that quarter day left over on the end of every year. This way of catching up was introduced by Julius Caesar, who brought an Egyptian astronomer to Rome to reform the calendar.

The extra day was added to February because this was the shortest month, then as now. The Romans wanted it as short as possible, because it was a time of fasting and "purification" in Pagan times.

In English speaking countries, the year with February 29 is called "leap year," because in that year the calendar jumps over the regular progression of days. That is if a date, say June 12, is on a Monday one year, it falls on Tuesday the following year, unless leap year comes along. Then June 12 is on Wednesday. "Leap" does not refer to women's prerogative of proposing, or "leaping" at a man, as many people think.

Leap Year Proposals.

It is this curious tradition, however, that interests nearly everyone so much more than any astronomical consideration. Strange to say, both the common and statute law of several nations recognize this right. The first record seems to be a Scotch statute of 1288 setting forth that:

"During ye reign of her most blessit maijestie Margaret, ilk maiden ladie of both high and low estatit, shall hae libertie to speak ye man she likes. If he refuses (to accept her) for wife, he shall be mulct (fined) in the sum of ane hundred pounds or less, as his estatit may be, except and always if he can make it appeare that he is betrothe to another woman, then he shall be free."

The records do not show that this law was rigorously enforced by the canny Scots. "Ane hundred pounds" was a lot of money, and the possibilities of racketeering no doubt occurred to some women. Perhaps the odd bit of legislation was quietly repealed. Nevertheless, somewhat similar laws cropped up on the books of Genoa and Florence, during their days as free city states, and an English book, published in 1606, states that:

"Albeit it has now become a part of the common lawe in regarde to social relations of life that as often as every bissixtile (leap) year doth return, the ladys have the sole privilege during the time it continueth of making love to the men, which they do either by wordes or lookes, as it seemeth proper, and moreover, no man shall be entitled to the benefit of clergy who dothe in any wise treate her proposal with slight or contumely."

With all this legal and traditional backing, nevertheless, women do not seem to have responded to their opportunities very often, at least according to the records.

Leap Year Day Necessitates Adjustment of Finances

In the field of finance and accounting, February 29—Leap Year day—causes quite a flutter. Interest figured by the day, for instance, gives one side a slight gain, and the other a corresponding loss. All sorts of records and statistics have to be adjusted, too. Legal complications frequently come up. At least two states have a statutory provision that the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth shall be called one day. People born on February 29 are something of a curiosity. Like the boy in "H. M. S. Pinafore," they have only one "birthday" in four years. Actually, they shove the kidding aside, and call the twenty-eighth their natal day.

AUTO LICENSE APPLICANTS FAIL TO BRING TAX RECEIPT

Local license bureau managers report that, despite the publicity given, many people apply for license with out having their personal property tax receipts or their poll tax receipts to show, or a certificate from the county treasurer showing payment of these taxes.

The law provides that proof of payment of these taxes must be submitted at the license bureau. Some have understood the law to mean that not only the receipts but also certificates from the county treasurer must be shown, but only the receipts are necessary. It is reported that the law has resulted in the payment of personal property tax and poll tax by a large number of people; and that no one resents the necessity of obeying the law, as they realize that if all people pay their taxes, the tax rates will be lower.

An interesting situaton has arisen in some cases where titles to automobiles are vested in women's names and their husbands failed to report such ownership to the assessors. Now it is necessary to list the cars for taxation and secure tax receipts in order to get licenses.

It wasn't so long ago that they said radio was still in its infancy, and from hearing lots of the programs we still maintain it hasn't grown up yet.

Among the 1-A draft men made available for service is Stephen E. Jacko, Kimmell, formerly of Garrett. Jacko was an HK tower operator here for many months. David L. Mann was placed in Class 2-B, as necessary in war production.

Rev. Wm. Clegg and wife, of Minneapolis, will become citizens of St. Joe about the first of April, having accepted the St. Joe and Coburntown pastorate. They are young people about 28, and will find two live congregations in which to work.

Fay Reichelderfer and wife, Dale Reichelderfer, Mrs. Marie Spencer, of Dayton, Ohio, and Mrs. Harry Adcock, of Hicksville, Ohio, called on their aunt, Mrs. Mary Betz on Thursday of last week. They had come to Harlan to make arrangements for the burial of their father, Fred Reichelderfer, who passed away at the home of his daughter at Hicksville on Tuesday night. The funeral was held Saturday at 10:30 and burial in the Harlan Cemetery. Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Betz attended.

Friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Roberts, Sunday, Feb. 20, in honor of Cpl. Robert Davis of the Marine Corps. Guests were: Mrs. Daisy Roberts and Kenneth Roberts of near Newville, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dean of Montpelier, O., Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dean of near Spencerville, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Mathes and daughter, Lola of St. Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dean and daughters, Marian and Devilla, of Montpelier, O., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dean and daughter, Joyce of Ft. Happiness does not depend on money or leisure or society, or even on health; it depends on our relation to those we love.

Some said he hadn't noticed folks having their shoes wear out due to walking instead of riding in automobiles.

ENEMY RADIOS DETECTED BY NEW LOCATOR

Fluorescent Tuning Reveals Illegal Tansmitters

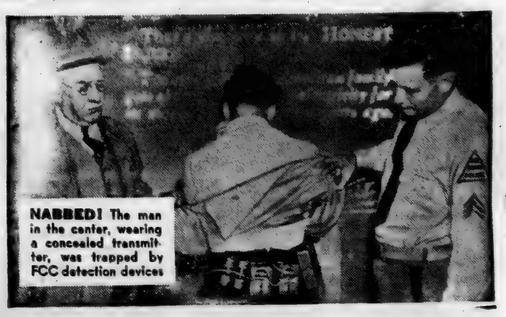
Panoramic receiver of a type used by the FCC.

CHICAGO—Details of new electronic weapon for detecting the use of radio transmitters by enemy agents, have been revealed by development engineers of the Hallicrafters Radio Company. The instant a spy attempts to transmit radio messages, a sharp cone-shaped line flashes on the surface of a fluorescent glass screen before the eyes of operators at monitoring stations of the Federal Communications Commission.

The new method, known as fluorescent tuning, enables the FCC monitor to observe simultaneously all radio transmitting efforts across a band of 100 meters

All stations—military, commercial, marine and radio-telegraph—appear on the fluorescent screen in the form of glowing peaks rising from valleys of radio silence. Other radio location finders enable FCC investigators to determine the geographic location of any illegal transmitter and apprehend the agents who are using it.

Panoramic receivers, which embody fluorescent tuning, are an ingenious adaption of the cathode ray oscillograph.



NABBED! The man in the center, wearing a concealed transmitter, was trapped by FCC detection devices

SENATOR WILLIS URGES PROMPT STATE ACTION

Senator Raymond E. Willis, Indiana's senior senator, sent the following telegram to State Chairman Ralph Gates and to Governor Schricker, urging that a special session of the legislature be called immediately to pass legislation making it possible for soldiers to vote:

"In view of improbable early agreement of congressional conferees, I recommend that you urge convening a special session to effectuate a state program to insure soldier vote and that the state of Indiana recognize her responsibility by an immediate call of the general assembly. The result will be a vote that can be counted by every Hoosier abroad, regardless of the action taken by the government in addition to preparations it has already made. Shortcuts that can be legalized—

"1. The use of federal postcard application in lieu of state application.

"2. Use of same in lieu of registration.

"3. Earlier deadlines for filing to the end that a printed ticket be available 45 days before election.

"4. Legalize a lightweight smaller ballot in keeping with state and national needs and safeguards.

"5. Validate the acceptance of any federal ballot that is constitutional if the state ballot shall not be available—in any case by 20 days before the election date.

"The chief point at controversy cannot be settled in the minds of the public or in the courts until after an election, and to avcid throwing the election of a president into a legal wrangle at this important time, the state must act quickly and surely.

"The suggestions of course are advisory and constitute one of the worksble programs that are open to us in Indiana to meet the responsibility that our founding fathers placed in the hands of the state. The immature and fraudulent subterfuge offered by the President is not safe and is not American."

(Signed) Raymond E. Willis.

MORTUARY

STEWARD

Le Anna Wearley Steward, Spencerville, Indiana, daughter of Greeley and Elizabeth Wearley and the widow of Fred Steward Sr., died at the Lutheran Hospital, Ft. Wayne, Indiana, early Monday morning, February 28, 1944, having failed to pass the crisis following a major operation.

Her son, L. Fred, was called by the hospital Wednesday night when her condition became critical. Her brother, Ort Wearley, Toledo, Ohio, came Sunday evening after it became apparent that she wouldn't recover. Her Mother, who has been staying with Ort for the past few weeks, wasn't able to make the trip with him.

A Memorial Service was conducted Wednesday afternoon in the Oetting Funeral Home, Harlan, Indiana, by her pastor, the Rev. Frank Stevenson, following which her body was taken to the White City Cemetery, Spencerville, Indiana, for burial.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Laub are moved by now into their home just remodeled, and known as the John Benninghoff farm, just east of Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Squires and Mrs. Eberly of north of St. Joe, were Saturday evening callers in the Mrs. Mary Betz home. Callers on Sunday in the same home were Mrs. Passen and Mrs. Mildred Wilson.

A free clinic will be held in Room No. 2 City Hall, Auburn, Ind., on Wednesday, March 8 from 10:00 to 12:00 A. M. and from 1:00 to 3:00 P. M. Dr. J. Vincent Sherwood from Irene Byron Saiatorium will be the examining physician.

Beginning the first of March, you will no longer have to return your old tubes when buying merchandise contained in new ones. We are told the tube containers made since the war contain so little tin that there would be nothing left to salvage. Thus, you are relieved of a wartime duty for the present at least.

Conde Lee, son of Pfc. and Mrs. Jack Guinn, of Auburn, has been a very sick little lad and was taken to Sanders' hospital last week and placed in an oxygen tent. He had the measles and later pneumonia developed. He is some better now but for several days his recovery was very doubtful. Pfc. Guinn is serving overseas and Mrs. Guinn will be remembered as the former Vivienne Zeigler.

This poem is dedicated to the Memory of our "Boys On The Honor Roll," by The Loyal Women's Class of Spencerville Lutheran Sunday School

"The Boys on the Honor Roll"

The boys on the Honor Roll
God Bless them all, I pray!
God watch them when they sleep at night,
And guard them through the day.
We've stamped their names upon our walls,
The list in glory grows,
Our brave boys and our splendid boys,
Who stand to meet our foes.

Oh, here are sons of mothers' fair
And fathers fine and true,
The little ones of yesterday,
The children that we knew;
We thought of them as youngsters gay,
Still laughing at their games,
And then we found the Honor Roll,
Emblazoned with their names.

We miss their laughter and their cheer,
It seems but yesterday:
We had them here to walk with us
And now they've marched away.
And here where once their smiles were seen,
We keep a printed scroll;
The absent boy we long to see,
Is on the Honor Roll.

So quickly did the summons come,
We scarcely marked the change,
One day life marched its normal pace,
The next all things seemed strange;
And when we questioned where they were,
The sturdiest of us all;
We saw the silent Honor Roll,
On each familiar wall.

The laughter that we knew has gone:
The merry voice of youth;
No longer rings where graybeards sit,
Discussing somber truth.
No longer jests are flung about,
To rouse our weary souls.
For they who meant so much to us,
Are on Our Honor Rolls.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Trostel of near Waterloo, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Trostel and wife.

Russell Leonhart, who lives on the Morr farm west of Concord, will move next week to a place located just south of the Shugar school house south of Auburn.

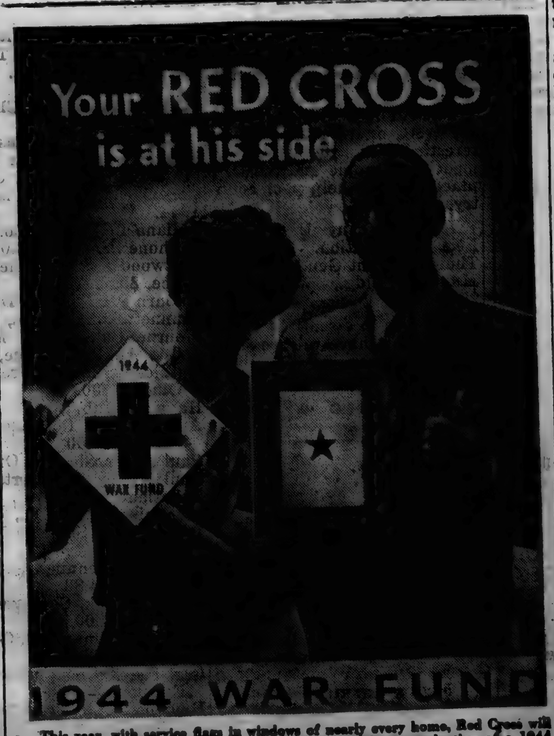
George Shoudel, who lives 3 miles north of St. Joe, will move the last of this week, to the Dorsey Hines farm of 80 acres, which was purchased by Ida Shoudel.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter, of Addison, Mich., arrived last Saturday afternoon with their household goods, and will soon start working at the Vance Woodcox farm near Coburntown. They were recently married by Rev. J. N. Scholes and Mrs. Porter will be remembered as Ruth Donley of this community, daughter of Mrs. Mary Donley of north of town.

Iona Woodcox is ill at his home and Ed Leighty is doing his work as janitor at the high school. Mrs. Beatrice Miller of near Montpelier is here assisting in the care of her father and with the house work until next week.

Mrs. Cal Laux received a message saying her brother, Ross Sumption, had met death when the car he was riding home from work in was struck by a freight train at Mason, Mich., on Feb. 19. The Laux's motored to that place Sunday and Mrs. Laux and daughter remained for the funeral and returned by buss on Tuesday.

Bob Harter, of New Guinea, has not used his spare time foolishly, because we have on display at News office a piece of art work of his production made from cartridges. It would be worth your time to stop and see it. Bob is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Harter at Newville. The display is the property of Maxine Woodcox.



This year, with service flags in windows of nearly every home, Red Cross will mean so much more to Americans. As depicted in this reproduction of a 1944 Red Cross War Fund poster, many windows also will display the symbol of participation in the cause of Mercy and Humanity—the Red Cross.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. YEISER, Publicity

The Lions enjoyed another "lug in" feast at the K. of P. hall, Monday night. It was a great feed and of course, the ladies, who were not present, deserve the credit. After the roll call Lion Stemen reported the scrap paper drive as progressing very satisfactorily.

Guests present were; Richard Freeburn, soldier at home on furlough from Alaska, Marine Bob Davis, who has seen service at Guadacanal and Midway, Jack Nye of the State Police, Roy Koch, Frank Leighty, Rev. Mumford, and Reign Schondelmayer, town marshal.

A communication inviting the Lions to attend the dedication of the Memorial at Auburn, next Sunday. On this structure at the north-west corner of the court house square will be the name of each person in our armed forces from DeKalb County. Our service boys were called upon by Pres. Leighty and made short talks.

Lion Fisher introduced Jack Nye of the State Police and he made a good and instructive talk on safety. With all of the talks and broadcasts about safety it is hard for us to forget the matter, but we go right out on the road and forget about it and the result is death, damage and grief.

Mr. Nye says it is safer on the battle fields in Italy than it is on our highways. 93,000 people were killed in civilian accident in 1942 and 94,500 in 1943, a total of 187,500 for the two years, as against 36,005 in war deaths.

Many of our motorists have sabotaged the war effort thru their carelessness. Our every car and tire is needed and carelessness with them is criminal. 45,000 automobiles are being taken off our roads each month and the cost in lost transportation is tremendous. 380,000,000 man days were lost in war industries in 1942, due to absenteeism, largely on account of avoidable accidents. Since Pearl Harbor, 51,800 have been killed on our highways, and of these Indiana lost about 1,800. Indiana had 3,033 highway accidents in one month in 1943.

Be careful. Don't sabotage the war effort.

The attendance contest is producing wonderful results and only about 1% of a lead was evidenced Monday evening by Captain Lion Ridgway over Lion Rectenwall. The executive committee decided that the contest would terminate with the meeting of March 27, and that the losing side would have complete charge of the program and eats at the meeting on April 10.

At the close of the session about 25 of the Lions were escorted to the Buckingham home by Lion Hollis Dilley, where the unusual in plant life was on display. The Sacred Lily of India is one of those rare kind and it has many wonderful features that no other in plant life can equal. Of course the lily is a bulb plant to begin with, and is planted in the spring and taken up in the fall. Each year the bulb increases in size, until when it is five years old it will weigh 9 pounds or more, and then it will start blooming for the first time. As it is stored in a cellar room, about the first of January, a pink tip will show forth, indicating that it would like to be moved to the living room of the home and there let the light of day (not the sun) assist in its further unfolding. Within a couple of weeks the stalk will start to shoot up and about the size of ones wrist, and a lily will unfold, when about 4 feet in height, and a dark red tongue about 24 inches long will shoot forth. The folds of the lily have a spread of about the same distance.

When blooming the bulb requires no water or earth, depending upon the substance stored in the large bulb. When the bloom has wilted the bulb will have been reduced in size to about 3 pounds. Should the summer season be dry so that the bulb fails to store up sufficient energy to produce a bloom, it simply declares an emergency until next season, and will then send forth a larger blossom.

When the bulb is planted in the spring it produces beautiful foliage for the summer but no leaves of any kind are clinging to the stalk when it makes up its mind to bloom, thus all the energy is used to make the blossom large and beautiful.

Did you ever see such a flower, if not and you would like to the Buckinghams would be pleased to show you, but the plant is fast fading for this season and may be gone before you can call.

"AN APPRECIATION"

In this manner I wish to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to my kind friends for cards, also cards from the children, letters, gifts and flowers. Words cannot convey the comfort and cheer they brought me during my stay in the hospital.

Flossie Rhoads.

From the Land of Sunshine...

Weekly Letter written for The News Readers by Clyde E. Hart, who is spending a few months in Florida.

Port Richey, Fla.
2-17-'44.

To our Indiana Friends:

In the palm grove where the ten cabins of this tourist camp are located, there are quite a number of hickory trees of an unknown variety and unedible quality of nut and like our northern hickories is of the diciduous class.

With the warm spring like days of the last two weeks enchanted by a number of warm showers, their buds have popped open and the leaves are fully half grown. While the water fowl which usually make the Florida waters their winter home are particularly scarce this season due to the target shooting and bombing from the nearby air training fields and camps, those few that are left begin to show signs of restlessness indicating that their time of migration is close at hand.

The same likewise we too are reminded that our time in this land of sunshine and tropical foliage is drawing near its end. We have been watching the weather reports from the north and they indicate no pleasant reception for us.

Yesterday was a great day for the territory surrounding Tampa, six hundred airplanes flew through the sky. I counted one hundred sixty-four over our camp, they sure made the air ring with their hum.

This will probably be my last letter as we will leave for home between the first and seventh of March.

With best wishes to you all,
Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

P. S.—Fishing is still good and the weather very warm.

One often wonders why it is so difficult for most of us to be ourselves.

Spring usually makes its appearance at this time of year here on the installment plan.

One thing about shortages, folks won't be going to doctors because they eat and drink too much.

A reader hopes the conflict overseas will die down soon to where they are throwing only pop bottles at the umpire.

It has been a long time since we complained about the awful detours around the county.

The trouble with Spring is that she is so hesitant about making up her mind.

OLDER AND WISER

There was a time when the case of the race question was attended by propaganda and not brought up for discussion because of too intense feeling. However, there grows a more sympathetic understanding and the way seems to be brightened for the Negro. We know that the American Negro has more advantages in this country than in any other, and the fact remains that there is an effort to improve conditions here. It is a step forward, for a nation engaged in fighting an enemy who is obsessed with the idea of being a super race, can't hold itself as the unparalleled people. Each of us in Spencerville have a responsibility to color and creed, we are learning as we grow older and wiser.

NOT THAT!

Overhearing a St. Joe woman remark about the skimpiness of skirts in present day dress patterns it brought to mind the days of World War I and fashion of that era. As clearly as we can recall and as well as our sense of waist and hip line will permit us, it seems that then fashion editors dictated a trend of flapperism. Present day youth with their boogie-woogie don't remember the popularity of the flapper and flapperese, as the jargon was named. Heaven preserve us from a return. A man here may not know a Hattie Carnegie from a home-made number of far less merit, but when you say flapper to him he becomes clothes conscious.. He goes back in memory to a long, low waistline that really was not at all, at belts strapping in a woman's hips instead of her waist, of a boyish figure and a head-hugging ugly hat. Please, not that!

DEDICATION OF COUNTY SERVICE BOARD SUNDAY

Judge William P. Endicott, of Auburn, will be the main speaker at the Honor Roll dedication to be held in Auburn on Sunday, March 5th, at 3 P. M. Judge Endicott is well known throughout the County for his long service on the bench of the Circuit Court. He has been very active in all civic matters both in Auburn and the entire County. Judge Endicott will make a short address which he will title "The Duty of Citizens in War."

The Honor Roll Committee has announced the program, and while it is to be of short duration, it promises to be a thrilling event. The High School Bands from Waterloo, Garrett, and Auburn will give a concert beginning at 2:30 P. M. and will play other selections during the dedication.

All servicemen and women of this war are urgently requested to be present in uniform, whether they are home on furlough or have been discharged. Their assistance is vital to the success of the ceremony. The Lions Clubs from Ashley-Hudson, Waterloo, Garrett, and St. Joe-Spencerville, and Auburn, will take part as will every American Legion Post in DeKalb County. Military guards, color guards, and a guard of honor will be posted.

The program as outlined by the Committee in charge, will consist of the following events:

2:00 P. M. Legionnaires and all World War No. 2 veterans in uniform will meet at the Legion Headquarters on E. Ninth Street.

All County Lions will meet West of the Court House on Eighth Street.

All Band members will meet on Cedar Street, just North of the Court House.

2:30 Band Concert will begin with music furnished by the Garrett, Waterloo, and Auburn High School Bands. Mr. Hal G. Hoham will be in charge.

3:00 William G. Weinert, President of the Lions Club, of Auburn, acting as Master of Ceremonies, will introduce:

Lodie Potter Mayor of Auburn.

Judge William P. Endicott, main speaker. Subject: "The Duty of Citizens in War."

3:15 Lions and Legionnaires will install panels of names into the Memorial.

3:25 Rev. Allen K. Trout, Minister of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Commander of the American Legion Post and member of Citizenship and Patriotism Committee, and Chaplain of the Lions Club will make the Dedication.

3.30 "America" to be sung by audience.

Civic and patriotic groups in Auburn are proud of the opportunity to remind everyone in the County of the great debt we owe to those, whose name will be inscribed on this Honor Roll. Possibly there are other smaller groups of individuals who are also contributing to this war effort who will not be given recognition. It is well known what the Red Cross workers and the Merchant Seamen, etc., are doing. They do deserve recognition that this type of Memorial is not capable of. That will have to be another project, although the Committee in charge of the Honor Roll can make no promises. In the preparation of the lists of names, Mr. Knapp was instructed to record only those who had been sworn into some branch of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or the Coast Guard.

DeKalb County can well be proud of its contribution of nearly two thousand men and women to the Armed Services of our Country. This will constitute the first public listing of all of these men and women in one group. Every person in the County is invited to be present at the dedication to pay tribute to our friends and relations to whom we owe so much.

Planless Planners

INCONSISTENT

While citizens throughout the nation are being urged to save waste paper and turn it in to salvage organizations several government agencies in Washington are burning their waste paper, as they have been doing for years. When a New York city newspaper exposed this situation federal officials denied it vigorously. Then the newspaper assigned staff photographers to make pictures of garbage men burning paper sent by federal agencies in federal trucks to the dump. Confronted with this evidence federal officials blamed it on "ignorance in the bureaus."

There's no doubt about the ignorance, but when "ignorant" bureaucrats do not observe the government's appeals to conserve materials that will contribute to the war effort can you blame the ordinary citizen who patriotically cooperates in salvage drives, buys War Bonds and pays taxes for becoming skeptical, resentful and belligerent?

Many independent voters join Republicans in wondering why the Democrats plan to hold a national convention in 1944. They're talking about only one candidate for the nomination for president.

SERVICE WITH A SMILE—A dream? No, it's real, a soldier's dream come true—breakfast in bed in the Army. It all happened at Camp Campbell, Kentucky, when Capt. Kenneth F. Maxwell, Jr., CO of Company B, 27th Tank Battalion, 20th Armored Division, decided that something special should be done as a result of the unit's fine showing in gunnery contests. So on Sunday the entire company was served breakfast in bed. Above, Sergt. Charles Micklick, of Pittsburgh, Pa., gets the meal. Patting the pillow into place is S/Sgt. Michael Spinella, of Mt. Pleasant, Pa., and service with a smile is supplied by T/5 Arthur Lavoie, St. Albans, Vt.

Grade News

The third and fourth grades are the proud possessors of the trophy flag this week. They were finally able to wrest it from Mr. Maxwell's room after 2 weeks of trying. The total sales for last week at the grade stamp and bond booth was $43.05 of stamps and two $25 bonds.

The sectional tournament held this year at Butler proved to be quite an interesting one with keen competition being shown throughout. St. Joe met Metz at 3:00 on Friday afternoon and completely routed them to the tune of a 55-28 victory for the Tigers. The game was never in doubt at any one time during the game as the Tigers held a commanding lead all the way. In this first appearance the Tigers looked impressive and it was hoped that an upset would be had over Garrett. However, the Railroaders weren't to be stopped and the Tigers fell before the Garrett team's onslaught 67-34. After taking on the St. Joe five the Garrettmen went on to defeat Butler in the semi-finals and Auburn in the finals Saturday night 42-35. Many favorable commetns were heard concerning the new flashy jackets that our Tigers were wearing.

The boys and girls in Concord Township who will be old enough to come to school in September, 1944, are invited to attend a party given by the First and Second Grades of the St. Joe School. Children who are six years old by January, 1, 1945, are legally old enough to come to school in this county. We would like them to be our guests for the whole day on Friday, March 3rd. Parents are asked to please only send children that will be old enough to come to school. If there are no older children in the family attending school, please ask a neighbor child to bring your boy or girl to the primary room. It is our hope and aim that these boys and girls may become just a trifle familiar with school surroundings. Your co-operation will be appreciated in making this a day of pleasure for these little people, who in a few months will be starting on a new adventure.

Mrs. Guilford,
St. Joe Primary Teacher.

Where To Park

Every one who drives a car has the problem of how and where to park. Before a person can park, he must know where he can park. A person shouldn't park in the following places:

A. On traveled portions of the road outside cities. (Unless it is impossible to move the vehicle.)
B. On a bridge or in a tunnel.
C. In front of private or public owned driveways.
D. On sidewalks.
E. Within an intersection.
F. Within 15 feet of a fire hydrant.
G. Within 20 feet of a driving entrance to a fire department.
H. Within 30 feet upon the approaching stop signs or signals.
I. Between Safety Zones.
J. Within 50 feet of railroad crossings.
K. Where official signs or markings prohibit parking.

Most of these places are marked by yellow lines painted on the curb. Every one should watch these places and not park there. We should also watch when we park for signs stating that you can park there only for a certain number of hours. If you park longer than the sign states or in the above mentioned places you will be fined.

—Jean Trenary, Safety 8.

How To Park

When you see a place where you can park make sure it is big enough for your car. Look at the lines to tell what way you are supposed to park. If it is the parallel parking, drive up a space beyond it and start backing, be sure to keep the middle of the back window even with the radiator cap on the car behind. Park from the curb between 6 and 12 inches, six inches is best.

If you are parking on a hill turn the wheels so they will be facing the curb. You do this so that if it started to roll it wouldn't roll very far because the curb would stop it. Be sure to put the emergency brake on before you get out of the car.

If you are trying to get out of a parking place look carefully both ways then drive into the street. When you're backing up to make room to drive out of the parking place toot the horn 3 short blasts so the people will get out of the way. If you obey these rules there will be less accidents.

—Jane Bragg, Safety 8.

Fighting Cameras

One would think that a camera in wartime is just about as important as a well-filled sofa cushion, but without the camera we would be fighting blindfolded.

They have cameras on the ground, but the aerial camera con do more harm to the enemy. There are two different types of cameras. One is the vertical and the other one is the oblique. The vertical camera points straight down all the time no matter which way the plane is. It shows the lengh, width, and breadth, but it doesn't show the heighth of the buildings.

You hold the oblique camera in your hand. You can take pictures with it any way you want to. It weighs about 75 pounds and looks like a cannon. It is better to use than the vertical because you can tell the height of anything as well as the width, length, and breadth.

Another camera is one which points right where the guns do. When the gun goes, so does the camera.

Flying cameras may be classified under two headings: reconnaissance and bombing. Reconnaissance is just snooping over other territory. It also finds the best target for bombing.

Color cameras can see right through camouflage as if it were cellophane. They use cameras before, during, and after a bombing raid. The targets are picked out before hand. The ones taken during raids show what mistakes they made (if any.) Then pictures after the bombing show how effective their bombing was.

Cameras can see through mist, clouds, and darkness. They see through mist and clouds by special lenses and filters. At night they drop flash bombs. Photographs taken with fighting cameras picture the way to victory.

That Hundred Billion

No wonder the Congress gasped at the suggested federal budget for the next fiscal year—one hundred billion dollars for one year's costs. Pencil pushers have been trying to work out a picture of what that sum means. Maybe this will do it: dig up a million dollars a day, every day, Sundays, holidays and all, year after year for just ten days less than 274 years, and if you have lasted that long, you will have dug up that hundred billion.

We must win the war, but it is not disloyal to share the growing feeling that federal non-war spending must be cut to the bone, commencing now.—The Dakota Farmer, Aberdeen, S. D.

MIDSEASON FAILURES BALK PRODUCTION

FIX FARM MACHINERY NOW

Keep your War Equipment Fit and Fighting. Do your part in the U. S. Government Campaign to promote the production, sharing and proper use of food.

THE Government warns that the supply of new farm machinery is limited by war so that all existing equipment must be maintained as long as possible. Fix your farm machinery now before the planting season arrives. Overhaul it, lubricate it and order needed spare parts immediately. Fortunate is the farmer whose repair shop is electrically equipped, so that electric motors may help him in this essential job.

The needs of war call for the most gigantic planting program in the nation's history—16 million more acres than were planted in 1943. This demand for the use of every productive acre means that all your farm machinery must be on the job for maximum efficiency.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY

CONSTITUTION SHOULD NOT BE IGNORED

The issues before the American people in 1944, in the opinion of a contributor to the Mail Bag column of a Washington daily newspaper, boil down to this: Are we going to have constitutional government or Rooseveltian government? Are we going to have government by established law or one-man rule?

Are the men and women in the armed services to receive a constitutional ballot or a Roosevelt ballot? War or no war, the Constitution of the United States should not be bypassed in this or any other respect. The kind of ballot proposed by the fourth term sponsors contains no names whatsoever, and restricts members of the armed forces to voting only for national offices. There has been no such ballot in the history of the United States.

The men and women in the armed forces should be given a ballot that enables them to know who the candidates for office are, to vote for all candidates, and to see the whole political picture at home, in every county and state.

Let it be remembered that the President who now expresses great solicitude for the voters now in the armed forces regarding their right to vote and who desires the "bobtailed" incomplete ballot vetoed the soldier bonus in 1935 and 1936.

The Nth Freedom

FREEDOM FROM UNCERTAINTY is a contribution of the insurance business to better living. By measuring risks and spreading costs, insurance frees the individual from the threat of disastrous loss. The record of modern insurance is one of sound business management at moderate profit, and constantly broader protection at lower cost.

The primitive man whose house was destroyed by fire or a falling tree lost all he owned. For thousands of years the dread of loss haunted men and made them wretched.

It was a heartening day when the first little group of citizens banded together to share such losses. That far-sighted plan, improved through the experience of generations, has been extended to cover a wide range of home and business hazards. And its cost is so low no prudent man can afford to be without it.

To enjoy the peace of mind that goes with thorough protection, you do not need to be an insurance expert. You can safely leave that to us.

The editor of the Alice, Texas, News admits that "It's supposed to be treason to report a New Deal defeat, but when the Republicans win the series in four straight like they did in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Kentucky, you can't keep it off the air any more than you can keep Eleanor at home. Those election returns, especially the Kentucky, gave the New Deal a headache no aspirin can ease. The Republicans came south and freed the blacks 80 years ago. Now it looks like they are coming back to free the white folks."

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The name "Jeep" was first given to a converted MM farm tractor, shown above, and used during maneuvers at Camp Ripley in 1940. This military tractor was termed "Jeep" by James T. O'Brien, then a private in the 109th Ordnance Company, Minnesota National Guards, who now is a First Sergeant in the United States Army. Sergeant O'Brien says he called it "Jeep" because it could go almost anywhere and knew all the answers just like the "Jeep" in the Popeye cartoons, who also knew all the answers and if treated right could do many unusual things. This dispels the popular misconception that the nickname came from the contraction of the words "General Purpose" (GP), an Army and agricultural tractor term "Jeep" became Army parlance and it is acknowledged that if it were from "General Purpose" the spelling would be "Geep." The original Minneapolis-Moline Jeep was a four wheel drive machine made expressly for pulling big guns [illegible] ammunition now used on many battle fronts.

TWO ST. JOE GIRLS RECEIVE THEIR CAPS

Miss Louise Sechler and Miss Betty Drake were members of the class of 72 girls who successfully completed the six-month probation period at Indiana University Nursing School at Indianapolis last week. This was the largest class ever to be capped in the history of the school. The ceremony was held Thursday night March 2, in the Auditorium of the Medical School building.

The service was opened by singing "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," the Florence Nightingale Hymn. After being capped ,each girl was presented with a white candle lighted from the lamp of Florence Nightingale, who was impersonated by a young woman from the Senior class. The 72 girls, with lighted candles, formed three rows, facing the audience. As they lifted their right hands and took their vows, they made a beautiful, impressive appearance.

The solemnity of the ceremony surely helped everyone present to realize the responsibilities which girls who offer their services to the Nursing Profession must assume and with world conditions as they now are their service to humanity may be more than we can now realize.

Following this, a short address was given by the Dean of the Medical School. The service was closed by the class singing "The Lord's Prayer."

Almost all of this class are members of the Nurse's Cadet Corps and will receive their uniforms in the near future.

Betty and Louise each came home for the remainder of the week, returning Sunday afternoon.

FROM an Unknown SOLDIER

So you're sick of the way the country's run,
And you're sick of the way the rationing's done,
And you're sick of standing around in line,
You're sick, you say—well, that's just fine!

So am I sick of the sun and the heat,
And I'm sick of the feel of my aching feet,
And I'm sick of the mud and the jungle flies,
And I'm sick of the stench when the night mists rise,
And I'm sick of the siren's wailing shriek,
And I'm sick of the groans of the wounded and weak,
And I'm sick of the sound of the bomber's dive,
And I'm sick of seeing the dead alive.

I'm sick of the roar and the noise and the din,
I'm sick of the taste of food from a tin.
And I'm sick of the slaughter—I'm sick to my soul,
I'm sick of playing a killer's role.
And I'm sick of blood and of death and the smell,
And I'm even sick of myself, as well;
But I'm sicker still of a tyrant's rule,
And conquered lands where the wild beasts drool.

But I'm cured damn quick when I think of the day
When all this hell will be out of the way,
When none of this mess will have been in vain,
And the lights of the world will blaze again,
And things will be as they were before,
And kids will laugh in the streets once more,
And the Axis' flags will be dipped and furled,
And God looks down on a peaceful world.

4-H WORK STARTED

4-H Club organization for girls was started in DeKalb County last week, according to an announcement made by Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent. The home agent visited two schools this week in Butler and Ashley.

Looking back into the accomplishment of 4-H Club activities in the county last year, 523 members enrolled in home economics projects and 401 members completed the projects. These 523 girls were enrolled in 1120 projects. This shows a remarkable record of the number of activities carried by each of the girls. These girls were under the supervision of 21 adult leaders. This year, we are hoping that completion of projects will be higher than that in 1943 and that club members will enroll in the projects, only with the idea of completing them.

Eleven 4-H Clubs made the requirements for standard completion which was 85%. Five of these 11 clubs had 100% completion. The records show that the projects increased from 1942 to 1943, 497.

4-H Club is a national organization which stands for an educational program for rural and urban boys and girls. 4-H Clubs have as their motto, "To Make the Best Better," realizing the importance of responsibility and character building as part of the entire program. We are encouraging girls to join 4-H Clubs all over the county in an effort for them to assume their responsibilities in family living and to make a very definite contribution to the war program.

Last year, for the first time, there was a victory project which is a timely project, giving credit to the boys and girls who are doing various kinds of labor on the farm and in the home. The main requirements for this project was 100 hours of service in the home, on the farm or in the community. This proved to be a very popular project with an enrollment of over 400 and it is hoped that the continued interest will be shown in this year's program.

Save your good linens by keeping your table top waxed highly and using the best parts of old tablecloths cut into plate doilies and hemmed. It is possible to use the more worn parts of your old linen cloths for dishcloths by stitching them back and forth on the machine for reinforcement. To save on sheets, turn the sheets end for end from time to time. Don't always put the wear on the wide hemmed top. Turn it to the bottom and distribute the wear. You can often remake the bottom part of a worn sheet into long wearing pillow cases. Use parts of worn bath towels for wash colths. Crochet around the edge or use bias binding of color for a neat trim.

One of the very important functions of the American Red Cross is the direct communication it affords between the fighting man and his people back home. Here Red Cross Field Director John L. Barnes (left), of White Plains, N. Y., gives a message to Sgt. William J. McDonald, Jr., of Mamaroneck, N. Y. Picture was made in Sicily outside a straw Italian hutch with the rear headquarters of the 1st Division near Mt. Etna.

On Masera island, up in the Persian Gulf, where there is not a single tree standing and the wind blows across the island ceaselessly, Red Cross field men brought fishing tackle, books and writing paper to service men. Most welcome gift from the Red Cross was clippers for hair cutting—the boys had been without a barber for months.

In Persia, a Red Cross Field Director was able to locate a soldier's mother whom he hadn't seen for 25 years.

In Africa, Red Cross field men flew in Army planes, hitch-hiked in supply trucks, bumped in jeeps over bombed convoy routes, through blinding sand storms and glaring sun to help men with personal problems and emergency communications, and to deliver magazines and books, cigarettes and chocolate to isolated posts and bases.

In India, a sergeant was sentenced to the guard house for disorderly conduct. His officer couldn't understand the boy's behavior. He was a nice kid—he'd never gone to pieces before.

The officer asked the Red Cross Field Director to see him. The Red Cross man discovered a very worried boy. His wife had not been receiving his allotments, she wasn't well and needed an operation. She thought the soldier must have cancelled his allotments and a misunderstanding had arisen between them so that she was no longer writing him.

The field man got in touch with the Red Cross chapter in the boy's home town immediately. It took care of her, financed her operation and saw that she had adequate funds to provide for herself until the allotment again came through.

When the Red Cross man explained what had happened to the soldier's Commanding Officer, the latter promptly released the boy from the guard house. From then on the boy was all right. His worries were over, and the Army had gained a good fighting man.

All over the world, in every theatre of war and active battle front go the American Red Cross field men—helping soldiers with major and minor personal problems, bringing them recreational items such as magazines, books, comfort articles, athletic equipment, and re-establishing their contact with home. These men share the conditions and hazards under which the soldiers fight. They also share their lives. They are on call day and night whenever they are needed.

G.I.'s overseas have many problems. Often home seems very, very far away. With the Red Cross there at hand wherever he may be, the soldier knows he can always get in touch with home—that he need never feel alone with problems he doesn't know how to solve himself. More than 3,000,000 service men passed through Red Cross field men's offices last year.

On the mud clogged roads of Italy, through the far jungles of New Guinea, on lonely desert posts, Red Cross field men take your place beside your boy, in order to continue this service, the Red Cross urgently needs contributions from the American people to its $200,000,000 War Fund drive this month.

SPRING MILLINERY

Besides the planning of gardens mentally, since the weather keeps the eager inside with the catalogue, comes the planning of Spring millinery which also finds its fashionable following most expectant. February compels the wearer to hold on tight as winds whistle and March doesn't offer much in hatted freedom, either. Windy March is apt to toss a felt for blocks, swish a veil from shoulder to sidewalk and disarrange a top-not of pansies. As the barrenness of winter gives way to the spirited, slightly warmer March days, the nature of man turns to soil while the nature of woman turns to hats. From the spring previews the winds will not have much, in the way of brims, to flutter, but the tons of nodding blossoms and yards of veiling will offer a nice bit of disarray. A feminine reader says women will return to the long hat pins if necessary to keep the millinery in place. Blow gently then, ye winds!

V-MAIL

The United States Navy tells the nation that if it doesn't use V-Mail more widely that overseas airmail might have to be discontinued. This will also affect the Army and result in loss of letters to boys over there unless we co-operate. ONE average sized transoceanic plane can carry 400,000 V-mail letters, and it would take a fleet of 112 planes to carry the same quantity in ordinary air mail letters. Naturally with the warfare increasing on all fronts, we would not ask for additional planes to carry air mail letters. Mail is as important to many men as medicine. It is the tonic, the spur, the vitamin tablet to a lonesome lad and so V-Mail is given the priority of medicine itself! Since we want the boys to get all the mail possible and since we wouldn't take needed combat planes for mail service, it seems that V-Mail it is.

WITH MUSIC

The Office of Civilian Defense trained to watch and fight fires in case of attack. This precaution seems unnecessary now that the danger of invasion has passed but the custom will not pass into oblivion for it was not a new bit of defense started by this war's need. Back in 1677, published in London, was "Rules for London Fire-Watchers" which was a precautionary measure to protect the town after its Great Fire of the few years previous. "The Sentinel hath a place on top of the highest Steeple whereby he may look all over the Town; one is by Day; the other by Night; and every two Hours in the Night he plays half an hour upon a Flagelet, being very delightful in the Night; and he looks around the City; if he observes any Smoke or Fire or Danger of Fire, he promptly sounds a Trumpet and hangs out a Flag toward that Quarter of the City where the Fire is." Our fire wardens missed out on the flute part!

IT'S THE TRUTH

Every four years the American people exercise the right as citizens to engage in the election of a president. Foreigners do not know the process in which our political parties engage, perhaps, and of the tremendous business of campaigning with its vile muddling which follows as part of the office-seekers procedure. There is nothing much refreshing about the scene, for politics seems to be a tough business at best. But other nations know somehing of it, for from what we read of their elections they too have campaign problems and name-calling. However, during a period of war when unity is so highly desired among the Allied nations the various angles of so-called "dirty" politics might affect the name of a friendly nation. Winston Churchill has wisely cautioned the British that during our presidential campaign there will be some rough things said about Great Britain as certain candidates will use this method to gain votes from some quarters. Churchill understands politics and advises his countrymen "not to be unduly concerned by anything that should be said or written in the course of that great constitutional process which is taking place." And we are proud hat we hold the power and the rights as citizens of this country to proceed with our constitutional process which is taking place." And we are proud that we hold the power and the rights as citizens of this country to proceed with our constitutional process of a presidential election.

WAR DEFIES

The bombing of the monastery in Rome, in order to destroy a fortress of our enemy, was unavoidable though regrettable, we understand. Too frequently objects of art, culture, and refinement are destroyed by the enemy through wars. History points to the destruction of churches of all the ages when warring people take a stand. It may be an ecclesiastical center, a corner holding a single shrine or a simple resting place for the weary. Warring man fights his enemy with all the modern equipment of his time and by fair means and too often, foul. Always the sanctity of the sacred is defiled since war iself is not consecrated to the service of love and brotherhood. When an army makes a church a stronghold from which to kill, to destroy the church in battle is not to destroy the faith which built it. Coveting, hating, persecuting and havoc are the hand-maidens of war. Our enemies have hesitated to bomb Rome, and have made their military projectives only those that would impair the enemy and aid our cause. They have tried to protect religious centers since it is not the principle of Americans to bomb churches. Nevertheless, the time has come when Rome can no longer be promised safety from attack even its cultural buildings, its historical sites. The Axis are aware of the advantage in making such a city a fortress. Russia knows only too well the outcome! We have been told that Rome is to be the key to the Axis break so then can we fail to attack Rome? If we might sit in St. Joe and Spencerville and choose a spot on our map for waging a battle, it would probably be on open plain far from churches, schools and homes, away from the babies, mothers, and weak and infirm, but we are not given a choice.

Local School News

Score another triumph for the Senior Class of the Concord Township High School. They have just announced that they have secured the rights to present Lavender and Old Lace at the High School Gymnasium on March 31, 1944. Since this is the very first production of the play in our town it is no wonder that the announcement has caused a great deal of interest and comment. The fact, too, that the novel was so tremendously popular has strengthened the desire of folks to see the play. Years ago Myrtle Reed, the popular novelist, wrote Lavender and Old Lace. The book sprang into such popularity that for a long time it was difficult to procure a copy. Although Miss Reed had produced a long list of best sellers before this work was published it is this same Lavender and Old Lace that she will always be best remembered by. Rose Warner has made the dramatization of the novel and without losing any of its warmth or color she has fashioned the charming story into a thoroughly modern play. Because Miss Warner loved the novel so much and was so sympathetic to its story she has been able to do full justice to this great masterpiece of fiction, and there are many laughs and a wealth of entertainment gathered into her play. The Seniors are working like Trojans to give a smooth and finished performance, and with the able assistance of Mrs. Buckner there can be no doubt that this performance will be as good if not better than many plays seen in the professional theatre. A perfect cast has been selected and rehearsals are now in progress. In order to encourage this fine group of ambitious young Thespians the entire town should turn out en masse and give their play a rousing reception. So tell everybody you meet about it and remind them of the date, March 31, because everybody will be raving about Lavender and Old Lace for weeks after they've seen it.

The third Army-Navy College Qualifying Test for the Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy College Program V-12 which will be given throughout the country on Wednesday, March 15, at 9:00 A. M., will be administered at the Concord Township school, Mr. C. O. Duker announced today. A leaflet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at The School. This form properly filled out will admit to the test students between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive who are high school graduates or who will be graduated by July 1, 1944. Intent to take the test should be made known immediately to Mr. Duker in order that the necessary supplies may be ordered.

The same examination will be taken by both Army and Navy candidates. The examination is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training and all qualified students are urged to take the test. At the time of the test each candidate will be given a choice of service preference, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The Army Specialized Training Program is aimed to meet the Army's need for specialists and technicians in certain critical fields of study. Academic work is at the college level at government expense.

The Navy College Program also enables students to continue academic training at government expense. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the Navy.

Sickness and Accident Insurance

My parents should have accident insurance so that if my parents should happen to get sick they would have money to pay the doctor's bill and I wouldn't have to worry about where to get the money to pay it with. Or if they were working in a defense plant and got their fingers cut off they would have money to keep their kids while out of working condition.

—Albert Edward Wade, Grade 7.

Insurance for Store Owner

It is very important to have accident insurance on yourself especially if you have a family. If you own a store you should have insurance on your clerks. If a clerk is disabled he will receive his pay as usual. The working man can't afford to be off work in these war-times. But if he has insurance he can rest and not worry about his family and his job. It doesn't matter how long you are disabled you will be still collecting from your accident insurance company. Your family can collect if the father dies and there is no other way of income.

—Jack Bowser, Grade 7.

Essay

There were 9,300,000 persons in United States—or one out of every fourteen—were disabled from accidents in 1942. If you carry life insurance you will be on the best side with protection. Nine out of every hundreed persons in the United States spend an everage of twelve days in the hospital each year. The reason I think it is best to carry life insurance is that if you are layed up in the hospital for a long time from accident or sickness your insurance company pays part of the hospital bill.

—Lola Mae Davis.

Insurance

Parents should carry accident insurance because now that transportation vehicles are being loaded heavier and people are working faster and longer hours, accidents have greatly increased every year. One sixth of the nation's income is lost as a result of sickness and accidents. Sickness and accidents come when least expected but if the people have been wise and invested in the proper kind of insurance the bills, that otherwise would pile up to worry the patient and keep him from recovering quickly, will be properly taken care of by his insurance company.

—Luella Washler, Grade 8.

Art

Art is brought about by worship. Ruskin said "Art is the work of the whole spirit of man. There are two kinds of art: (1) Primitive Art which is work such as embroidery, and (2) Fine Art which includes painting, music, sculptoring, poetry, and architecture.

In McFaul's history of art it tells us that the first art was on a very flat surface and had a strong outline. Very brilliant colors were used and gilt was used for the background. Utchello, a Catholic monk, was the first artist who used perspective and made things look round. De Vinci was the greatest portrait painter. Velasquez was the court painter of Spain. He made Christian paintings. They revealed the divinity. The Van Dykes of the Netherlands were the greatest portrait painters of royalty and they had lovely subjects. Giotto made the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

The first kind of American Art was miniature painting. There was no photography at first, so they drew pictures. These miniature pictures could be made on porcelain with colors they could fire or with oil painting or they could be made on ivory with water colors.

WOMEN AT WAR

Sophia

Mrs. Kimball and Mrs. Worthington, dressed soberly and wearing their best black gloves, walked along the stony country road back toward Sophia Hardy's farm, to pay their visit of condolence.

"How do you reckon she'll be bearing up?" Mrs. Kimball asked Mrs. Worthington. Both ladies wore their most solemn, funereal expressions.

"A mighty severe blow," Mrs. Worthington said. "Mighty severe. To lose your only son, the mainstay of your declining years. And such a dreadful death, too—to go down with a ship. Mercy!"

"The first of our boys from Hand County to go, too," Mrs. Kimball said, mournfully. "I wouldn't blame Sophia Hardy for feeling right bitter."

They stood on the simple stone doorstep, with downcast eyes, getting themselves into the proper commiserative mood.

"Come in!"

The voice was brisk and cordial. They looked up in surprise. Sophia herself had come to the door. As they followed her into the parlor they exchanged glances, with eyebrows lifted. Sophia was not even in mourning. The parlor shades were not even drawn.

"It's nice of you to come," Sophia said. "Do sit down."

"We came," Mrs. Kimball said almost reprovingly, "to tell you that our hearts are bleeding for you in your great loss."

"We know how lonely you must be out here," Mrs. Worthington said. "With nothing to take your mind off . . . off . . ." She sniffed and reached in her purse for a handkerchief.

"Oh, I keep busy," Sophia said. "I've just finished applying for the Government insurance on Tom's life."

The visiting ladies could not resist a shocked glance at one another.

"I want to get it right away," Sophia said. "So I can put it into War Bonds. My boy hasn't finished fighting yet, not by a long shot."

The ladies were so occupied with feeling horrified, so titillated by this callous behaviour in a bereaved mother—that neither of them noticed Sophia's hands. Under the folds of her clean print dress, against the seat of her chair, they were tightly clenched.

Employees at the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington are getting a big kick out of the story about the little boy who wanted $100 very badly and decided to pray for it. He prayed for several weeks, with no results; so he wrote a letter to God. The post office finally decided to forward the letter to the White House and it was shown to President Roosevelt, who chuckled and ordered $5 sent to the boy. The lad was delighted that his earnest prayers had been answered, in part at least, so he wrote a thank-you to God, but added this P. S.: "I noticed you routed your letter through Washington, and as usual those bureaucrats deducted 95 percent."—Jerry Kluttz in Washingon Post.

Suggesting that the New Deal label be discarded means little. The philosophy behind that label, with its lackadaisical "spend and spend, elect and elect" attitude is the all-important factor to discard. To bring that about a surgical operation must be performed, with Dr. Anti-New Deal Taxpayer-Voter as the surgeon, at next November's election.

IS he slogging along some muddy road . . . or huddled beneath a leaky tent? Do you see him now, thirsty beneath a broiling sun?

Or is your boy fighting a wintry blast in the land where winter never ends? . . . Yes, millions of people worry tonight for the men in the lands that God forgot.

But if your heart is sick with longing for some special boy . . . remember this and find comfort . . . wherever he may be, in the frozen wastes of Iceland or the jungles of New Guinea . . . you can reach out and give your boy some little comforts that speak of home.

He will get coffee, doughnuts and other American comforts when the long march is over . . . thanks to you.

He will sleep between sheets when he gets his furlough, in a town ten thousand miles from home . . . thanks to you. Even should he be a prisoner of war, he won't be condemned to live on alien bread. For every week the Red Cross will carry to him a carton of food. Yes, eleven full pounds of real American food, the kind you used to give him at your own table. And real American cigarettes and tobacco!

He will get all this . . . and more . . . straight from your heart through the Red Cross.

Because the Red Cross is you—the Greatest Mother in the World, because it represents all the mothers of America. The Red Cross is your blood and your bandages, the sweaters you knit and the gifts you pack.

And the Red Cross is your money too! This year when your Red Cross has a bigger job than ever before to do . . . this year when your Red Cross is serving your own sons in every corner of the globe . . . this year you will want to give more, more of your time, more of your work, the blood from your heart . . . and more of your money to help the work go on.

So dig deep and be glad. For wherever he is,

GIVE TO THE RED CROSS

THE BUTTER BLOB

The War Food Administration appears to have blundered in the Government stockpile program.

It is revealed that 100 tons of butter has been held in storage so long that it had become unfit for table use and had to be sold to civilian industrial buyers for use in cooking.

The WFA insists that this can be considered "a reasonable amount of loss" in view of the size of the stockpile, which is now estimated at 130,000,000 pounds.

The answer to that is that neither the WFA nor any other Government agency should hold in storage a pound of butter or any other scarce but important foodstuff until it is unfit for table consumption. This isn't the time for that kind of bungling.

The Government stockpile is too bulky anyway. What good reason is there for holding 130,000,000 pounds in storage? Does the WFA dispute the assertion of trade leaders that this enormous stockpile will mean a carry-over of more than 90,000,000 pounds into the 1944 producing season?

In wartime it is important that people have confidence in their Government. Reading that 100 tons of butter have been held so long in storage by the Government that it has spoiled for table consumption is no way to induce the person who has been wearing out shoe leather looking for a half pound, to stand up and cheer for those running the show in Washington.—Syracuse, N. Y., Herald-Journal.

The Nth Freedom

FREEDOM FROM UNCERTAINTY is a contribution of the insurance business to better living. By measuring risks and spreading costs, insurance frees the individual from the threat of disastrous loss. The record of modern insurance is one of sound business management at moderate profit, and constantly broader protection at lower cost.

The primitive man whose house was destroyed by fire or a falling tree lost all he owned. For thousands of years the dread of loss haunted men and made them wretched.

It was a heartening day when the first little group of citizens banded together to share such losses. That far-sighted plan, improved through the experience of generations, has been extended to cover a wide range of home and business hazards. And its cost is so low no prudent man can afford to be without it.

To enjoy the peace of mind that goes with thorough protection, you do not need to be an insurance expert. You can safely leave that to us.

1944 PRODUCTION DUBIOUS

"A cut of nearly 10 per cent in vegetable crops for canning. A continued hog glut that has broken through price floors. No peace in the government-cattlemen beef battle. Worries about a coming wheat shortage Pruning of the hemp-raising program. Thunder over the co-ops. A glimmer of daylight ahead on building materials and machinery. A floor for egg prices, at last. Rain and snow for the thirsty Midwest and Southwest.

"These are some of the highlights of the farm news this month. They are more bad than good, and add up to the possibility that 1944 may be the year in which record-breaking farm production ends. If so, men, more than nature, will be to blame.

"Chief hope is farmers' ability and determination to overcome every obstacle and do the seemingly impossible. They've done it before, may do it again. They'll put up a terrific fight anyway."

Richard Crow and family are now residents of Concord Township, having moved last week to the farm purchased of Floyd Weikel.

STROMBECK IS AMONG GRADUATES

Upon completion of an intensive 12 weeks course in the maintenance and repair of the peeps and jeeps, scout cars and trucks that give the hard-hitting armored divisions their speed of movement, a class of qualified automotive mechanics had been graduated today from the Armored School at Fort Knox, Ky.

Among the graduates were: Sergeant Otto J. Strombeck, son of Mr. John O. Strombeck, Sr., of R. R. 1, St. Joe, Ind.

The soldier students received thorough instruction in the theory of automotive mechanics and fundamental shop practice in the school's Wheeled Vehicle Department. They studied actual engines, skeleton vehicles and visual aids of many types.

Practical repair and maintenance work was performed on vehicles in the field working in wind, rain and other difficulties to give the students practice under battle conditions. Expert army and civilian instructors supervised work in shop and field.

The Wheeled Vehicle Department is one of eight in the huge Armored School, headed by Brig. Gen. P. M. Robinett, commandant.

—LOCAL SCHOOL NOTES—

Hardly a bookcase in America that hasn't at one time or another sheltered a copy of Myrtle Reed's famous novel, "Lavender and Old Lace." And now it is The Seniors who come forth with the glad news that they have made arrangements with the famous play publishers, Samuel French, to present a dramatization of this famous novel. Billed as a modern play, we wanted to know something about Rose Warner, herself a novelist of note, for it was Miss Warner who made the dramatization. "I suppose I'll have to admit that I've had the idea of turning Miss Reed's imperishable novel into a play for a long time," Miss Warner assured us. "But somehow I was always reluctant to start. It is a difficult task indeed to turn a novel into a play. Readers of a book get a fixed idea of the characters into their minds and they take those ideas along to the theatre with them when they go to view a dramatization and often with disastrous results. I wanted to be certain that I could make a really fine play out of the novel before I attempted it. Then, too, I wondered if the situations in the novel would lend themselves to modern treatment. So I was especially happy one evening to encounter a former friend and ardent admirer of Myrtle Reed's at the home of a mutual friend. We talked for hours about turning the story into a play and she finally convinced me that it should be written from a modern viewpoint by stating emphatically that the sentiment in Lavender and Old Lace was so honest and real that it would live forever and that all generations would enjoy seeing this great and vigorous story. I thanked her heartily, went home, and then I started the first rough draft of the play. Of course it took several months to complete the manuscript but it has been a source of great joy to me to read the enthusiastic reports and write-ups that we have received from the various places where this play has been presented recently." A record-breaking crowd is expected to attend the showing of "Lavender and Old Lace," so don't forget that it is to be given on March 31 at 8:00 in the St. Joe High School Gymnasium.

The Sophomore English Class taught by Mrs. Buckner is having a real treat this year because they get the Reader's Digest regularly and also get a big discount on books like "The Tale of Two Cities," "Jane Eyre," and "Withering Heights." Good books and magazines are very, very important for all school children. More and better books are needed for our high school library. However, the Sophomores are lucky to have the privilege of reading such good literature for such a small amount of money. The special price on these books to school pupils is 35c per copy and the fourth month each pupil gets a book free. Most of the class have 16 books already. Bill Billow, Carmen Freeburn, and Russell Ridgway have around 30 books.

The eighth grade girls beat the sophomore girls in basketball Wednesday noon. The score was 11-4. Betty Hutton, Mary Moore, Janice Bragg, Beccy Inlow, Doris Trenary, and Marcia Guilford played on the sophomore team. Joan Trenary, Bonnie Barnett, Jane Bragg, Lola Davis, Marjorie Bleeks, Nancy Monro Josephine Baughman, Audra Stewart, Carol Rosenbury and Marilyn Wade played on the 8th grade team.

The seniors were measured for their caps and gowns this week. There are thirteen seniors left. Commencement will be April 21 at 8:00 in the high school gymnasium. Baccalaureate services will be held in the Lutheran Church on April 16 at 8:00. This year's seniors are Bessie Baughman, Elliott Lee Bragg, Pat Carpenter, Maxine Conevrse, Joan Diederich, Virginia George, Allen Haller, Jean Hurni, Jim Kees, Ned Keller, Gerald Means, Beverly Swander, and Mary Louise Woodcox.

Red Cross

The Red Cross has a lot of duties. Red Cross workers are at all fighting fronts. They bring the soldiers food and coffee after battles and cheer them up. These Red Cross members visit the fronts in clubmobiles. Clubmobiles are trucks fitted up with tiny kitchens and filled with food, soft drinks, cigarettes, and magazines.

When a wounded soldier is taken to a hospital behind the lines a Red Cross worker is waiting to make him comfortable. They arrange classes in special work for the handicapped. Homey clubs have been set up in all parts of the world so a soldier may come to them when he is on leave.

In peace, the Red Cross money is used to help victims of earthquake, fire, flood, wrecks, and other disasters. But this year 90% of the money will go for help to the armed services.

The Red Cross provides 95% of all the bandages used by the armed forces. Blood plasma is collected by the Red Cross. Also the Red Cross recruits nurses for the Army and Navy. It is the chief means by which persons in this country can communicate with servicemen in prison camps. It supplies cigarettes, clothing, study material and food to these prisoners. Each week 8½ pounds of food goes to each American prisoner in Germany.

A worried soldier is not a good soldier so the Red Cross members are sent with each military and naval unit. They help the soldiers with their problems. All this work is carried on only with the help of money contributed by the citizens at home. There are no other funds. —Janice Bragg

New Books for Grades

Grades 1-6 are securing a catalogued library of their own. A rather spacious cupboard with shelves has been placed in the third and fourth grade room. This, a central location, will be the new library headquarters. All the old fiction books are being catalogued and placed in this center. Reference books for the individual rooms will be kept in their respective rooms as was previously done.

Ninety new books have been purchased to add to the reading material in this new project. Parents see that our children are encouraged to read! All of the money derived from sale of salvaged paper goes into this project. Save all your waste paper, turn into the school by notifying any 5th or 6th grader, Mr. Maxwell or Mr. Duker. It will be picked up and more books purchased with the proceeds.

—C. O. Duker.

The Marshall Islands

The Marshalls lie north of the Gilberts, which were taken by our forces a little over two months ago. The Marshalls were taken on Jan. 31. From the air, the Marshalls look like green and white beads scattered over a blue table top. Most of the Marshalls are in the form of atolls, which are strips of land surrounding quiet bodies of water.

There are thirty atolls in the Marshalls, which are sprawled over an area of seven hundred miles from east to west and 650 miles north to south. The atolls are arranged in two parallel chains running from northwest to southeast. Near the center of the eastern chain lies Kwajalein, the largest atoll of the world. On this atoll the Japanese had built their strongest defenses in the Marshalls.

The invasion fleet of the Marshalls was as large as our whole fleet when Pearl Harbor was attacked. The invasion fleet was made up of some of our most powerful battleships and about 30,000 men. The commanders were Vice Admiral Raymond Spruance and Rear Admiral Richmond K. Turner.

The Marshall Islands were the first enemy territory in the Pacific to come under American control. (The Solomons and Gilberts were placed under British commissioners when they were captured.) In preparation of this invasion, planes had flown over the Marshalls at night, taking pictures. After the danger spots were known, the invasion was carried out with less danger.

By the capture of several of the Marshall atolls we are one step closer to Tokyo. This invasion brought us about 2,400 miles from Tokyo. The question now is, "What will become of the islands in the future?"

—Wayne Hook.

Mr. and Mrs. Coral Platter and son, of near Ossian, stopped in St. Joe a short time Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Platter was to report to the draft board at Auburn at 6 o'clock.

"Stand Up and Be Counted"

President Roosevelt dared Congressmen to "stand up and be counted," insinuating that by voting down his Federal vote bill for soldiers without a roll call vote they are afraid to publish how they voted. Later this bill was badly defeated and there was a roll call and the votes are recorded for all to see.

But there are some hundred and thirty million people in this country, including prospective candidates in his own party, who would like for FDR to stand up and be counted as to whether he wants a fourth term or not. If he doesn't want it, there is no reason on earth why he should be a candidate, as the armed services are figuring out the strategy and doing the fighting, and Congress furnishes the money.

Any possible "draft," so-called, which can come only from a few million political jobholders who want to continue to keep their feet in the public trough and hold their soft jobs, doesn't mean a single, solitary thing unless FDR wants it to mean something.

And the public regards his attitude of refusing to declare himself on the fourth term as just as bad, no better or worse, as the concealment of the vote of any senator or Congressman on any measure that comes up.—Brewery Gulch Gazette, Bisbee, Arizona.

Cecil Wisler arrived home last week from spending several months in Alaska on a construction project.

One of our townsmen wants to know why that fellow on Widney Ave. carries an umbrella when the sun is shining.

Mrs. Allie Metcalf returned to her home in Huntington Monday, having spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham.

A heavy sleet storm struck us on Monday night and Tuesday, disrupting the telephone and electric service for many hours. Baby chicks suffered with many farm women becoming frantic for heating facilities. Light lines were broken down by falling limbs. The streets looked as though a cyclone had struck.

STATISTICS are tricky things to toss around.

Obviously, ½ of a bathtub wouldn't hold water very well! That figure means merely that some 3 out of 5 American homes have bathtubs.

Obviously, also, the electric figure applies only to homes that have electric service. But as a nation-wide average of all those homes, it is a fact —and perhaps surprising to many people.

Most families own more electric appliances now than they did in 1929. Over the years, as they used more electricity, they earned lower rates — and the rates, too, were steadily reduced.

So — though your bill today may be as much as it was in 1929 — or even more — you're probably getting twice as much for what you pay. And remember that the price of electricity has stayed down while most other prices are going up.

That makes it just about the biggest bargain in your wartime budget!

For this you can credit the electric companies, manned and managed by business people, under public regulation. Their hard work has made electric service dependable and cheap.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Leighty:

Just arrived here last night and as yet haven't learned much about the camp, but I think it's the neatest appearing of any that I've been in so far. The ride from Cincinnati lasted forty-four hours and most of us were ready to quit.

Texas is just what they say it is—flat and level. The grass and trees are green already. From all appearances they have had quite a lot of rain the past few weeks. We saw three towns under water coming down. Looks like rain today.

Would like to tell you more about my training, but right now I don't have much time.

My new address is enclosed which I thought would help get The News to me quicker.

Miss Pauline Roth, of Fort Wayne, was guest speaker for the day with inspirational and devotional messages.

Thirty-five members and guests were present to enjoy the lesson and the way she presented it. A box lunch was eaten at noon in school day style.

All enjoyed the christian fellowship, the worship and study period and carried some of its cheer as they visited in 35 homes of the shut-ins and absent members. This day was counted an outstanding one in the life of the class.

The guests were Paul Tustison, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bartholomew, of Waterloo, and Miss Mary Aumann, of Fort Wayne.

COUPON E AND R UNDER STRICT REGULATION

Further explanation of the regulations applying to the handling of E and R gasoline coupons for non-highway for use has been given out by OPA.

As previously stated all E and R coupons for non-highway farm use must be endorsed with the name and address of the holder. This rule is now in effect. It is provided that if the holder gives the coupons as a unit to his supplier, he need not endorse each separate coupon but may write his name and address across the whole strip or on a single coupon of the strip. The endorsement may be made with an ordinary lead pencil.

An additional regulation effective April 1 and just announced makes the R coupon invalid for buying gasoline at filling stations or other retail establishments unless such retail place has received permission from the OPA district director to accept such coupons on the ground that more than half its business consists of bulk transfers. The E coupons will be accepted both at retail outlets and at bulk plants.

Any holder who wishes to do most of his dealing with retail outlets may have R coupons exchanged for E coupons by his local rationing board.

These new regulations are aimed at the breaking up of the black markets which are threatening the supply of gasoline the farmers need for actually carrying on their farm business.

The LIONS CLUB

Clyde E. Hart, Publicity

The Lions Club met Monday evening, Mar. 13 for their regular meeting, with almost a full attendance of members. Lion Rectenwall reported the greatest gain in membership in the Lions Clubs of the world for the month of January since its beginning.

The club here is divided into two divisions under the leadership of Lions Ridgway and Rectenwall, the former had 100% in attendance the latter showed 88%. The past five months Ridgway had 86.1% and Rectenwall 84.2%.

Lion Halstead, district commander of the American Legion, from Rochester, who is a prominent Lion in his city, gave a history of the Lions Clubs in his section of the state.

Dean Bechtol, of Garrett, State Commander of the American Legion, gave the principal address of the evening. Mr. Bechtol drew a vivid picture of the terrible cost in lives in the present war. The strain of war is beginning to tell on all nations of the world and it has come to the place where the nation that can endure the most will survive.

Negotiated peace must never be made but it must be settled for good. The rehabilitation of the wounded must be the first consideration. Mr. Bechtol explained the Omnibus bill before Congress for which the Legion stands for the rehabilitation of the Soldiers and Sailors.

He plead for the people to be charitable with the returning soldiers.

A potluck supper was served to the Basket Ball players from St. Joe and Spencervlle, the coaches introduced their players. This was considered one of the best meetings of the Lions Club.

Republicans To Confer With Farm Leaders On Policy Program

The sub-committee on Agriculture of the Republican Post-War Advisory Council will hold a two day conference with farm leaders on April 3 and 4 at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago.

This committee is making a thorough study of this basic industry and will report its conclusions to the Republican National Committee when it meets in June, the report to be used as a basis for drafting a platform for agriculture and for the guidance of the Party after the next election.

The committee believes that the best source for information and advice on agriculture and its problems is the farmers themselves and therefore has invited farm leaders to present their views at the conference to be held in Chicago.

The five leading national farm organizations—the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange, the Farmers Union, the National Council of Farmers' Cooperatives and the National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation—have been asked to send representatives to the conference who will present the results of their studies of the farm problem.

This is the first meeting of its kind ever called by any political party, with the officials of the party conferring weeks preceding its national convention with the official leaders of agriculture.

Republican party leaders believe that the farm problem is economic rather than political and that it should not be made the subject of political controversy. They believe, however, that the nation cannot prosper permanently until agriculture can be placed on a basis where farmers will receive their full share of the national income.

Agriculture has been made a stepchild by the New Deal. The White House Palace Guard considers the farmers as mere pawns in their scheme of things and has been bending every effort to completely regiment them in their plan of agricultural operations controlled from Washington. They have lost sight of the fundamental truth expressed by Thomas Jefferson when he declared: "Were we to be directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

The conference with farm leaders will be conducted by the sub-committee consisting of the following members of Congress and state governors: Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, Chairman; Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska; Senator R. E. Willis of Indiana; Gov. Sumner Sewall of Maine; Gov. Sam C. Ford of Montana; Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen of Idaho; Gov. Edw. J. Thye of Minnesota; Rep. Clifford R. Hope of Kansas; Rep. August H. Andresen of Minnesota.

SMITH

Samuel L. Smith, age 65, was found dead in his bed at his home in Auburn Junction early Friday morning. Coroner Kenneth Kaylor, of Auburn, was called and found that death was caused by angina pectoris, a heart attack.

Mr. Smith had been having trouble with his heart for the last nine years. He was up and around Thursday and seemed in his usual health when he retired at 10:30 Thursday night. He was found dead at 4.15 Friday morning and it is believed that he had been dead about fifteen minutes.

Mr. Smith was born near Spencerville on Sept. 8, 1878, and had resided in that community most of his life. He was a farmer by occupation. He moved in 1940 to Auburn Junction.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Jessie, one daughter, Mrs. Goldie Rankin, of Fort Wayne; one brother, Emory Smith, of Ft. Wayne; a half brother, Warren Smith, of Newville Township; a half sister, Mrs. Clara Rhoads, of Ft. Wayne, and 2 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the late home at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and at 2:30 at the Scipio Methodist Church west of Hicksville, O., on Road 37. Burial was made in the Scipio cemetery. Rev. George Brannon, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene in Auburn, conducted the services at the home and Rev. L. B. Sharp the rites at the Methodist Church at Scipio. The body was returned Saturday afternoon from the Walter funeral home at Spencerville to the residence at Auburn Junction.

HOME EC. CLUB

The Home Economic Club was entertained at Mrs. Doris Keiser's March 17th with Mrs. Katie Storer, Mrs. Laura Washler, and Mrs. Kathryn Haller assisting. The president, Mrs. Millie Shull, called the meeting to order and asked all to join in reading the club creed and singing the club prayer. Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick presided at the piano for the song of the month, Loch Lomond. All sang Brighten the Corner Where You Are. Roll call was responded to by Irish jokes. Club voted to pay $5.00 to Red Cross.

Mrs. Laura Washler and Mrs. Kathryn Haller, project leaders for the month, demonstrated the following dishes, medley vegetable, very attractive by the arrangement in the dish, and oatmeal fruit crisp. Both were baked in oven and served later.

Mary L. Moore, Home Demonstration Agent of the County then presented, Being a good hostess and a good guest in the form of a true and false and passed other interesting literature. She spoke at length on the "Victory Garden Telephone Mart," that was thought up and tried out by her and others last year, meeting with so much success will be used again this year and we hope to be better organized in St. Joe and Spencerville. There is a three column article in Prairie Farmer, Feb. 8th, issue, telling about our plan here in DeKalb County. Miss Moore says she has received letters from seven states wanting to know more about the plan.

County president, Mrs. Ruth Dilgard gave some interesting high lights on the Purdue conference in January at Lafayette. DeKalb County receiving the trophy for best attendance of the state.

The committee served medley vegetable, oatmeal fruit crisp, sandwiches and coffee, with the Irish shamrock and pipe as favors. The April meeting will be with Mrs. Lula Armstrong, with Mrs. Edna Jenkins, Mrs. Georgia McMaken, and Mrs. Mary Washler, assisting.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post Auxiliary No. 283, St. Joe, Ind.

Regular meetings each 4th Tuesday of each month.

Josephine Kees, Pres. No. 283.

March 27, 1944 regular meeting to be held at the country home of Ann Sechler. All members urged to attend. Plans for new Legion Home to be discussed. Report of District meeting.

"Home" that's what the men in the fighting forces are thinking about, talking about, dreaming of in all the far places to which we have sent them. To hear them boast about their home towns—the finest places in the finest country on earth! A crossroads village or a great city. it's all the same. To the boy who comes from there it is the center and soul of the country for which he is fighting.

Twenty-five years ago an organization was formed at a meeting in Paris in mid-March. That was to make their home towns better places in which to live—The American Legion—So on each anniversary of the Legion's founding, the Auxiliary emphasizes this service to the "Home community." The place closest to the heart of our American fighting men. Taking care of our home town, loving the home town while they are gone, making it a better place for them to dream and come back to.

Josephine Kees, Pres.

Meade Baker, former resident here, was removed from the Ball Memorial Hospital at Muncie, Sunday, March 12th, to the home of his brother-in-law, John Kane, at Fairmount. His condition, so far, has shown but slight improvement.

"He May Talk Me Into It"

Phil Loring in Providence, R. I., Evening Bulletin

You wonder how folks ever lived to a ripe old age back in the unenlightened era when a vitamin was unheard of and tomatoes were considered poisonous.

OVER-POPULATED?

There is a popular belief that over-population is too frequently the reason back of war. Geography shows places where certain areas find 400,000 people living in one square mile. So we might feel the planet to be a crowded spot and expansion a necessary evil. Before we decide we are pushing for breathing space and our place in the sun, consider how a mathematician has it figured: all the inhabitants of the world could sit in rocking chairs in the one state of Texas! A professor of physics says that the world's population might be dropped into Lake Ontario and each person have 60 square feet to himself "in which to boat or swim or sink." Here in St. Joe, we prefer to rock in Texas.

DURING LENT

If ever Lent should be observed by religious followers, it should be this year. The forty days that prepare us for the observance of Easter, should find us offering prayers abundant for those lives in our Army and those of our Allies. If we have been negligent in our supplications that peace might soon come to the world, we should use the observance of Lent in which to beseech most earnestly for the well-being of our loved ones and our country. Whatever man's faith, the time for prayer comes to all and we know it, power and acknowledged force will sustain the ones for whom we ask protection.

JORG FOR CHAIRMAN

Although there has been no formal announcement, it is a foregone conclusion in Republican circles of Indiana that Ralph F. Gates, of Columbia City, who for the past several years has been state chairman of the Republican state committee, will be nominated for the office of governor at the state convention in Indianapolis to be held the first of June. Republicans from all parts of Indiana were at the state capital last week-end to attend the annual state-wide dinner which is each year sponsored by the Indiana Republican Editorial Association.

Among the party members gathered for that occasion there was practically unanimous feeling that the vigorous state chairman should be the party's standard-bearer on the state ticket. That means that Indiana Republicans will soon have a new state committee chairman to select. With a campaign behind us in 1940 that was considered a model of vigor and organization efficiency, what better man could be found to carry on the task when Mr. Gates must hand over the reins, than the chairman of this Fourth Congressional district, Roy Jorg, of Ligonier.

He has done a fine job in this district, and his close contact with the aims of the state committee in its program of unity and vigorous activity in recent years will give him opportunity to keep party matters on the move, without loss of momentum. Sure, why not Jorg for state chairman.

SAY PLEASE

Those who shop in cities where working conditions are not normal due to the war, where salaries are higher and store merchandise is depleted and fingered as a consequence of heavy buying, will tell you that service seems to be failing in comparison to the pre-war years. Folks who ride busses and street cars, trains and taxies will mention the amount of discourtesy one finds today. They will figure, as a general rule, that Americans are lacking in the old-time graces that used to accompany the serving of the public. That was supposed to help business. But now, with the product hard to get, the purchaser finds that often the independence of the dealer is far from being good business manners. Chivalry in crowds is said to be lacking. Since there is a shortage of help as well as merchandise, you frequently find a clerk who serves you as though he is doing you a favor. War manners, some will say. But on the other hand you will find the majority of folks sympathetic of the workers position today, knowing that in many cases help is scarce and not experienced. Most of us will wait our turn, will cheerfully stand or good-naturedly be pushed around because we blame it on the war and we feel that after all, the irritated clerk or the nervous attendant didn't start this war. Perhaps all of this might be a pretty good way for us to develop some pleasant natures, which will stand us in good stead after the war.

ON CHEWING GUM

Any athletic can tell you why the U. S. Army takes chewing gum to war. Each combat ration unit issued by the Army contains a stick of gum. The athlete has used it to increase the flow of saliva in a dry mouth and knows chewing gum relieves thirst. He finds it reduces the tension of strained, worked muscles and that chewing steadies the nerves. This holds true where men work or fight under any strain, and is not supposition but scientific research proves the statements true. During normal times the average citizen chews 180 sticks of gum a year and from two minutes minimum for each cud. With combat units needing gum overseas, soldiers in training need it at home, civilians have to let their jaws rest more frequently. British scientists inform their soldiers that chewing gum does not change the contour of the face, so maybe they will join us in our national pastime.

STILL WASTING

If ever a point was proven, the lesson that waste makes want has been demonstrated through these war years. We should have listened to history in the past, heeded our fathers who knew no such abundance or luxury as have we. Millions of American housewives have found difficulty in purchasing food although as a nation we are far from starving. Yet, over 8 per cent of all the food bought for home consumption is wasted and this amount alone would feed the greater part of our armed forces here and abroad! There is waste along the line that the housewife can't help; from farm thru distributer to consumer. An expenditure of lost time, and manpower adds to the waste. But this is no excuse for St. Joe and Spencerville women to fail in the kitchen. The lesson of waste in food is of paramount importance. The one of waste of paper is effective in a bill offered in New Jersey legislature that would consider the burning or destroying of waste paper a crime to punishable by a 3-year prison term or $1,000 fine. This is going some to punish for wasting, a thing that should be curbed without need of law and fine behind it. So essential have things become to us that we have taken them as necessities that will always be forth-coming. We waste, toss aside, disregard, overlook, destroy, until we lose them, and only then do we realize our abundance, might end.

GILLIE FILES FOR RE-ELECTION TO CONGRESS

Rep. George W. Gillie, Republican, of Ft. Wayne, today filed with the Secretary of State his Declaration of Candidacy for re-election as Indiana's Fourth District Congressman.

Gillie was first elected to Congress in 1938 and has been twice re-elected, each time with majorities of over 20,000 votes. In all three elections he led his ticket.

As the only Indiana member of the important House Committee on Agriculture, Gillie has had an influential part in formulating Congressional farm policies.

He has a record of complete support of all measures for the prosecution of the war, but has frequently opposed the President on domestic issues. In recent weeks, for example, he has voted to over-ride Presidential vetoes of the anti-subsidy and tax bills.

Gillie's district includes the Counties of Allen, Adams, DeKalb, Steuben, Wells, and Whitley.

In announcing his candidacy for re-election, Gillie expressed his appreciation of the privilege of having represented the Fourth District in Congress "during the most critical and eventful years in history."

"The approaching election," he said, "should be of vital concern to all Americans. It will have an important bearing not only on the prosecution of the war but on the formulation of our post-war policies. It can strengthen and unify, or weaken and divide us.

"Congress today stands as the bulwark against a tide of executive usurpation of power which threatens the very existence of our Republic. We hope and pray that during the next two years Congress will have a real part in the writing of a just and lasting peace, and will fight with increasing vigor for the preservation of our free institutions.

"I am convinced that our influence at the peace table would be immeasurably strengthened through the election, in November, of a President who would work with, rather than against, his own leaders in Congress.

"In filing my papers for re-election, I thank the many thousands of my friends who have made my service in Congress possible, and express the hope that I may continue to merit their confidence and support in the coming election."

HON. GEORGE W. GILLIE

Reclaim That Brush

Good paint brushes being scarce these days, it behooves the housewife to clean up old ones and give them better care, declares the Home Editor of Capper's Farmer, Topeka, Kan., whose advice on household matters is read by 1,250,000 farm families. Fortunately commercial preparations are available. The powder forms are perhaps easiest to use, since they are mixed with hot water in needed quantities.

The electric companies belong to WAR has helped destroy a lot of America's old illusions. The idea that all South Sea beauties look like Dorothy Lamour. The idea that all Englishmen wear monocles and all Russians whiskers. The idea that all electric companies are the exclusive property of a handful of wealthy people.

Actually, few if any other industries are so widely owned. Directly, by many thousands of individual stockholders—housewives, farmers, mechanics, factory workers, teachers. Indirectly, by the millions of savings bank depositors and insurance policyholders—which includes almost every adult American.

Utility securities are investments with the insurance companies and fraternal orders which hold your savings in trust for you. Why? Because cheap, dependable electric service is so basic to your way of life. Because this service is provided by experienced business management.

Wherever you live in America—on Main Street, Park Avenue, or RD No. 1—your money has helped to build the electric industry and you have a large stake in it.

Local School News

The trophy flag is again on display in 3rd and 4th grade room, making the second time this semester it's been wrested from those "go-getter" 5th and 6th grade pupils.

The total stamp sales for the grades last week amounted to $36.70.

The school assembled for announcements in the gym on Monday afternoon at 3:40. Mr. Duker announced that there would be school on Saturday, March 25 to make up for the Friday we took off after Thanksgiving. There are a certain number of required school days in an eight months school. This is the only day we have to make up this year. We have missed no school this year although we about froze to death two or three days to keep that record. Another announcement was that Mr. Glen Lekher. Entomologist of Purdue University, will give a chalk talk on Thursday, March 23, during the fourth period. Mr. Wicon reports that Mr. Lekher is an "ace in his profession" and feels that this will be a real treat for the school.

Another announcement was made concerning P. T. A on Tuesday night, March 21 at 7:30 P .M. in the High School Assembly. The following program was handed out to everyone:

Group Singing....Miss Merrill
Devotions.....Rev. Stevenson
Reading ...Mrs. Don Washler
Solo .....Jean Perkins
Discipline and Delinquency
..... Mr. Billow
Should Mothers Work? Mrs. Allen Haller
Important Business.
Come, Let's Really Do Something to Prevent Child Delinquency in Our Community

The paper drive is still on and another collection will be made Thursday. Over ten dollars was made the other time and the money was spent for library books for the grades. This is a very valuable addition to our school.

The high school library is greatly in need of books too but they are not to get them until they learn to take better care of the magazines and books they already have. This is a small price for high school students to learn to pay for such valuable advantages.

After these announcements by Mr. Duker, Mrs. Buckner announced the Senior Class Play "Lavender and Old Lace" to be given at 8:00 on March 31 in the high school gymnasium. A free ticket will be given to any student in the upper six grades who sells six adult tickets. Tickets are 30c for adults, 20c for high school students, and 15c for grade students. An additional 5c is added to price of any reserved seat ticket. Reserved tickets are taken care of at Bowman's Drug Store.

The school is getting along fairly well without the janitor but we do miss him a lot. The students and Mr. Duker and hd have been doing the janitor work We all feel that Mr. Woodcox has done a very good job as janitor and appreciate him even more since he is not here. We hope he gets well soon.

A Famous Legend

The title of "Lavender and Old Lace," even to a younger generation that knew it only from the willing lips of their elders, is hallowed in the history of the American theatre. For years a dramatization of Myrtle Reed's beloved novel toured and toured throughout the country, playing both the large and small cities. Long after it was through as a play, Alice Hamilton used the famous story as a vaudeville act with terrific success. Now it has remained for Rose Warner to make a fresh version of this inspiring story, and it will be presented here on March 31 in the St. Joe High School Gymnasium by the Senior Class. And this is not a play that is wrapped in mustv memories of the past. For Miss Warner has made a graceful, lively, and thoroughlv modern play from Miss Reed's novel. The world is in a chaotic condition. Never before has there been such a great need for both physical and mental courage. It is this courage that "Lavender and Old Lace" supplies through the medium of its great philosophy —in fact, the play is a saga of courage, Miss Warner feels that the theatre of today is a place to go for entertainment and mental stimulation. It is a place to go to dream and feel and indulge oneself in a complete and perfect relaxation. "Lavender and Old Lace" is a very ambitious play for amateur actors to attempt and it requires several weeks of sustained rehearsing in order to ring up a curtain on it successfully. There can be no doubt that the gymnasium will be crowded, that an atmosphere of intense excitement and expectancy will prevail on the evening of March 31 at 8:00. And when the curtain rises and the audience sees Myrtle Reed's famous story come to life again with the magic that only the theatre can supply, then they will be grateful to The Senior Class for giving them an evening of rare entertainment.

Our No. 1 War Crop

Eli Whitney never knew that his invention of the cotton gin would help the United States to win World War II. Cotton is used so much in the war that without cotton the war could hardly continue.

When a man enters the army, he gets 29 cotton articles including 2 shirts, two pairs of trousers, 2 twill caps, 2 neckties, waist belt, 4 handkerchiefs, 2 pair socks, pair of suspenders and 2 name tags tied to 40 inches of cotton tape. Cotton is also used in truck tires, for tents, jeep tops, balloons and blimps, ski suits, camouflage suits and many other articles made of cotton are used in the Army.

Even the cotton seeds are used, now. The seeds are run thru a press and cottonseed oil is pressed out and the remains are used for cattle feed, fertilizer and flour. The fuzzy linters are also used. Smokeless powder, useful in war, is one item. Plastics for airplanes, rayon, varnish, dynamite, writing paper, X-ray films and other war products are other things made from cotton.

Cotton is so vital to the armed forces that if we had no cotton in our possession, not a one of our fighting men could continue in action.

Safety 9—Backing

You should go out on a deserted country road to practice on backing. The engine is running and the shifting lever is in neutral. Disengage the clutch and shift the gear lever up and to the left. Engage the clutch slowly and exert a light pressure on the accelerator. While you are doing this look out your left window to see where you are backing.

There have been four hundred persons killed yearly by backing. Sound your horn when you are backing out of your garage and look out sides to the rear. When you are backing you must watch for pedestrians and traffic.

—Joann Mitchener.

Architecture

Architecture is the most useful art. This is shown in the architecture of Frank Lloyd Wright. One of his favorite homes in Fallingwater in Bear Run, Pennsylvania. Fallingwater is constructed above a natural waterfall in such a way that its walls are built in the natural rocks of the gorge. Frank Lloyd Wright has broken away from the artificial rock work as well as from the columns and other historic forms which were indispensable to the classicist.

—Junior Burnes.

Heroes With Four Feet

Last November the U. S. Marines landed on Bougainville Island on the Solomons and with them went the first full Marine Dog Platoon. These dogs were trained in a special "boot" camp for canines at Camp Le Jeune, New River, N. C. Six of these dogs became heroes and were promoted to the rank of corporals.

Caesar, a German shepherd was trained to be a messenger. For two days and nights he was the only means of communication between his company and its battalian command post. One night Caesar and his trainer were concealed in a fox hole. Caesar's keen nose detected a Japanese soldier who was ready to throw a hand grenade into the fox hole. The dog sprang out and sank his teeth into the Japanese throwing arm. The Japanese screamed and ran away. Two shots were fired and the dog was seriously wounded. He then was carried to the rear on a stretcher. He now is getting along better.

Army dogs have also made the headlines. One of the most famous is Chips. He helped to invade Casablanca and later Sicily. When his company landed on the beach, an enemy machine gun opened fire. The men threw themselves down and Chips darted forward into the Machine nest. He kept them busy long enough for the men to capture the machine gun. Army men wanted to give him the Distinguished Service Cross, but it is against Army regulations.

I think that dogs are doing their part to help win the war, and that they should receive much credit.

Gasoline ration A-11 coupons retained their value of 5 gallons each when the reduction in gasoline rationing took effect at midnight Tuesday. The OPA explained that while the numerical value of each coupon will not be reduced, the reduction will result from making the A-11 coupons extend for 3 months instead of two months. The A-11 coupons are valid through June 21.

Thirty-one DeKalb County gasoline stations are to be "docked" 3,003 gallons because of the acceptance of invalid coupons from customers, John Scott, Indiana OPA enforcement attorney, announced at Indianapolis Monday. The coupons lacked proper endorsement or bore counterfeit or illegible endorsement, according to Mr. Scott. The OPA reported that it is penalizing the stations in prosecution of its campaign against the black market. In Ft. Wayne, 89 stations were docked 25,953 gallons and in Indianapolis 156 stations were docked 50,000 gallons. The period during which the gallonage is to be docked is 60 days, Mr. Scott said.

In a recent letter received from S/Sgt. James Draggoo, stationed somewhere in India, he enclosed the following description of a Hindu wedding that he and several of his Buddies had the privilege of attending, as it took place right close to them. He also said he had been granted a 15-day furlough, his first in 20 months.

THE WEDDING OF THE BLIND BOY

All through the hot, sultry afternoon the sounds of many deep-throated drums echoed across the vale their invitation to the Hindu wedding of the little blind doni-walla (laundryman) who had grown rich from the patronage of the American soldiers. In the clearing amidst the cluster of basna huts an arbor of young bamboo shoots was erected. In the center of the trellis beneath the leaves and foliage an altar was erected upon which a young mango tree was placed, an arrow driven into its heart. A wooden block was placed before the altar and arranged in neat rows atop this were coins, tiny piles of the red dust of the betel nuts, flax, polished brass receptacles containing rice and seeds and an earthen jug of water. High on each side of the altar were two ash oil lamps which dimly lighted the entire area. At the entrance from the road a red banner was hung which gave welcome to the wedding in white lettered Hindustan symbols. Two elephants in ceremonial dress and paint moved back and forth before the cluster of huts. The beginning of the ceremony was announced by the rising crescendo of the battery of heavy drums and the shrill piping of reed flutes.

The groom, accidentally blinded in one eye when a child of four, took his place on the mat before the altar. His had been a life of hardship, of struggle, of toil, and now at eleven years and on the threshold of manhood he found himself a rich man of his caste, this by the chance encampment of a group of American soldiers nearby his father's house. Indeed, these men from the far off land were to be made welcome at his wedding; these rich men, every one a rajah by his humble comparison. His father, now some time deceased, had turned over to him the mastership of this tiny domain, its women, its cattle, its rice paddies. And he had not been found lacking in administrative quality. He had used the cattle and the ox-carts and the women to branch out. His ingenuity had won for him an enviable trade concession in the military camp. And so in the village seven miles away he'd found a wife, she of six years.

As he squatted before the altar the soberness of his expression bespoke the seriousness of the occasion. The drums madly now, the gathering crowd chanted the incantations befitting the ceremony. The groom wore his snow white muslin doti and on his head a high multi-colored paper headdress. Four duly-appointed elders carried in the tiny child-bride in a round wicker basket. Four times the procession circled the altar and then placed the bride on a mat by the side of her husband. Her face hidden by a paper mask and her hands were hidden beneath her yellow silk sari. With part of her sari thrown over head and bare feet no part of her body was visible. During the long ceremony neither of the principals were to utter a word not to even so much as glance at the other.

The priest took his place, squatting before the altar. He began the marriage by dipping a tea leaf into the jug of water and alternately sprinkling it on the heads and out-stretched, up-turned palms of the bride and groom, then upon the altar. The elderly women squatting behind the bride assisted her from time to time in the manipulation of her hands and in maintaining her squatting position for she could not see with the mask before her face.

The priest formed a paste-like substance by sprinkling water on the small piles of red dust and the coins were then coated with this paste. These were then placed into the small container with the flax and set before the altar. The priest then took the groom's small finger of his right hand and rubbing it into the red paste placed it against the forehead and each temple of the bride. The same ritual was repeated with the bride's finger. As the climax of the ceremony approached the women who squatted behind the bride began to cry. With effort they continued their singing as the tears rolled down their cheeks. A garland of paper flowers was thrown about the bride's neck and her mask removed while fish oil and red paste was smeared on her hair and forehead. At this juncture all the onlookers tossed handfuls of rice at the newly-wedded couple still before the altar. The climax of ceremony had been reached but yet there was much ritual to be performed.

A long band of white cloth was drawn about the members of the immediate family as the elders began to wrap the symbols of the rite in a bundle in one corner of the bride's sari. The implements of her wedding the coins, the red paste, the flax, the rice and the seeds were to be the tokens by which she's to remember her marriage in later life. Then the bride was made to sit in the lap of her father by the tender guiding hands of the women. After this her husband sat in the lap of his bride's father. Then assuming their positions once again before the mango plant a corner of each of their tunics was tied together, and the procession of newlyweds and in-laws proceeded around and around the altar, boy and girl holding hands while the others made known their joy volubly. Once again they squatted in front of the altar to receive gifts of money and the well-wishing of their friends. There being no ring ceremony the bindings of wedlock were solemnized by the placing of silver bracelets upon both wrists of the bride. There was some difficulty sliding these over her small hands for they had purposely been made to fit snugly so that as she grew older and her hands larger they would never be removed.

Then a goat was killed and its blood was used to solemnize the occasion. The beating of the drums and the incantations of the assembled people was to continue on into the following day.

The LIONS CLUB

Clyde E. Hart, Publicity

The Lions, ate sumptuously and enjoyed themselves socially at the K. of P. Hall, Monday evening. Following the eating bout, Phillip Smith got some real music out of his hand saw. The salvage drive chairman reminded the Lions that paper is still needed and please bring it in.

The attendance contest is still on and one-half of the Lions are going to eat at the expense of the other half. Lion Ridgway was accorded the honor of leading his side to victory over Lion Rectenwall by an average of 85% to 83% attendance during the stated period, and the defeated side will entertain the victors on April 24, and at the time when the International contest closes. The boys will all look forward to a hilarious time.

The attendance for the evening was 35.

Lion Bowman introduced the visitors. Educational chairman Rectenwall is getting better all the time, and bids fair to become quite some public speaker. He always brings worthwhile thoughts to his hearers.

Milton Wysong, representing the State Department of Conservation, gave a very interesting talk. Mr. Wysong has recently been over the entire state, visiting the various conservation clubs, and he says the progressive work of these real sportsmen is getting world recognition for their fine work and for the way they do things in Indiana. He reminded his hearers of their good fortune in living in small town communities where everyone knows everyone else.

He exploded the generally accepted idea that you can fish a lake too hard—the more it is fished the better from a sportsman's viewpoint, providing it is kept properly stocked and that is the job of the clubs and of the conservation department.

Mr. Wysong's pleasing manner and his interesting way of presenting his subject made of him one of the most entertaining and instructive speakers that has ever been on the program of the local club. Mr. Wysong will be welcome any time he can make it convenient to again visit our club.

R. D. Sliger, Richland.
Selma Diederich, Jackson.
Daniel Dixon, Franklin.
Dorothy Ellen Hart, Spencer.
Arthur A. Gould, Franklin.
Gale Bowser, Spencer.
Wilbert F. Campbell.

DOG OWNERS, NOTICE!

After April 1, any dogs that I pick up, for running at large, or because I have had complaints about them, will be disposed of immediately.

RED CROSS DRIVE UNDER WAY IN ST. JOE

Every home will be visited this week by carefully picked solicitors for to secure contributions toward the $300 quota assigned by the county chairman. A portion of the districts have been canvassed and extra good returns were made, which leads us to believe that St. Joe can reach the quota, if all will do their part toward this most worthy cause.

Solicitors have been chosen as follows:

Mrs. Lena Meek, north of B. & O.; Mrs. Loretta Kessler from the Kees corner east to the postoffice, north side of street; Willard Hurni, all west of Spencerville Street.

Ralph Keeler, from Don Keller's north to Main Street, east to School Street and then south; Clifford Billow, from Glen Freeburn's home north to Main, east to Lutheran Church corner then south.

Roy Koch, east from Lutheran Church including Widney Avenue; Frank Sellers, from Walter Zonker's home east to end of street.

Should you plan to be away from home, get in touch with your chairman and make your offering, thus saving several calls at your door.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. O. K. Shull, March 22. The meeting was called to order by the president. Mrs. Glen Cole had the lesson. She used the articles "Why is a Conductor?" and "Is your Marriage slipping a Little?" and the story "Coming Home" by Vina Delmar.

Mrs. C. C. Woodcox conducted several games and contests. The club gave three dollars and thirty-five cents to the Red Cross. Two names were voted into the club for membership.

The meeting adjourned to meet in three weeks with Mrs. Glen Cole, April 12. The hostess served fruit salad, cake and coffee.

A News reader thinks we could save on fuel if there was some way of heating with the hot air that issues from Washington.

BAND RECEIVED FROM DUCK KILLED IN CUBA

Harrell F. Mosbaugh, Director of the Division of Fish and Game, has received from Cuba a band from a ring-necked duck which was banded April 22, 1943, at the Jasper-Pulaski State Game Preserve. The duck was killed November 28, 1943, by a hunter at El Taje Lake near Trinidad.

Ducks are trapped at the game preserve in the spring and fall and metal bands are attached to one leg. The banding is done in accordance with United States Fish and Wildlife Service methods, and records are kept of the band number, species, age, sex, weight, and other characteristics. The ducks are then released from the banding station, and hunters who kill them are asked to return the bands. In this manner many interesting facts are learned about waterfowl.

The banding is a part of the research program which is conducted by the Fish and Game. Several bands have been returned recently indicating a number of birds banded at the game perserve have been killed in the gulf states and many points in between.

Planless Planners

FOOD FOR VICTORY PLOWED UNDER

More than 40,000 acres of vegetables have been plowed under in Texas' fertile lower Rio Grande valley by farmers angered to almost open revolt by what they term inexcusable government bungling which prevents them from marketing the crops except at a loss. Most of the acreage destroyed is in cabbage but other vegetables turned included spinach, broccoli, turnips, beets, radishes and mustard greens.

Farmers assert that the chief cause of their troubles is bureaucratic regulation as exemplified in the edicts of the OPA relative to ceiling prices and red tape involved in obtaining truck tires. Because of the low ceiling on the prices at which they must sell their produce, the high cost of harvesting labor, and increased shipping expenses, the farmers contend they would lose money if they marketed the crops.

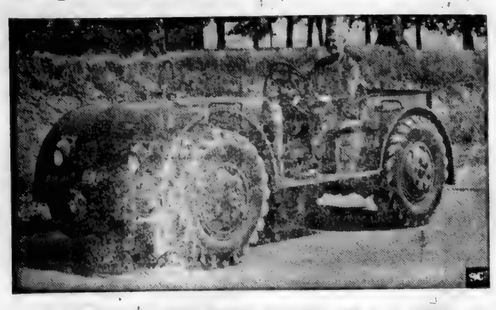
Highway vandals are destroying beauty along Indiana's roads which required several years to create, and the State Highway commission has appealed to citizens of the state to assist in the fight to halt the cutting of trees and the dumping of trash along rights-of-way. Many complaints have been received from residents of rural areas about trash being dumped almost in their front yards at night from passing automobiles. In some sections of the state enough trash has been dumped at certain places to create the appearanc of a public dumping ground. Already signs of spring cleaning is in evidence along our highways, where baskets of tin cans have been dumped along our black top road on the way to Auburn and by the time the road crew starts on its annual collection, there will be found paper cartons and sacks of rubbish. People are forgetful.

"Jeep" Helps Save Lives of War Heroes



SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC—"We were landing our big bombers after a successful raid on the Japs. Some of the planes were shot up a bit. One had blown a tire and landing with the flat he jammed the runway. There was over half the rest of the squadron still circling and waiting to come in . . . getting dangerously low on gas. Ground crews had to clear the runway . . . delay could easily mean crashes and deaths and injury to gallant U. S. airmen. Two Jeeps rolled out from a revetment, hooked tow bars to the plane. I crossed my fingers. These planes weigh many tons and on other fields I've seen it take an hour to clear the runway of one of them crippled. The Jeeps roared—strained, and I'll be d——d if the two of them didn't drag that plane off the runway in less than 10 minutes. All the rest of our boys landed safely."

There's an actual eye-witness account of a lieutenant in charge of a bomber squadron "somewhere in the Pacific" and it graphically tells the part being played on the war fronts by the modernized original "Jeep" shown above. Thousands of these remarkable machines, made by the Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement company, are on the fighting fronts all over the world.

Aladdin was a "Piker"

IN THE story of the "Arabian Nights." Aladdin had a magic lamp which when rubbed summoned a "jinn" who obeyed Aladdin's bidding—but no mystic jinn is needed by ELEC — the likeable bell-hop whose full name is ELECtricity and who hops to your bidding at the touch of a switch. Yet ELEC has brought forth wonders beyond the wildest dreams of Aladdin.

Electricity's contribution to the war effort is tremendously important. Helping to build fortresses, tanks, "battle-wagons" and the other vital equipment is just one of its functions in the War job. Electricity is proud to be one of the Powers of Good which will speed V Day, the day that must come before our loved ones in the Armed Forces and all other branches of Service will come home to us.

ELEC's war record has been accomplished through our American System of Free Enterprise by men free to think and to plan. Freedom of thought is the heritage of Americans . . . freedom to first dream and then to make those dreams come true to the benefit of humanity.

Mr. Glen Lekher, entomologist of Purdue University, gave a very interesting chalk-talk on insects, Thursday the 4th period. We were given leaflets from Purdue University, on the control of insects. Many illustrations were drawn by Mr. Lekher demonstrating how the insects destroy the plants. We learned that 20% of plants are destroyed by insects. He showed us where the insects came from and how we can control those pests. We saw that the gardens should be kept clean of all weeds. This should be done in the fall so that the insects will freeze in winter. He closed by drawing Mortimer Snerd showing that it was up to us to save that 20% of food needed by our Soldiers, that the insects destroyed.

Lavender and Old Lace is to be presented this Friday evening, March 31, in the local high school gymnasium at 8:00. Don't miss this treat! The following are a few press notes about this play from newspapers: "It provides an abundance of comedy."—The Chicago Journal. "As sweet as the perfume of lavender and as precious as rare old lace."—Denver Times. The price of admission is 30c for adults, 20c for high school students, and 15c for grade students. Four Soldiers from Baer Field were there. The group included a Sergeant, Chaplain, and two veterans from the South Pacific area. They all gave short talks. The Chaplain was from Vermont and said that they weren't bothered with insects in that state because their farms were on hills. He jokingly suggested a different way to get rid of insects. He said that we should build up some hills and plant our gardens up there. The DeKalb County Chorus sang and gave a pageant for the final part of the program. There was a large crowd attending this program.

SAFETY

The eighth grade Safety Class have been working on posters illustrating facts they have learned during course. Two different posters showed a large house with a gasoline can beside it. The caption said:—"Ten cents worth of Gasoline will blow up your house." Others showed road signs which we have learned have a definite shape for each meaning. For instance a diamond shape always means slow, an eight sided or round sign always means stop. The other posters are also interesting. These were placed on the bulletin board in the new assembly Saturday afternoon.

Results of Contest

Several weeks ago a representative of an insurance company left some entry blanks at the school house. All the seventh and eighth graders entered the essay contest writing approximately one hundred words on "Why My Parents Need Accident and Sickness Insurance." At that time two of these essays from each grade were in the School News. Last week each one received a comic book through the mail for entering the contest.

Bird Booklets

The eighth graders are starting to work on a bird booklet. Each one has chosen a bird and his booklet centers entirely around the bird and its habits.

7th and 8th Math

In both the 7th and 8th grade we are working to decrease our Subtraction Quotient. This quotient is found by dividing the number of seconds it took us to subtract four problems by the number of problems correctly worked in that time. Those making the greatest improvement last week wre Marjorie Bleeks, Monte Ellis, Charles Freeburn, George Mansfield, Carol Rosenbury, Marlyn Wade. Those making the lowest scores were: Gerald Swander, 4¾; Audra Stewart, 4 1-5; Charles Freeburn, 5 1-5; Carol Rosenbury, 5 1-5.

How Black Markets Work

Last spring there were people who would steal livestock and butcher them in insanitary shacks. Part of the livestock was diseased and they sold the meat to stores and restaurants. This racket has been greatly reduced according to O. P. A. officials report.

95% of our butchers and grocers are honest and will not deal with the black market, but the other 5% will deal with the black market.

In tie-in agreements the grocer may buy all the steak he wants if he takes a variety of meat. Then the grocer will sell the steaks and better cuts of meat for a higher price so he will have a pront. A butcher may bet his wholesale dealer that he will not be able to supply him with all the meat he wants. The wholesale dealer will take his bet. When the butcher gets all the meat he wants, he charges over the ceiling price for the meat to pay the bet. Fresh eggs, better cuts of meat, and better grades of food have a higher ceiling price. Grocers may get higher prices by labeling all of this products fresh.

By charging the ceiling price and reducing the size of the package, food distributors are getting more than the ceiling price. Some candy firms are guilty of this. These are only a few of the ways chiselers can rob honest citizens of dollars and food. Let's Watch and not pay more than ceiling price.

University Tests Prove That These April 1 Jokes Are Sure to Work

COME April 1 (and you feel foolish and have nothing else to do) you might well dip into 20th century learning at its best for a list of the most successful and aggravating practical jokes to try on friend and foe alike.

These little cuties are guaranteed to work, having been duly tested in experiments at the University of Chicago by masters of shenanigans, to use a mild term if even you have been unhappily tricked by some witty little soul.

One might start April 1 off with a bang by filling everything that can be called a receptacle in a room—such as shoes, pipes, ash-trays, etc.—with lemon jello and grapenuts.

If that's too expensive and you feel extra strong, then remove all drawers and turn the dresser over upside down. Replace the drawers while the dresser's upside down, then turn it back up again. When the unsuspecting victim now opens the drawers, everything will fall to the floor.

But in case you don't feel strong but do feel foolish, then lean a row of milk bottles filled with water against the outside of a door opening in. When the victim opens the door, the bottles topple inside, with the water gushing out.

This little gem is sure to make you dearer in the community: Place a funnel in somebody's lap. You bet that they can't place a dime on their forehead, then lower the head so that the dime falls into the funnel. As soon as their head is tilted back to hold the dime, someone hands you a glass of water and you pour it into the funnel.

A bet is made with some Johnny Know-Nothing that he can't hold an egg with his fingers by putting them through the crack of a door on the hinge side. When the egg is in position, the victim's hat is placed on the floor directly beneath the egg and, to quote the U. of C. grammarians, the victim is left thus.

By that time, if you haven't been run out of town yet and you still feel kind of giddy, rub some black shoe polish on the telephone receiver, so that a user will get a nice, dirty ring around his or her ear.

CONCORD TWP. P. T. A.

DeKalb County Court and Child Welfare organization have approximately three times as many Juvenile Cases on record for 1943 as for any preceding year, hence we do have a local Juvenile Delinquency problem worth our consideration.

Our correctional institutions are supported by our taxes and accomplish much, but do not get the child in time to prevent his fall and are poor substitutes for good homes and clean local organizations.

Our churches, Rev. Stevenson rightly stated, are a leading influence for right but attendance is not compulsory in America so they must have the cooperation of the homes to do their best work. Frankly, isn't it time for our churches to jointly renew their campaign for Church and Sunday School attendance so that every child and adult may have the advantage of having his life made more valuable by "The Touch of the Master's Hand" as was so ably presented in Mrs. Washler's reading?

Our schools receive every normal child between the ages of 6 and 16 and the possibilities of the influence of good, God-fearing, well-liked teachers upon our young people is unlimited. So teacher, in your own way, in addition to teaching your subjects, continue your campaign for right.

Mrs. Carl Perkins, Rev. Stevenson, Mr. Billow, and Mrs. Haller, with the backing of statistics and such notables as J. Edgar Hoover of the F. B. I., all agreed as to the inestimable value of churches, schools, Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs and other youth organizations, but placed the principal responsibility upon the home and parents because the home influences the child first and longer than the other. Then what can parents really do?

1. Teach high ideals of right living.
2. Use the proper caution and danger signs when needed.
3. Gain the love and confidence of your child.
4. Encourage proper choice of playmates and friends.
5. Be the ever present good home influence.
6. Mothers, don't let the wages of a defense job lure you from your most important job of being a home maker—for a war won by the sacrifice of our boys may be lost on the home front if we do not preserve the ideals for which they are fighting.
7. Let your child know that he is really wanted and needed, then give him something useful to do.
8. Most of our delinquent boys and girls have delinquent praents—such parents should put forth all efforts to mend their own ways. Action is now under way in Indiana to pass a law demanding the arrest of parents in case a juvenile is brought into court.
9. Then, above all, all parents who wish to have their children follow the right path must set the proper example.

At the business meeting, besides regular reports, Mr. Duker made a statement of school happenings of the year.

The Project Committee was instructed to buy an extension ladder for the school.

Pres—Mildred Jarrett.
Vice—Supt. of School.
Secretary—Teacher 5th and 6th grade.
Treasurer—Clifford Billow.

Efforts are already under way to locate committee members and program numbers for next year, so if you have any suggestions send them to your president.

Orville Coburn arrived home Saturday from sea duty in the South Atlantic due to the illness of his wife. His emergency relief lasts for 15 days. He flew to Dayton, O., and should he return by plane he will leave Tuesday of next week. He is looking good, and is enjoying the Navy.

Max Edward Likens, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Likens, of Route 2, Auburn, is receiving his initial naval indoctrination at the U. S. Naval training station, Great Lakes, Ill. His "boot" training consists of seamanship, military drill, and general naval procedure. During this period a series of aptitude tests will be taken by the recruit to determine whether he will be assigned to a naval service school or to immediate active duty at sea. His recruit training completed, the sea man will spend a period of leave at home.

A force of more than 1,000 husky young Midwesterners—comparable in numbers to the huge bombing fleets which have virtually obliterated Berlin—became combat pilots on March 13 in eleven simultaneous AAF Training Command advanced flying school graduation ceremonies. Men from every American state received pilot's wings in the record-breaking Central Flying Training Command graduation and Ohio, contributing 299 flyers to the total, led all others. Illinois, with 207 graduates among the new pilots, was 4th in the nation. Indiana was 5th with 142 flyers. Chicago led all American cities with 62 graduates. Other outstanding Midwestern cities were Indianapolis with 26, Minneapolis with 26, Kansas City with 23, and St. Louis with 24. There were 125 pilots from Michigan, 114 from Iowa, 109 from Minnesota, 92 from Missouri, and 92 from Wisconsin. The record graduation ceremonies were held for fighter pilots at Eagle Pass, at Aloe and Foster Fields in Victoria, and at Moore Field at Mission, all in Texas. Bomber pilots were graduated at Frederick and Altus in Oklahoma, at the Texas army air fields at Lubbock and Pampa, at Ellington Field at Houston, Brooks at San Antonio, and Blackland at Waco.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bleeks, of Concord, have received the following address for their son, Hubert, who is training at Sheppard Field, Texas: Pvt. Hubert E. Bleeks, 35246173, Sheppard Field, 304 Training Croup, Wichita Falls, Texas.

LAVON HAS SCARE

Lavon Brunson went to Indianapolis for his final examination for induction in the Army. Having successfully passed all tests and feeling that he was practically wearing a uniform the X-rays of his lungs were brought forward showing he was practically a dead man. All former papers were cancelled and Lavon started home a "sick" man. When he arrived in Ft. Wayne he wasted no time in getting in front of an X-ray machine at the Duemling Clinic, where he found out his lungs were perfect. This eased his mind considerably but he is wondering if the poor man whose picture was mixed with his is carrying a rifle when he ought to be in bed. Lavon is one of these persistent fellows and so is going right back and try for the Army again as soon as he can, which will be six weeks from his last examination.

CULTURE CLUB

Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Pluma Hamilton March 29th. Meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Earl Hodges. Mrs. Clyde Duker then led the lesson, all read, "Drama in every day life," and "Lords and Ladies of Lilliput" from the Reader's Digest. Mrs. Reign Schondelmayer, critic pro tem gave her report after which the special work for the evening was given by Mrs. Ray Reasoner being "The history of the tulip festival." Many interesting facts were brot to our attention. Mrs. Reasoner also read the story of the "Little Netherlands," this proved very interesting and unusual.

Roll call was taken, response being "My favorite flower." Mrs. Frank Kessler made a motion to the effect we give 25c per member to the Red Cross, seconded by Mrs. Harvey Karr. Amount turned in was $6.34.

A newsy letter to the club from Mrs. Erby Messimer was then read. The hostess served a tasty lunch of fruit salad, assorted cookies and coffee. The club will meet with Mrs. Reign Schondelmayer for the last meeting of the year, April 12.

There is no death, who says there is mistakes
Transition for decay.
Eternal life springs everywhere the same
Death's story to dismay.
Promise of everlasting life is writ
Plainly on Nature's scroll,
As with the trees, the flowering shrubs and bulbs,
So is it with the soul.

A period of sleep, of darkness black
As Calvary's blackest night,
And then the Resurrection's sun shines forth
With God's perpetual light.
Ah, you blind followers of faith, or fate,
Read for yourselves the roll,
How gnarled brownroot, apparent dead, revives,
Thus is it with the soul.

PERIOD OF DESPONDENCY ENDS IN TRAGIC DEATH.

Mark Williams, 51, a St. Joe resident, was found dead at his home on Widney Avenue, Friday about noon, having taken his own life. Mark was living alone at the time. as his sister, Mrs. Lois McKay and husband had returned to Hammond for a few months. He had evidently retired Thursday night, and later got up and shot himself, as he was wearing his pajamas when found.

Logan Fuller, a next door neighbor, failing to observe the usual stir about the home, began to make inquiry about town, first calling at the post office, where he was advised that Mark had not called for his mail, and then going to the Keeler Restaurant to inquire whether Mark had reported for work at the Keeler residence where he was painting, and upon investigation found that he had not started working yet. Mr. Fuller waited until noon thinking Mark would show up and when he failed to do so, he with Sam Keesler, Frank Sellers and Roy Koch, went to the home to investigate and looking in at the windows finally located his body lying on the floor and a small gun laying near by.

They notified the county officers in Auburn, Coroner Kenneth Kaylor, Sheriff Paul F. Miller and Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Carpenter who came to St. Joe and forced a door open. The body was taken to the Rupp funeral home. The coroner believes Mr. Williams had been dead about twelve hours.

Funeral rites were held at the Rupp funeral home Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock with burial in Alton Cemetery, 2 miles east of St. Joe, where his parents were buried.

Mr. Williams' only son, Russell Williams, is a technical sergeant in the army. He had been in training at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., but it is believed he has been sent overseas. His father is said to have worried about his son.

For a number of years Mark was employed by the Auburn Rubber Corp. and on July 9, 1923, he entered the postal service, serving as a clerk at the Auburn post office for about four years. His mind gave way while in postal work and on July 14, 1927, he was committed to the state hospital at Richmond, Ind., where he was a patient two years. Because of this tragic happening in his life he felt that he had no friends and continually talked about no one caring for him, and nothing could be done to change this false impression that had taken complete hold of his life.

Since his return, he had done some painting and worked in grocery stores at St. Joe. He formerly lived with a sister, Mrs. Lois McKay, but she moved to Hammond and he continued to live in her house alone.

Mark's father, Willard Williams, died two years ago in February and his mother passed away a year ago last November. He had been despondent since their deaths.

Mr. Williams was born near St. Joe and was well known locally as a baseball player in his youth. He was divorced from his wife, who is now Mrs. Russell Zitzman of Auburn. Surviving besides the son are two daughters, Mrs. Merle Lowther, of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Betty Gray, of Peru; two brothers, Frank Williams, of St. Joe, and Howard Williams, of Saginaw, Mich.; and three sisters, Mrs. Wm. Refner, Auburn, Mrs. Florence Wood, Saginaw, and Mrs. Lois McKay at Hammond.

Mark Williams was a member of the Church of Christ at St. Joe, and had lately joined the Lions Club here and seemed to enjoy the service club members.

Rev. Wilmer Monroe had charge of the service Monday afternoon.

The beautiful flowers were evidence that Mark did have many good friends, when he thought he was alone in the world.

SOME ADVICE

It isn't too early to give the gardening advice to the fellow who is going to try his hand at a Victory garden for the first time, and who is a novice in the line of gardening. Most of us learn our lessons the hard way but if a few words of ours might save some plant life for others, we make the reminder. Clip and hang by the garden hoe and spray gun. Water the garden in dry times when possible. Cultivate thoroughly for weeds and thin young plants early and promptly. Spray or dust to control insects and diseases. Harvest and use crop when ready. Plant in succession for all-season garden. Save all crops and let none be wasted. Keep at weeds all of the time in all kinds of weather. The results of these suggestions are towards a well-stocked cupboard and a satisfying table, which is a hardy, healthy reminder of your efforts.

Thrown for a Fall

STILL WASTING

We are still wasting our food in spite of comments, editorials, pleas and prayers. We are figured to be wasting 20% of all the food we produce and this is disappointing even surprising to those thrifty, economical, wise and patriotic St. Joe housewives. To get down to the exact figures might be less astonishing when viewed in the light of large lump amounts. For instance: 20% waste means enough food lost that would feed one-fifth of our entire population. Twenty per cent waste means enough food that would feed all of Mexico and five million more people besides! 20 per cent would feed all of Spain. If these few facts don't prove that 20 per cent waste of food is disgraceful and inhuman when there is starving for it, then nothing will save waste on the American dining table.

STILL ENJOYABLE

Those popcorn eaters who have held this delicacy as among the better things of life, will be sad to learn that in one of our corn growing states, farmers are holding the popcorn in cribs until the time when they can get their price to sell. It will be the hope of the followers of this crunchy pastime, that such a procedure will not greatly effect the corn popping customs of their countryside. Memory takes us back to many a rainy afternoon when children's hands were kept busy with a corn popper or making paper funnels in which to pass the tasty kernels around. These days melted butter didn't loom menacingly on our menu as a matter of ration points, but added the necessary touch, with the accompaniment of the salt shaker, to the popping ritual. This pleasure is still enjoyed in many St. Joe homes and the only reason any of us oldsters would pass by the treat is probably due to impaired crunching facilities.

JUST FANCY

The younger generation of St. Joe can't remember the time when folks thought that to eat a tomato was to invite an illness considered to be poisoning. The tomato was consequently not looked upon with flavor. It was a superstition just like the later belief that tomatoes were so palatable for a food stuff and so close to the heart of man, they acquired the name of "love apples." Although it was a long time proving itself, when the tomato did catch on it was held in high esteem. It all wasn't any more foolish than sleeping with a piece of wedding cake under the pillow. Tomatoes are supposed to soften the male heart, now as love apples cost too much per pound, they can say they are rightly called. Science disproves superstitious theories and makes facts and thus improves our reasoning and our diets.

HOME VS. FACTORY

Conscripted labor gives rise to why more women haven't gone into war plants. In the first emotional patriotic move to take on such jobs, there were approximately 160,000 women volunteering each month. Many of them stayed but a few weeks and have been steadily leaving the defense work to return to their homes ever since. Having to hold two jobs, one in a factory and one in the home as housewife and mother, isn't easy. Both are important to the national defense. Both must be managed especially well in war time and the problems of each job should be met and answered by people who know something about them in order to get more women to take on two at the same time. To persuade them that the working conditions can be suited to fit in with their domestic demands takes intelligent handling from a manpower commission. It is true the factory is no place for feminine foibles. A factory is a business. It needs cooperation between the woman worker, her associates, her employer and her government.

TAKE A HINT

Twelve children representing that many communities in the U. S., met in Washington to give a report to the bureau organized to meet and combat problems for wartime youth, of the national youth problem. They spoke for various organizations of young people back home, as well as for themselves. They seem to want education more streamlined and vocational. They ask that recreations be available to all and of more of a variety. They ask their elders to be less prejudiced against race. From a town where war workers are crowding the place, the local "Y" club suggests that high schools take care of the social and business interests of most of the students who would not have a chance at college, anyway. Boys spoke of textile towns where youths quit school in the eighth grade to make money, of another where school two weeks and work 2 weeks has proven effective and efficient. College opportunities are sought for others than the wealthy. One chap who quit school to work in a defense factory, said the boys "bum on the corners" and that "they can't wait until they turn 16 to get a job, a new suit and a car." Two Negroes and a Chinese girl brought up the point of race prejudice and asked whether the young people, who were much broader, couldn't hold meetings where their elders could listen and learn. A representative said home-town school boys are crowded from amusement places by soldiers and asked for recreational centers for the younger ones. More homes should open their doors to their children's friends for recreation, said another. All of which sounds like a number of pointers for St. Joe and Spencerville parents who have their own young folk's interests and welfare at heart. Provide home entertainment for the Kids of the neighborhood and save them the influence of places not quite so wholesome. Our community needs more home parties for the youngsters of all ages.

Slick Chicks Find Key to Smoothness

THE time for coaching on this business of etiquette is beforehand, like right now, according to Holly Miller, whose column "Some Coaching Please" in Capper's Farmer is a popular feature among 'teen age boys and girls and their parents as well.

"Observe any slick chick or Beau Brummel and you'll notice the smoothness isn't done with mirrors," she writes. "It's a safe bet they've been beating the etiquette books."

Take that oft-puzzling question of "Who Goes First?" when youngsters step out for a snack.

"When entering a restaurant, the girl follows the waiter to the table and is seated by him," advises this Capper's Farmer authority. "If all the waiters are hiding—that gives Joe a chance to lead the procession and to seat the damsel.

"Of course a smooth pigeon never tears into a room a good 20 feet in front of her striving-hard-to-keep-up escort. He pulls the chair and she sits down from the left on the front half. Then she ups-a-daisies slightly and good old Joe slides the chair under her."

THAT'S America marching — and America watching — both stirred by a warm patriotic pride so real you can feel it.

The strength of this nation in peace or war is the strength of all who have a mutual interest in it.

You realize that you have a large stake in America — but very likely you overlook the size of your personal stake in the industries that help build America.

Take the electric light and power companies, for example. Perhaps, like some of your friends and neighbors, you own stock in your electric company. But even if you don't, you have a definite interest just the same.

Your bank and insurance company, which have your savings in trust for you — as well as colleges, hospitals, fraternal orders—make large investments in utility securities. There your money goes to work — powering war plants, lighting homes — guided and guarded by experienced business management.

So you have a mutual investment in industry and in America.

Lavender and Old Lace

Charm, excitement, and broad humor distinguished the vigorous dramatization of Myrtle Reed's most popular and best loved novel as given by the Senior Class on Friday night, March 31, The play was not one that was wrapped in the creaky sentiments of yesteryear. Instead, it was a thoroughly modern portrait of present day life, with scenes of bristling comedy, arresting drama and a touch of heart warming tenderness. Mary Ainslie, a charming and gracious lady, had become a tradition in the quaint New England village where she had resided for years. She lived alone among her memories, growing her lavender -flowers and placing them amongst her rare old laces. She never left her house for a minute, and every night, from dusk to sun-up, a lighted lamp burned brightly in her attic window. Her closest friend and next door neighbor, Jane Hathaway, left to take a personally conducted tour of Europe, and Jane's young niece, Ruth Thorne, came from the city to occupy her aunt's house while the latter was away.

When it became imperative for Jane to leave a week earlier than expected, it was decided to close up the Hathaway's house and have Ruth stay with Miss Ainslie. Jane left in a flurry of excitement. Once ensconced in Miss Ainslie's home, Ruth Thorne and her hostess became warm friends. Carl Winfield, a young newspaper reporter from the city who was suffering with his eyes, came to the little New England village to rest, and brought with him a letter of introduction to Ruth. When Miss Ainslie saw him for the first time, she ordered him out of her house! Later, she had Ruth bring him to tea so that she might apologize for her rudeness. Carl, too, fell a victim to Miss Ainslie's charm, and at the same time he became enamored of Ruth Thorne. Carl and Ruth became engaged. He suffered an accident which caused him to lose his eyesight. It was then that Miss Ainslie stepped forth and fought heroically in order to help Carl regain his lost vision. The village was agog! Why should Miss Ainslie lavish so much care on a strange boy? What was their relationship to each other? But it was not until the last act, just before the final curtain, that the audience was let into the secret. In a scene that was gripping and filled with poignant beauty, Mary Ainslie stepped forth and revealed her reason for having lived such a strange life. This was a play of old plays, an inspirational force that was uplifting and skillfully written. This community will never forget "Lavender and Old Lace."

Virginia George was Hepsey, the maid. She was a short, stocky girl in her middle twenties, and her love for detective stories caused her to stare suspiciously at everybody she saw as though trying to unearth some great secret. Her hair was parted in the center and hung down her back in two long braids, tied at the ends with colored ribbons.

Gerald Means was Joe Pendleton, a tall, awkward fellow about a year older than Hepsey. It was obvious at a glance that he had never been away from his present environment. His face was liberally sprinkled with freckles and his hair looked as though it hadn't had a comb near it in days.

Joan Diederich was Sophrony Trotter, a tall, thin Woman in her late thirties. Her voice was thin and shrill and she spoke in a most deliberate manner.

Pat Carpenter was Mary Ainslie, a refined and gracious gentlewoman of uncertain age. Time had delt gently with her and except for her silvery white hair there was very little trace of age. There was a beautiful serenity about Mary Ainslie and was evident in every line of her lovely face and figure. She dominated the scene upon her every appearance through her tranquillity and charm. It was as though some inner reserve gave her courage and sympathetic understanding.

Jean Hurni was Jane Hathaway, a tall woman in her late forties. She possessed a domineering manner and nature and always ruled her domain with an iron hand. She was tenacious to a degree and once she made up her mind to a thing, nothing could change her.

Bill Billow was Doctor Howard Patterson, a tall, dignified man of fifty, who carried himself in a most erect manner. His hair was liberally streaked with grey and a finely trimmed grey mustache adorned his upper lip. His speech was crisp and decisive. Underneath all his dignity was a warm and understanding nature and a great deal of tolerance and forebearance.

Jim Kees was Carl Winfield, a tall, finely built chap in his middle twenties. He was handsome, well poised, and had a most engaging manner. His frankness and earnestness added to his attractiveness.

Mary Louise Woodcox was Ruth Thorne, a pretty and charming girl in her early twenties. She was well poised and unaffected in manner. She was refined and well educated and gave the impression of being capable of adapting herself to any situation.

Bessie Baughman was an extremely pretty girl in her late teens, of medium height, refined and attractive. She carried herself with an air that gave her distinction.

Allen Haller was James Ball, a small, wizened-up, man in his late fifties. The top of his head was almost entirely bald with just a fringe of hair around the edges. He was completely dominated by Jane and all of his glances in her direction denoted that fear. His manner was inoffensive and he had a kind heart and a decidedly likeable personality.

Mrs. Buckner was the director of the play and deserves much credit for the time and effort she put on this play She is a very capable director.

Mrs. Merle Guilford did an outstanding job in making and designing the costumes. Her help is invaluable.

Besides the committees listed on the programs we thank Forrest Gerig, of Auburn, Merle Guilford, of St. Joe, and Carl Carpenter, of St. Joe, also Cal Hull and Russel Ridgway as ticket takers.

Leora Wilmot, Mr. Joe Woodcox, and Mr. and Mrs. Buckner furnished the music between acts.

SAFETY

Arm Signals

Arm signals are very important to you and the driver back of you if there should be one. Every driver should know the arm signals and know which ones to use or he might perform a signal that doesn't mean anything. Here are some of the signals all drivers should know. When you are turning left you should put your arm out straight or horizontally. When you want to turn right you put your arm our straight and upward bending at the elbow. When you want to stop or slow down you put your arm straight out and then point it down to the side of the car. We should practice these rules so that we know them. —Margaret Bartles.

"Skidding"

If a driver finds himself skidding he should turn the front wheels the way he is skidding. This helps break the impact of hitting something if you are going to hit it. The best thing to do about skidding is to prevent it. Travel at the rate of speed best suited. Try not to go too fast around corners so you will not have to apply the brakes, because the application of brakes sometimes causes skids.

—Leora Wilmot.

Stopping

When you want to stop and the car is in high, let up on the accelerator, then when the momentum decreases, press on the brake gradually. Then when you get where you want to stop, push the clutch pedal to the floor and press harder on your brake. Don't let up on clutch until the shifting gear is in neutral, or it will stop the motor. —Dorothy Hanes.

Can Openers Deluxe

When we talk about "can openers deluxe," we don't mean the kind you use in your kitchen, we mean the Tank Destroyer Force. They call them the "can opener deluxe" because they open tanks or blow them up.

The Tank Destroyer Force is just a new branch of the Army. The first school was started at Camp Hood, Texas, in 1942. General Marshall was the first man that thought about it. These T. D. men keep together in groups while in battle. The Tank Destroyers motto is: "Seek! Strike! Destroy!" It can hit, run, and hit again. A team is made up of two tank destroyers and an antiaircraft gun. The antiaircraft gun shoots at the enemy planes while the tank destroyers go after the tanks.

A T. D. man is also helpful alone. He makes himself a foxhole and hides in it, then when an enemy tank goes by he tosses a bomb and blows the tank up. The T. D. men like to blow up moving tanks, but it's more fun to see a tank not even get started. So some T. D. men sneak through enemy lines at night looking for tanks and if they find any they fix them so that in the morning they mysteriously "won't run" and still they are in one piece!

So you can see what we mean by "can openers deluxe."

—Carol Rosenbury.

The Beginner

People do not expect an unexperienced boy or girl to read a chapter or book on driving and then just start right out driving. One must have practice, skill and caution before driving. A driver who is just learning should not go out alone. He should have a well experienced driver along with him. He shouldn't expect to learn the first time tried. He should not get discouraged because "practice makes perfect." If one learns the safe way in driving he should get along well. I think everyone of age should learn to drive. If you don't you may have a mishap when you need help, and can't get it.

—Margaret Bartles.

JUST AN IDEA

Save loss of heat, especially in your oven. Now is the time to conserve and this means even on cooking heat! Turn down heat as soon as water starts to to boil since a cloud of steam doesn't mean that cooking is faster. Don't continually lift the lids of pots and pans and keep opening and closing the oven door when you are baking.

Of course we can understand that last statement, because The News tells of more happenings outside the family circle.

LOCAL NEWS OF INTEREST

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Akins were at Fort Wayne Sunday, taking Mrs. Jo Akins and two children home, who had spent the week end here with their grandparents.

Two extra heavy rains arrived this week on Sunday and Monday nights, and they were real rains. Every low spot is flooded and the streams have all pushed their banks way back. Theer is one consolation perhaps in having early rains, we may be spared a crop of mosquitoes later in the summer, and we hope this is true.

POT LUCK SUPPER MARKS BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mrs. Harriett Squires was pleasantly surprised on her birthday last Thursday night when a happy group from her former Concord neighborhood spent the evening with her and her husband, O. V. Squires, in their home in Jackson Township.

After a bountiful pot-luck supper at 7:30, which was enjoyed by all, the party spent evening visiting and having a good time in general. Those present were: Mrs. Squires' son, Cliffton Draggoo, wife and daughters, Sally and Jane, Mrs. Mary Krise, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Messenger, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McClellan, Robert Schelton and the host and hostess Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Squires. At a late hour the party returned to their homes having remembered Mrs. Squires with birthday gifts and wishes for many happy returns of the day. All agreed it was an evening pleasantly spent and one long to be remembered.

LOTT—WASHLER

Miss Marjorie Lott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lott, and Mr. Delbert Washler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Washler, all of Butler, Indiana, were united in marriage by Rev. William D. Nice at 2:30 Easter Sunday afternoon, April 9, 1944, at the Newville Indiana, Church of Christ. The impressive double ring ceremony was used and the church was beautifully decorated with roses, ferns, white candles and white ribbon streamers.

The bride's dress was of white satin, trimmed with all-over lace, and her lace veil was waist-length. Her beautiful two-strand pearl necklace was a gift of the groom. She carried a white Bible, the gift of Rev. and Mrs. Nice, and her bouquet was of white calla lilies.

The bride's-maid was Miss Mildred Wemhoff, of Decatur, Indiana, cousin of the bride. Miss Wemhoff wore a formal gown of baby-blue taffeta and carried pink carnations. The groom wore the conventional dark suit, as did also the best man, Dean Reber, of Decatur, Indiana. Mr. Chester Lott, father of Miss Lott, gave the bride away. The men attendents wore buttonieres of white carnations. Little Phillip Max Washler carried the bride's train. He is the son of Mr. and Donald Washler. The bride's mother wore a light blue dress of flat crepe and a corsage of pink and white carnations and the groom's mother was dressed in a three-piece gray wool suit, with a corsage of red and white carnations.

Preceding the ceremony, a cousin of the groom, Miss Marilyn Weisz, of Edgerton, Ohio, played "Because," "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly," followed immediately by the Lohengrin Wedding March.

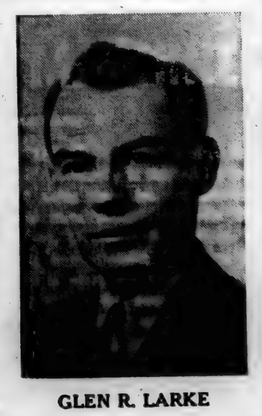
Only relatives and close friends were present at the church. Immediately following the wedding ceremony a buffet supper was served to invited guests at the home of the bride's parents. There were thrty-two present. After supper the bride and groom opened many lovely gifts from relatives and friends. Later on in the evening they left for their wedding journey.

The bride's traveling suit was of a cocoa-brown material with red accessories. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Washler will be the cottage just west of the Cleve Washler residence and they will be "at home" to their friends by the end of this week.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. Yeiser, Publicity

The Lions met Monday evening at the K. of P. Hall with twenty-four members and their guests present. The guests were introducd by Lion Hurni. Educational Chairman Rectenwall gave a fine talk on Lionism, stressing the service features of the organization. Two of the community's soldier boys, Frank Shull and Maurice Hurni, who are home on furlough, favored us with their presence.



GLEN R. LARKE

Glen R. Larke, of Saginaw, Mich., was present and with the aid of films brought the sugar beet growing to the front. A million tons of sugar from beets were produced in the United States in 1943, and that was only a 65 per cent yield. Much of the sugar from our beet fields is going to the government for alcohol, used in our war effort. It is a patriotic duty for farmers within reach of the factories to produce sugar beets. The processing of thebeets was shown and we got a pretty good idea of the vastness of the sugar beet industry. A film of the conquest of Midway and the drive bombing attack on Sicily was shown.

The Lions voiced their appreciation to Mr. Larke for a fine entertainment and also to the Association he represents.

Our soldier boys talked interestingly of their experiences in the service of their country. Frank was on Ascension Island for two years, midway between Brazil and Africa, while Maurice has traveled largely over the United States.

The board of directors met following the club session and started the machinery which results in the election of officers in June.

The nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Lion Dale Wicoff, H. E. Paschen, Clifford Billow, Ralph Sechler, and Claude Laub. This committee will hold its first meeting May 8 and report to the club its findings on June 12, election will take place on June 26, and new officers will take charge July 10th of the new year.

The present membership is 32 with Roy Koch being the last addition, sponsored by Lion Sellers, with the final papers being filed at this last meeting.

The May meetings have been arranged for. May 8, Lion Rectenwall and his gang will entertain Lion Ridgway's gang, who were the successful ones in the 10 weeks attendance contest. On May 22, the club will be guests of the Auburn club.

Forum Meeting Discusses Relief Foods

Roy Hendrickson Lee Marshall Herbert W. Parisius

Washington, D. C. (Special)—Seven hundred Washington officials and diplomats had their first taste of relief foods here at the Food Forum dinner meeting recently. The meeting was a down to earth proposition with every factor of relief feeding placed under a verbal microscope.

"Six years ago tonight, the first unprovoked bombing of civilians in the history of warfare took place in Barcelona, Spain," announced Bob White, executive chairman of Food Forum, as he opened the meeting. "So this is a unique anniversary, almost a forgotten one. Yet, tonight, this meeting of Food Forum is in a certain sense a recognition of that tragic incident. It has been called to discuss how America can come to the aid of the civilians who have been bombed and starved into submission by the Axis powers."

American civilians today are enjoying greater per capita supplies of food than they did during the 1935-39 periods, the so-called surplus years, Lee Marshall, director of food distribution for the War Food administration, told the assembly, which included 175 members of Congress and representatives of 18 foreign countries. This has been due in a large extent to the rationing system in effect and the outstanding food production which has permitted us to supply the army completely and still send quantities of food to our allies, he stated.

"This allocation system is an essential part of our food economy in time of war," Marshall maintained. "I also see it as a possible, and to some extent, essential part of our food economy during the reconstruction period that will follow the war."

The sacrifices being made by the American consumer and those of the United Nations must continue during the transitional period between war and peace, Roy Hendrickson, deputy director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration, asserted. Even then, it is doubtful if food needs of future liberated countries in Europe and the Far East can be fully met, he said.

"The stream of food to the liberated areas, counting both that which UNRRA will finance and that which some of the nations will finance themselves, will be very large for 12 to 24 months after the surrender," Hendrickson predicted.

"A new chapter in the broad story of wartime food is coming up, nobody knows just how soon," Herbert W. Parisius, director of the office of food programs for the Foreign Economic administration, anticipated. "The ihevitable alternatives to a good job would be either failure to feed millions of dangerously hungry people, or an intolerably heavy drain upon food supplies here and in other food-surplus areas. In addition to food itself, some production facilities will be essential as we help these needy people to help themselves. It will be wise and economical to move seed, fertilizers, hand tools, replacement parts and other necessary items into devastated areas."

Stick-to-Your-Ribs Dish Is Appetizing

Frankfurter farina dumplings with sauerkraut, pictured above, is a good down-to-earth, stick-to-your-ribs main dish, says the Country Cooking editor of Capper's Farmer, a publication of national circulation.

This dish has lots of what it takes, including vitamins in the fortified margarine and enriched farina. When buying cereals, margarine and other foods which are available with vitamins added, be sure to check that those you get are the enriched ones, advises the Capper's Farmer expert.

Dumplings with Sauerkraut

1½ cups self-rising cake flour	2 frankfurters
½ cup enriched farina	1 quart sauerkraut
2 tablespoons fortified margarine	1 cup water
¼ cup milk	1 large onion
	6 to 8 cloves

Sift and measure flour. Stir in farina. Cut in margarine and add milk. Mix lightly with a fork. Slice frankfurters in ½-inch slices. Add to dumplings, saving a few pieces to garnish top. Place sauerkraut in a large skillet with cover to fit. Add water and onion in which cloves have been stuck. Bring to a boil. Drop dumplings by tablespoonfuls on sauerkraut. Garnish with pieces of frankfurter. Cover closely. Steam without removing cover 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

DeKalb County farmers were urged today by Arthur H. Lautzenmiser, chairman of DeKalb County Agricultural Conservation Committee, to make sure that soybean seed planted this spring is properly inoculated, especially on land that has not previously grown the crop.

"Inoculation is cheap and is a simple operation, and is one that usually pays good dividends in increased production and in maintaining soil fertility," said Mr. Lautzenmiser. "Yet it is one that may be pushed aside in the rush of farm work this spring. The nitrogen-fixing bacteria which inhabit the soybean root system must be introduced from outside sources if the crop is to be grown on new land. Even on land which has repeatedly grown the crop it is regarded by some growers as cheap crop insurance.

"Any practice which will increase soybean yield even a small amount is more than ordinary important this year, since the allied war effort is depending on the American soybean crop to maintain the vitally important stockpile of vegetable oils and proteins. Inoculation is a practice which will increase the average yield.

"Inoculation by either commercial inoculants or by the use of properly inoculated soil can be effective, but the commercial inoculants are more readily used."

12,000 acres were grown in DeKalb County last year. A 10% increase in acreage is expected for 1944.

A Soldier's Son

It was not unusual that Douglas MacArthur should be a military leader. His father was a lieutenant in the Civil War. His father also helped capture the Philippine Islands in the Spanish American War and was even the military governor of the islands.

Douglas MacArthur has followed in his father's footsteps and has gained much popularity because of his leadership. He was graduated from West Point in 1903 and was first in his class with a high scholastic record.

He commanded the Rainbow Division in World War I when he was only 38 years old. He was the youngest commander of a division in the whole army.

General MacArthur has a promise to keep and he probably will keep it. When he had to go to Australia he promised, "I shall keep the soldiers faith I shall return."

Starting on Grades

Many times when you are driving in a mountainous country or going up a railroad grade you kill your motor. There are two safe ways to start. The first is to set the hand brake. Then start the car. As you push the accelerator release the clutch slowly and also release the hand brake.

The second is to put your right foot on the foot brake. Open the hand throttle and release the clutch and brake. Personally, I think the second is best because when you lean down to release the hand brake you may run off the road.

SERVICEMEN'S FAMILIES—During these trying times with rules and regulations going out of Washington by the thousands, it is often difficult for many people to learn just what they are entitled to in the nature of dependency allotments, veterans' benefits, and other compensations provided by Congress for the families of servicemen and women now in the armed forces. In this connection, it should be remembered that a Congressman's office is the best and surest place to turn to for help in straightening out problems with the Federal Government.

Your Congressman is your agent in the Nation's Capital. If you have any trouble collecting your allotment or other benefits due you, or if you have any questions pertaining to compensations, just write a letter to Congressman Gillie, 1522 New House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

This office has already had the pleasure of assisting in the adjustment of many allotment cases and insurance claims, and would be glad to be of assistance whenever possible. Your Congressman has also obtained a supply of guidebooks for servicemen and women of World War II and their families, answering many questions about war-time benefits. If you are interested in receiving a copy, drop a note to Congressman Gillie.

ARMY DAY — Army Day 1944 brought no parades, no demonstrations. General Marshall banned such marking of American entry into World War I, and the day was devoted, as are all our days now, to bringing about the end of World War II. Said General Marshall, "This year, like any other day, April 6 was one of hard work to carry us that much nearer to victory."

Army Day 1944, two years and four months after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor plunged the nation into World War 11, was spent by the more than 7,500,000 men of the U. S. Army in rigorous prosecution of the war.

Army Day 1944, found nearly half the Army's personnel overseas. Secretary of War Stimson has announced that 5,000,000 men would be overseas by the end of the year. When the last war ended, the Army numbered about 4,000,000 men, half of whom were overseas.

BUREAUCRACY IN ACTION—A young government employee in what is called grade four, at $2,040 a year, was upped to grade five and told his salary would be but $2,000 a year. The answer given was the following regulation:

"It is within the discretion of the agency, though not mandatory, to fix one's initial salary in the new job at such prescribed rate of the grade as will save to him the benefit of the within-grade salary advancement to which he previously had become entitled."

With such language as that, it's a wonder he gets anything!

PLOWING UNDER—Newspaper reports from Texas tell us that more than 40,000 acres of vegetables have been ployed under in Texas' fertile lower Rio Grande Valley by farmers said to be "angered to almost open revolt by what they term inexcusable government bungling which prevents them from marketing the crops except at a loss."

And down in Georgia, James H. Wylie, merchant and farmer, is reported in the press as abandoning his 1500-acre farm because "Bureaucratic red tape got him down."

FREE BOOKLETS — This office has received copies of the following booklets, which are available to readers who drop a note or postcard to Congressman Gillie: "Meat for Thrifty Meals" and "Green Vegetables in Wartime Meals."

by EVERETT MITCHELL
Farm Commentator, Heard Daily 6:15-6:45 am on WMAQ—670 on your dial

ACCORDING to the War Food Administration, the outlook for garden supplies in 1944, in general, is considerably better than the situation which prevailed during 1943. And one of the most important items of this survey is the use of garden fertilizers, which will contain more plant food than last year.

In using these fertilizers for the victory garden, the gardener should realize that the roots of many of the vegetable plants do not penetrate much deeper than the plowed or spaded area. It is, therefore, important that careful attention be given to the preparation of the seed bed. Neither the seeds nor the roots of transplants should come into contact with the commercial fertilizer. This material should be in the bottom half of the soil rather than the top portion, so when turning soil, remember that eight inches should be the minimum depth of spading.

Another factor that should be taken into consideration is that nitrates stimulate growth and are often used as a side or top dressing a week or so after plants are well established. Plants set in "ringed," such as tomato, cabbage, etc., or the fertilizer may be placed alongside the row. However, it must be kept off the foliage and should be two or three inches distance from the plant. A handful is sufficient for six or eight feet of (ringed) or six or eight feet of row and any fertilizer analysis containing nitrogen, such as the 4-12-4 victory garden type, will serve the purpose.

Until next time, lots of good luck everybody.

Dear Editor:

A few lines this Easter morning to let you know that I have received The News several times, also to be sure you have my correct address. I do enjoy the paper very much, have been receiving it all during my stay in the States, a few copies in North Africa, and several since I've been in Italy. Usually I read it and leave it on my bunk, the other officers pick it up and find articles of interest pass a few words about some article or joke they read and they always read the new addresses of the week.

There are five of us together in our particular quarters, one from Louisiana, from Arizona, one from Oregon, one Maine and of course, me from Indiana. We have United States well represented, each of those respective states are the btst so far as each of us are concerned.

Spring is here, I guess the countryside is well colored now, due to the blossoms. Things are going well, the mail follows me fairly well, usually late, but sooner or later it arrives. Things wouldn't be bad if it werent for the ever present things which can be seen wherever we are, it seems to get on your nerves, and I for one will be plenty glad to see United States again where things are intact and clean.

Here's hello to the folks around home and good luck to all of Uncle Sam's boys around the globe. Thanks, sincerely, for The News, keep 'em coming, Fred.

Respectfully,

GAME FISHING SEASON WILL CLOSE APRIL 30

Reminding Indiana fishermen that the open season on game fish such as bass, crappies and bluegills will close on April 30, Harrell F. Mosbaugh director of the Division of Fish and Game pointed out that the trout season in the state will open May 1.

Due to wartime restrictions on automobile travel, however, only anglers in the northern part of the state, where trout are found, are likely to participate in this sport.

The regular closed season on bass, bluegills, crappies, redeared sunfish, and other specie, will reopen June 15. The trout season, which opens May 1, will continue until August 31. The division of Fish and Game has planted 5,000 legal-sized trout in streams of several northern Indiana counties this spring, and they will provide most of the sport for the fishermen who care to try for them.

The season on frogs will also be open until April 30, and will be closed until June 10.

Mr. Mosbaugh reported that ice-fishing during the winter months was generally good, but he said that weather conditions from the time the ice went out until April 1, eliminated most fishing. During the past week, reports have been received by the Division of Fish and Game, that lake fishing has been attractive. There have been many reports of bass being taken on minnows and worms, and that bluegills have been caught with live and artificial bait.

THE LOST PURSE

I remember the excitement and the terrible alarm
That worried everybody when William broke his arm
An' how frantic Pa and Ma got just the other day
When they couldn't find the baby, 'cause he'd up and (walked away.
But I'm sure there's no excitement that our house ever (shook
Like the times Ma can't remember where she put her poc- (ketbook.

She hustles to the sideboard, coz she knows exactly where
She can put her hand right on it, but alas, it isn't there.
She tries the parlor table an' goes upstairs to look,
An' once more she can't remember where she put her (pocketbook.

She tells us she had it just a half hour ago
An' now she cannot find it tho she's hunted high and low,
She's searched the kitchen cupboard and the bureau (drawers upstairs,
An' it's not behind the sofa nor beneath the parlor chairs.
She makes us kids get busy searching every little nook,
An' this time says she's certain she's lost her pocketbook.

She calls Pa at the office, and he laughs I guess, for then,
She always mumbles something about the heartlessness (of men.
She calls to mind a peddler who came to the kitchen door
An' she's certain from his whiskers and the shabby (clothes he wore,
An' his dirty shirt and collar, that he must have been a (crook,
An' she's positive that feller came and got her pocketbook

But at last she always finds it in some queer and funny (spot,
When she'd laid it in a hurry an' had somehow clean (forgot.
An' she heaves a sigh of gladness, and she says, "Well, I (declare,
I would take an oath this minute that I never put it there"
An' we're peaceable and quiet 'till next time Ma goes to (look

TRIBUTE TO MARK WILLIAMS

Of our friend, Mark, who always accepted, with gratitude and confidence, our offers of cheer and comfort during his recurring despondent days, we wish to send a word concerning his faithfulness of duty as a member of the Church of Christ, at St. Joe.

As chorister of both Bible School and Church service, for several years, he was unfailing. As a teacher, studious and conscientious. As an officer, (Deacon) earnest and helpful. He was sincere and consistent until his latter days of apparent hopelessness and despondency.

Sincere regret in the passing of our friend, Mark, has filled us with deepest sorrow.

LOCAL GIRL ENTERTAINS AT BANQUET

In the professional and amateur world in northern Indiana and Ohio, April Dawn Bowser has for several years been acclaimed as "tops" in Acrobatic Dancing. Friday, April 14th, April was requested by the Junior class of the Concord High School, Elkhart, Ind., to be one of the entertainers at their annual Junior - Senior Banquet. The banquet was held at the Hotel Goshen, Goshen, Ind.

Accompanied on the piano by Loretta Oetting a Senior of Elkhart High School, April gave a brilliant performance of what is known in the acrobatic world as "Highlights in Precision" . . . . This dance culminates only after years of daily practicing of "precision" in timing, balancing, muscle control and perfect spacing. On this engagement April says she used the latter to the Nth degree, as she had to adjust the routine used on the stage and for floor shows to the tiny space alotted for her use in the hotel dining room.

April's contact with the Elkhart High Scohol was made possible by Mr. Clyde Duker, principal of the St. Joe High School and former member of the faculty of Elkhart High.

Mr. and Mrs. Duker were "honor guests" at the banquet and chaperoned April on the trip.

STILL MOANING

It has been going on long enough for us to become somewhat accustomed to it, but many Americans haven't yet been able to face gracefully self-denial in lines of food, transportation, clothing. Crabbing about butter shortages, lack of meat points, not enough shoe coupons, no train reservations, too little gasoline, is just as plentiful now as when it first started to affect the great American public. The chap who sorrowfully bemoans the lack of thick steaks and the one who laments long automobile trips for vacations that used to be, are not rare cases of complaining. There are those who would chafe when limited, who would protest the need of such limiting and rationing, if he himself was pinched. But also there are here about us those who quietly and patiently accept a reduction of goods and count it well that they aren't suffering the deprivations of other countries. As a whole our people are patriotic, and are willing to sacrifice, but when our government heads permit such waste, extravagance and destruction of the things we give up, then it is time for us to revolt. They are co-operating and waiting that day when the war ends principally to call a halt to blood shed rather than a return to a heavily stocked larder and new auto tires. The war's end will not bring an immediate end to rationing, we are advised. The British people don't expect a normal supply of milk until 1948, of eggs, tomatoes and candy in '49 and of meat and butter in 1950. We may have a bit of waiting to do on our own part, over here, who can tell.

DRAWING OF 4-F'S

The drawing on the 4-F classification to build up manpower needs is calling for conjecture by some of our News readers. It is hoped that of the 5,000,000 men who are listed in the 4-F group, due to physical disabilities, that one million of them who are not engaged in war work, can be called for non-combat duty with the Army or Navy. Also, it is figured that of these million, if such a condition arises, many of them would immediately change into essential war work and so relieve the labor shortage. There have been arguments concerning the fact that medical standards were placed too high in the first place, but the Army insists that to lower the present requirements would impair the present efficiency. Doctors say that only about 7 per cent of the 4-F's could be used anyhow, even by lowering the standards. Whether the discussion and presentation to Congress will lead to any of this group leaving non-essential jobs and getting into war industry, we are of the opinion that there aren't enough of them who are not doing something worthwhile in this war picture, to even matter when viewed on a large scale. And there are also a goodly number who can't do more than they are doing right now, if we knew the cases personally. We shall wait and see whether this motion will really do much good.

SPRUCING UP

Those of us in St. Joe take pride in living here. Perhaps more than ever do we realize the pleasure that goes with living among friends, neighborly neighbors, midst Lions meetings, the school trustee and PTA asking parent's attention, local churches giving spiritual blessings, council fathers and civic organizations planning a better place in a post-war world. All of this goes on in such as St. Joe all over the country and in these towns there is promotion for the betterment of the citizens who live there. This is the time of year when we suggest and support the Clean-Up Campaigns, sponsored by the town board and adhered to by these who take pride in this community. We welcome improved streets and sidewalks, clean alleys and vacant lots, freshly painted homes and stores. Improving, cleaning, burning and airing is a part of the spring cleaning program. With the need for salvaging magazines and news papers by Lions Club, collecting clothes for over-seas, saving tin cans and so on, housecleaning today finds us not only contributing to our own good and our town, but for a world of people.

ACCIDENTS

There is a reduction of 7 per cent in the taking of lives by accidents and it is reassuring to know that certain precautions on the highway, in the home and factory, can mean this much. Present highway laws may make travel more secure but it takes the co-operation of the people to reduce traffic accidents 42 per cent. There is still a need to lessen the accidents in war industry and the Secretary of Labor asks that management and workers reduce the number by one million this year. Accidents cost the country 100,000 deaths annually, 350,000 permanent disablements, 5,000,000 temporary injuries, 500,000,000 man-days of work lost and in money, 5 billion dollars. Had a million people are taking the crowded medical and hospital facilities of the nation and if the time alone lost is added in just working hours, they could produce 11,000 navy bombers or 500,000 light tanks. What price caution!

A LOST ART?

There might repose in a chest, stored away in a Spencerville or St. Joe attic, a certificate dated years ago; stating that the undersigned received an honorable mention for penmanship as approved by so and so's system. Mayoe you were one of these models of perfection in calligraphy, yourself. Those days of Spencerian and Palmer methods, of flowing strokes and graceful strokes, full curves and clear-cut lines, has about become a lost art. There was a time when penmanship was stressed as part of education. It was an important subject in the curriculum. Teaching it was practically an art and practiced in the hope of improving the general scrawl of the average student. They didn't figure that the typewriter would clarify matters later on. Feel a pang for the old days when you try to read the handwriting that resembles those ancient Egyptian characters carved into stone, recall the Spencerian script when you try to make head and tail out of an illegible bit of handwriting.

Citizenship 8 Class discussed "Making the Most of High School" last Friday. The students handed in written questions that were answered and also asked oral questions that were answered. Some of the questions were: (1) How many credits do you have to have to graduate? (2) On what basis are the valedictorian and salutatorian chosen? (3) How do you get credits for Physical Education? (4) Should I take Latin if I want to be a nurse? (5) What subjects would you take if you want to be in the Army Air Corps or the Marines? Education can be very valuable to every one of these eighth graders who will enter high school next year. If these future freshmen are successful and happy in high school, they probably will be the same the rest of their life. They should learn a lot about getting along with people. It is important for them to study hard during school and play and work hard outside of school. There is a satisfaction in doing worthwhile things well. The eighth graders were advised to try to decide what they want to do after graduation as soon as possible and even though they aren't sure to try to take all subjects required for what they would like to do. They were advised not to take the "easiest snbjects" just because they were the easiest but to take the ones that would do them the most good. These future freshmen will "get out of high school just what they put into it." None of them can afford to sit in class and the assembly like bumps on a log or act mean all the time and expect to get the most out of high school. The eighth graders this year seem to be alert and on their toes most of the time. They are pretty good sports and are interested in current affairs. They can make the most of high school—it's up to them!

The Latin II class is now translating Caesar. Before starting the wars with the Helvetians, the class read a few pages on Julius Caesar, Roman Military Accomplishments, and Warfare in Ancient and Modern Times. Most great men excel in one thing only. Julius Caesar excelled in three—statesmanship, war, and literature. He was a good orator as well as a good general. He also was a champion of the common people and did all he could to get reforms passed that would help the poor. He was consul at the age of forty-five. The Romans contributed organization, discipline, attention to details, and far-sighted preparation to military science. "Veni, vidi, vici, will always be a memorial of Caesar's ability to think and act quickly—he never lost a set battle." There are many parallels that can be pointed out in comparing ancient and modern warfare. Elephants were used then for some of the same purposes tanks are used today.

"Caesar scared the Britons at the Thames River with a single armored elephant on top of which was a tower filled with slingers and bowmen. A Greek from Southern Italy invented a flying machine that looked like a dove. The Germans have a Taube plane that is so-called because it resembles a dove when seen in the air.

"INTERPRETATIONS"

—BY—
Rev. Frank Stevenson

THE COMING OF CHRIST

Christ the Son of God comes to the world today in the Scriptures and the Sacraments just as truly as He once came to Bethlehem, Jerusalem, and Calvary in the flesh as Jesus of Nazereth. Today as then He presents Himself for acceptance or rejection by each individual in each of His three eternal offices—Prophet, King and Priest.

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem, many received Him with great joy as 'one sent from heaven', but others like King Herod sought to slay Him; when He came riding into Jerusalem that first Palm Sunday, multitudes went before and followed after crying, "Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest!", but there were others—Pharisees, Scribes and Priests—who resented the street scene and tried to stop the demonstration; and when Jesus came to Calvary, His own disciples fled because it seemed that God had already forsaken Him, but a penitent thief looked to Jesus in His innocent suffering as his only hope of redemption from sin and deliverance from death. "He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them he gave power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." (John 1: 11, 12.)

Jesus comes to me in the Scriptures as the Prophet sent from heaven. Shall I hear Him or slay Him? He comes to me in the Sacrament of Holy Baptism as the King of an invisible Kingdom of which I have been made a 'naturalized' citizen. Shall I serve and obey or seek to usurp His throne? Jesus comes to me in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper as the only mediator between God and man—"Himself the Victim and Himself the Priest"—bringing to me "The chastened peace of sins forgiven, the filial joys of heirs of heaven." Shall I forsake Him and flee for my life or forsake my sins and entrust my soul's welfare to Him? "O how shall I receive Thee, how greet Thee, Lord, aright?" Be Thou my Prophet, King and Priest. Amen!

Said by Washington

To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

* * *

There is a rank due to the United States among nations which will be withheld, if not absolutely lost, by the reputation of weakness.

* * *

Let us impart all the blessings we possess, or ask for ourselves, to the whole family of mankind.

* * *

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world . . . taking care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments, in a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies.

Rep. Geo. W. Gillie and Friend

An interesting study in contrasting altitudes is presented by these two Hoosier Republicans who are familiar figures on Capitol Hill—Rep. Geeorge W. Gillie, of Fort Wayne, who measures 6 feet 4 inches; and John W. (Johnnie) McCabe, of Whiting, who can stretch to a bit over four feet. Representative Gillie has been in Congress for 5 years is undisputd holder of the title "Tallest Congressman." McCabe is a minority clerk of the House, came to Washington 25 years ago with the late Will Wood from the old Tenth District.

Ways of government in trying to meet its manpower needs are beyond the understanding of ordinary man.

After training a man in the army for 18 months the government will send him home because it has discovered a physical defect that he had all the time—while doing his job to everybody's satisfaction in uniform. To replace the veteran, government will then order the father of four children to leave home and start studying in the school of the soldier.

The illustration here given is not something out of the imagination. It could happen here, and did.—Montevideo, Minn., News.

The New Dealers certainly have answered Senator Butler's charges of Latin American waste. One New Dealer said we have wasted only $350,000,000 down there. Another said we had wasted only $603,000,000. Another said we had wasted only $1,300,000,000. Another said we had wasted only $2,207,000,000. No wonder F. D. R. has warned his subordinates not to argue in the public prints!

Meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Millie Shull, all responded by reading the Club Creed and singing the Club Prayer.

Mrs. Laura Washler gave her project work along with Mrs. Kathryn Haller, who was unable to be present. The subject of the month was "Better Living from Home Produced Foods." Leaflets were passed on the subject. Response at roll call was house cleaning suggestions and garden helps.

There was a plant and seed exchange, only a few remembered, not thinking to look at their program before attending. Cora Curie presented a very interesting and profitable article on the "Story of Food Preservation." It dealt with the most primitive methods of preservation up to the modern way of frozen foods. Two contests were given by Mrs. Doris Yeiser and Katie Storer.

Meeting adjourned after which the ladies served raisin cake, pickle, fruit salad topped with whipped cream, and coffee.

MORTUARY

MAURER

Marion Scott Maurer, son of James and Miranda Carnahan Maurer, was born in Noble County, Indiana, January 24, 1871. He departed this life April 21, 1944, at the age of 73 years, 2 months and 27 days, at the old Maurer home, where he had spent over 50 years of his life.

Death was due to a heart attack at about 8 o'clock, when he had gone to the garden to plant some potatoes. Shortly after he had started to work, his sister looked out and saw him lying on the ground, dead. He had been poorly for quite some time, but was about.

Scott moved with his parents to the Braybrook community southeast of Spencerville when a young boy, here he received his schooling and spent the early years of his life. After moving to this community some fifty years ago, Scott became known as one of the best ditchers in this part of the county, and his services were in demand, and well appreciated where ever he labored.

After the death of his mother, he purchased the old home and retired from active work, where with his sister, Maud Braithwait, he spent the last years of his life.

Three brothers, Milton, James, and John, and one sister, Ora, besides the parents, have preceded him in death. He leaves to mourn his departurt the sister, Maud, three brothers, Harry, of Cleveland, O., Simeon, of near Coldwater, Mich., and Roy of Spencerville, one Uncle Simeon, of Auburn several nieces and nephews and a host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence at 2 p. m. Sunday with Rev. Joseph Ferguson officiating. Burial was made in White City Cemetery, at Spencerville, with Roscoe Walter in charge.

Out of town guests and relatives attending the funeral were: Harry Maurer and wife Cleveland, O; Lawrence Maurer and family and mother, Constance Maurer of Detroit; Mrs. Clara Maurer and son Kenneth of Union City, Mich; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Brabandt, Mrs. Mae Wiseman, Mrs. Helen Pond and Mrs. Mable Van Fossen of Columbus, O; Mr. Bracey Morr and Mrs. Allwardt and family of East Leroy, Mich.

Mrs. Braithwait, who kept house for her brother for several years is now at Columbus in the home of her daughter for a few weeks and upon her return to Indiana will proceed to close the affairs of her brother.

EARL STIMMAN DIES AT PHOENIX, ARIZONA.

Earl Stimman, a well known farmer living 4 miles west of St. Joe in Jackson township, died at Phoenix, Arizona on Tuesday of last week according to word received on Friday. Mr. Stimman had gone to Arizona a month ago in the hope that a change of climate would be of benefit to his health.

Tuberculosis of the throat resulted in death. He had been afflicted with the disease for several years and when his condition did not improve physicians advised the change of climate. Lewis Freeman and wife near neighbors, drove Mr. Stimman and wife to Phoenix a month ago and they were residing in a cabin at that place. His condition became critical the first of the week and he was taken to the hospital at Phoenix. His throat was paralyzed the last two days of life.

The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Stimman, Vernon Stimman, residing in Jackson township and Mrs. Hazel Schrader and the latter's husband, Lloyd Schrader, who reside 1¼ north of Concord were enroute to Phoenix at the time Mr. Stimman passed away. They did not arrive until Thursday afternoon and Mrs. Stimman awaited their arrival before telegraphing word of Mr. Stimman's death.

The body was sent on the Southern Pacific railroad Saturday morning and arrived in Auburn on Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Stimman, her son and daughter and son-in-law left by automobile Friday to return to the home in Jackson Township, and arrived Tuesday also.

The deceased was active in the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, the DeKalb County Fair Association, 4-H work and Farm Bureau activities. He had been a country member on the board of directors of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce for eight years. For many years he was in charge of the live stock department at the fall fairs in Auburn.

He was 55 years of age and is survived by his wife, son, daughter and three grandchildren, Marna Lou Stimman and Betty Stimman, of Jackson Township, and Leota May Schrader.

NEW RELEASE ON LEGUME INOCULATIONS

Local farmers were urged today by the local vocational agricultural teacher, to make every effort to inoculate any and all legume seed planted this spring and throughout the year, especially those legumes sown on ground not recently planted to these crops.

Legume inoculation is cheap and requires but little time to properly apply it to any legume seed. Inoculation has proven its worth even when used on fields known to have been inoculated and returned produce more valuable that the cost of the inoculation and labor required for application.

Soybeans especially should be inoculated since their bacteria is a foreigner to our soils in this country. Without inoculation, soybeans are a distinct menace to the nitrogen content of the soil.

Inoculation is most economically done by the commercial inoculant which is most effective. Of eleven companies whose inoculants were recently tested at the Indiana Experiment Station according to 3 standards sa follows; satistory, fair and unsatisfactory nodule formation, none were found to be unsatisfactory and only one company (Ind. Farm Bureau Coop-Lespedeza inoculant) produced an inoculant rated fair in effectiveness. The Nitragin Co. had most tests made with eight different inoculants testing satisfactory.

"INTERPRETATIONS"

—BY—

Rev. Frank Stevenson

The Ten Commandments

The Ten Commandents are the eternal laws of right attitudes toward God and the consequent rules for right behaviour among men. They are the God-given 'Ten Word' commentary (decalogue) on the major premise of all revealed truth, namely, "I am the Lord thy God." They are the acknowledged natural implications of our fear, love and trust of this One True God who has revealed himself to us in His creation, through His prophets and finally, by His Son, Jesus Christ.

These Commandments were given to foster abundant living, not to dwarf life. To those who acknowledge the Lord as God they are "a delightful road," a straight and narrow way, leading safely through every ill and evil to the throne of God. The Law is a bus driver who delivers us to the feet of Christ who in turn teaches us the joy and blessing of obedience and give us the power to do the will of God as set forth in the Ten Commandments, which I interpret as follows: *

"I am the Lord thy God"
Therefore: "Thou Shalt"

1. Worship Me only;
2. Do and say only what brings glory to My Name;
3. Take time to have fellowship with Me and Mine;
4. Honor divinely appointed guardians;
5. Hold all human life sacred;
6. Establish a family, be fruitful and multiply;
7. Do more than your share of the work;
8. Tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth when ever it is expedient to break your silence;
9. Be glad when your neighbor prospers; and
10. Develop your present resources before you ask for more.

* These interpretations are based on the older numbering of the commandments.

May Day Recalls Liberal Who Tried to Have Gay Time in Puritan New England

Comes May Day and thousands of American girls in our schools and colleges will be perpetuating the custom of "bringing in the May." As they dance around the Maypole it is not difficult to believe that a strange ghost will be haunting the scene of their festivities.

It will be the ghost of an early-day "liberal" who tried—unsuccessfully—to have a gay time in Puritan New England. His name was Thomas Morton and in 1625 he established a trading post near Wessagusset (later the site of Quincy, Mass.) which he named "Merry Mount".

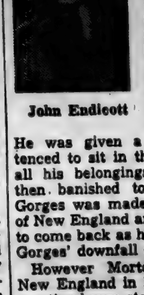
The new trading post began to prosper almost immediately. Morton became a prime favorite with the Indians because he traded them two things which they wanted most—firearms and firewater. By edict of the king, supplying the savages with either was strictly forbidden. But that didn't bother the master of Merry Mount.

Enjoying this prosperity, Morton decided in the spring of 1627 to have a great celebration. So he invited his Indian friends to a May Day festival. What happened on that occasion at this Colonial "hot spot" is described by Governor Bradford of Plymouth who tells us that:

"They allso set up a Maypole, drinking and dancing about it many days togeather, inviting the Indean women, for their consorts, dancing and frisking togither (like so many fairies, or furies rather) and worse practices. As if they had anew revived and celebrated the feasts of the Roman Goddes Flora, or the beasly practieses of the madd Bacchinallans."

Of course, the tale of such goings-on at Merry Mount outraged the good citizens of neighboring settlements and when Morton declined to mend his ways, Governor Bradford sent the doughty Capt. Miles Standish (whom Morton disrespectfully called "Captaine Shrimp") to arrest him. After various misadventures, including a personal encounter between Morton and Standish and Morton's near escape by the device of getting his guards drunk, the master of Merry Mount was taken to Plymouth where he was given a preliminary hearing and sent to England for trial.

There he enlisted the support of Sir Ferdinand Gorges, who hated the Pilgrims, and within a year Morton was back at Merry Mount, again dealing in firearms and firewater. But during his absence the Puritans had started to colonize Massachusetts and these stern people were not to be trifled with.



John Endicott

John Endicott, founder of Salem, visited Merry Mount, cut down the Maypole and took away all of Morton's winter supply of corn but failed to catch him.

However, the Puritan authorities kept after him until they did lay hands on him. He was given a swift trial, sentenced to sit in the stocks, to have all his belongings confiscated and then banished to England. Later Gorges was made governor-general of New England and Morton planned to come back as his lieutetnant. But Gorges' downfall ended that dream.

However Morton did return to New England in 1643 only to find a meeting house standing on the place where his men and the Indian maidens had "danced and frisked" together. Again Morton was arrested but the magistrates couldn't fine him because he had already been deprived of all his property. They couldn't sentence him to be whipped because he was too old and half-crazy, besides. So they sentenced him to prison and there all winter long he lay in chains without fire or bedding. In the spring of 1644 they released him for he was no longer a danger to the morals of the colony.

When he died two years later, with him died the Elizabethan tradition in New England. But 300 years after he erected his Maypole at Merry Mount his name was heard again. In 1937 a native American opera called "Merry Mount," with such stars as Lawrence Tibbett and Gladys Swarthout in the cast, was presented in the Metropolitan Opera house in New York and newspapers of the day described its reception as "the most enthusiastic of 10 years at the Metropolitan." Perhaps the ghost of Thomas Morton was there—and smiled!

YOUR CONGRESS and YOU

NEWS From the Office of

GEORGE W. GILLIE

FOURTH INDIANA DISTRICT

The Office of War Information has again been the subject of some careful scrutiny on the part of Congress, particularly since it asked for an appropriation of $64,000,000 as compared with the $25,000,000 it got for its operations last year. One of its questionable activities which has been disclosed is the distribution of a book in Britain entitled "A Handbook of the United States of America." Distribution in this country was expressly prohibited and anyone who read it could easily see why.

Representative Taber, of New York, told the House that he had heard about the book, and, assisted by the New York Sun, tried to get hold of a copy. After great effort, he succeeded. It was prepared by the overseas branch of OWI and consists of 167 pages. Four and a half pages were devoted to the history of the United States from the time of Leif Ericson to the advent of the New Deal; ten pages were used to extol Roosevelt; and the rest of the book was devoted to propaganda exalting the Executive and minimizing the Congress.

The OWI has frequently denied charges by members of the House that its personnel was a hot-bed of European ideological conflicts, but it has now admitted that a house cleaning has been found to be necessary and several score persons have already been dischargd. While most of the employees' loyalty to this country was not necessarily questioned, they were found to be too much steeped in the vari-hued politics of Europe.

FARM MORTGAGES

From the time of old Uncle Mose, the plague of mortgage indebtedness has visited the house, barn and lot of many a DeKalb County farmer. Life insurance executives whose companies specialize in farm mortgage investments, say that the farmers of the nation are continuing in a most encouraging way to repay on borrowings on agricultural property. Although this statement doesn't cover the entire situation since such mortgages represent only 2% of the company's total investment assets, still it does give us the fact that farmers are going ahead. At the close of 1943, life insurance companies held farm mortgages of $640,000,000. This amount was $50,000,000 less than in 1942. Maybe some readers won't be interested but to most of us, when the mortgage on the old farm is being paid off, nationally, then the news is good enough to print.

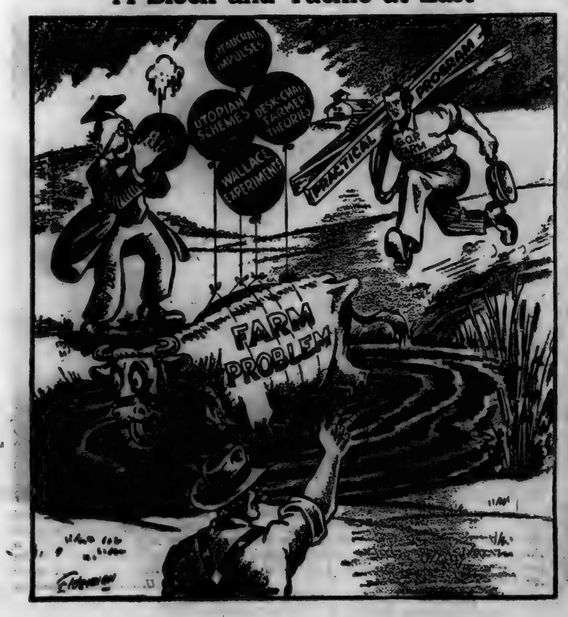
MAY SEVENTH

Anniversaries are of some consequence and such a date as May 7, arrives and recalls an event that still effects our lives and the world. 1944 finds us still trying to overcome a political and military alliance arrived at between Germany and Italy, announced in Berlin and Rome on that May 7, 1939. On the 22nd of the same month and year, in the presence of Chancelor Hitler, a 10-year military pact was signed in Berlin, between these two governments. Here is Article III: "If contrary to the wishes and hopes of the contrary parties it should happen that either of them should become involved in military entanglements with one other power or with other powers, the other contracting party will immediately rally to his side as ally and support him with all his military resources on land, at sea, and in the air." May 7 is, as yet, a date to remember.

FEW BANANAS

The periods of scarcity of the fruit gives renewed meaning to, "Yes, We Have No—." The banana crop is not too plentiful in grocery and fruit stores, due to shipping difficulties. It wasn't much over 50 years ago when North America started to learn something interesting about this supposedly rare tropical fruit. It then came wrapped in tinfoil and was very expensive, being an infrequent luxury. In our time, during peace, bananas are received in large quantities and come full of proteins, mineral energy and rich in just plain good tasting. Picking the fruit green so that it doesn't spoil by ripening on the tree, the hands and fingers, or bunch as you call it, look appetizing to St. Joe citizens who, having less of them, consider the delight of the fruit more seriously and appretiatively.

A Block and Tackle at Last



NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

Canning of Rhubarb

Although rhubarb is not difficult to can, spoilage is common because wrong canning methods are often used. Heating the product is absolutely necessary to insure keeping quality, says Miss Mary Lenore Moore DeKalb County home demonstration agent. (or according to information released by the DeKalb County agricultural office.)

For canning select young, tender stalks of rhubarb. Wash, trim, and cut them into half-inch lengths. Boil until soft, adding just enough sugar to sweeten. Pack boiling hot into hot, sterilized jars, leaving one-half inch of head space. Process for 5 minutes in the boiling water bath.

Rhubarb also combines well with other fruits such as strawberries, pineapple, oranges, and raisins for jams and marmalades.

How to Grow

Parsnips and salsify have one real advantage over most other vegetables—they may be left in the ground all winter long. These two root crops are easy to grow. It takes the whole season for them to mature.

For best production, the seed should be sown thickly. in a well prepared soil. When the seedlings show crowding later, they may be thinned. New parsnip seed should be used each year, as it soon loses its germinating ability. Both the seed and the soil should be kept moist during planting.

Make a fresh, shallow furrow, sow the seed, and cover with moist soil after every two or three feet or rows have been seeded. The covering should be light and the soil firmed but not packed. A few radish seed may be used to mark the row. Parsnips and salsify should be seeded by May 1.

Pointers for Dairymen

Feed supplies are critical now and County Agent, C. E. Baker thinks they will become increasingly critical as the year progresses. Consequently, he lists here some practices which may help the dairyman meet the situation.

Grow more legume hay, provide sufficient pasture and grain. Cut the hay before it matures and handle it carefully to save leaves thus increasing its protein content and palatability. Fertilize liberally to secure maximum yields. Fertilization pays on pasture and hay crops as well as on grain crops.

Sudan grass will supply excellent pasture during the later part of July and for the rest of the summer. Dairymen should secure seed now so as not to be disappointed. One-half acre of sudan grass well fertilized will go far in preventing that "Summer Slump."

Feed cows liberally during their dry period. A cow will give more milk if she is in good flesh at calving time than if she is thin. Cows should be allowed a dry period of two months.

Keep as many cows as feed and labor permit. Produce good quality milk and avoid waste.

Breed for better herd replacements. By using the best bulls available at all times, the dairy farmers will gradually increase the proportion of high producing heifers born and also raised in their herds.

The State Division of Entomology reports that while the newly planted strawberry acreage in Indiana this year will be greater than last year, the crop will still be below normal. It is expected that the total producing acreage will be about forty per cent less than last year because of a shortage of labor and plants. A series of meetings among Southern Indiana growers has been held by the division for the discussion of the general strawberry situation, plant diseases, insect pest control, and cultural practices. It was reported that the crop in Indiana is in good condition, with the loss from early freezing not exceeding ten per cent.

A man in Berlin whose home had been bombed was directed to an office where bombing victims might seek aid and comfort. He walked in and found himself in an empty room. But there were two doors: the one was marked "Total Damage," the other "Minor Damage." He opened the latter and promptly found himself in another empty room. Again there were two doors: the one was marked "For the Rich," and the other "For the Poor." Since he was of meager means the man opened the latter, and once again he entered a room where there was nothing but two doors. Here the one was marked "For Party Members," and the other "For Non-Party Members." The man opened the latter door—and there he was out on the street again.

VOLUME OF TRAFFIC ON STATE HIGHWAYS DECLINES IN MARCH

The volume of traffic on Indiana's state highway system in March of this year was 2.5 per cent less than for the same month last year, according to records compiled from 23 automatic traffic counters at various locations over the state.

The same counters revealed that the traffic volume had fallen off 37.1 per cent in March of this year as compared to March in 1941.

One counter, however, showed no percentage of change in the traffic volume of March this year compared with the same month in 1943. This counter is located on State Road No. 1 south of Farmland. The daily average of vehicles passing the counter was 345 for March this year and last year, although Sunday traffic fell off 2.6, and Saturday traffic 5.9 per cent. The week end traffic, however, registered a slight gain.

There has been a noticeable decrease in Sunday driving, according to the counters, although the average for all days of the week is but 2.5 per cent less in March of this year than for March of 1943.

The counters make no distinction between types of vehicles, and the count includes trucks and commercial equipment along with automobiles.

Local School News

The girls 4-H Club meetings will be held every Friday afternoon in the Old Assembly starting on April 28. Mrs. Butler, the 4-H Club Leader, will be at the school house every Friday morning to help anyone who needs help on her project. The week of June 12-16 will be the local exhibit of 4-H Club work. Watch this paper for further club notice.

The last week of school was eventful for everyone. Examinations were given on Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday all day. The teachers graded papers and made out grades on Thursday and Friday morning. The pupils received their grade cards Friday afternoon.

The Senior Recital directed by Mrs. Buckner was very successful on Thursday night. The two recitals given by this class this year have been outstanding. They are enjoyed by local people and also are excellent training for the girls. This class has really "done things" this year.

Commencement was held on Friday night, April 21 as scheduled. The gym was decorated with ferns and roses on a background of green grass. The class motto "Paddle Your Own Canoe" was written on a poster hung on the wall. The poster was ornamented with red, white and blue the class colors. The program was carried out as planned and included a processional and recessional. These were impressive as the thirteen seniors marched in and out in single file in their black caps and gowns. Maxine Converse and Mary Louise Woodcox spoke well as salutatorian and valedictorian. The audience also enjoyed the address given by Prof. George D. Greer, Manchester College. Prof. Greer gave a lot of valuable suggestions to the seniors and also included some humorous stories. The seniors received their diplomas in the following order: Jim Kees, Lee Bragg, Ned Keller, Allen Haller, Gerald Means, Maxine Converse, Mary Louise Woodcox, Jean Hurni, Virginia George, Pat Carpenter, Joan Diederich, Bessie Baughman, and Beverly Swander. Max Likens was not present to receive his diploma with the class. He is in the Navy. Supt. Carl Stallman presented the diplomas. Prin. C. O. Duker gave some interesting facts concerning the senior class. He also was the first to congratulate them. Mr. Ridgway, in behalf of the Lions Club, presented each senior with a Bible. These seniors are very capable but do go out into a war torn world. We wish the best for every one of them and hope they have learned a few things from the St. Joe school that will make them good citizens and will help them be happy and successful.

The Junior-Senior Reception was the last event of the year and was held on Saturday night, April 22, at the Y. M. C. A. in Ft. Wayne. The meal was served by candle light and the tables were decorated with beautiful flower center pieces. Roland Davis was the toastmaster. Leora Wilmot gave the welcome to seniors and Beverly Swander gave the response. The theme was the Navy and Mr. Duker gave a toast to the Navy. Music was played throughout the meal by Gwyen Shady and Dick Blair from South Side H. S. After the dinner, a program was given by Foutz Dancing School in Ft. Wayne. It was very entertaining. The program included tap dancing, singing, and accordion playing. The costumes were very attractive. The evening was ended after the reading of the will and the class prophecy. This banquet was enjoyable and appreciation goes to Mrs. Butler, the class sponsor, and the Junior Class. This truly was a memorable night for all, especially the honor guests, the seniors.

School is now officially over for this year. Teachers and pupils alike have left and are each going their separate ways. Some leave with satisfaction and maybe a little regret—others are truly glad the school year is over. Until the school bell rings in September —goodbye.

SPENCERVILLE H. S.

The Spencerville Senior class activities were climaxed Friday night when the class members and faculty were guests of the Juniors at a reception in the Y. M. C. A. banquet rooms in Fort Wayne. Decorations and program carried out a circus theme, and a carnival air of gayety and happiness was much in evidence. Members of the two classes then attended a show and all returned home tired, but happy. The friendly contacts of these two classes in school activities the last three years will long be remembered.

The Senior activities commenced April 7th with the presentation of "Even Stephen," the class play. This play attracted the largest audience since pre-depression days, and all were fascinated by the antics of Stephen, Mitzi, and the rotund and jovial Uncle William.

The next step in the varied Senior program was the Baccalaureate services April 16, in the Spencerville Lutheran Church with Reverend Wiswell officiating. The school's ninette, under the direction of Miss Wilma Macklin, added to the reverence of the occasion with two numbers, "In the Garden" and "My Task."

On Wednesday night, April 19, all bedecked in their very best and with beautiful floral additions, the seniors appeared for the last time as high school pupils in order to receive their diplomas. This marked the completion of a twelve year's job for thirteen young people who are now prepared to assume the full responsibilities of citizenship, some by addtional preparation for more skilled tasks, others as energetic farmers, others as nomemakers and factory workers. Three of the class members will have to postpone their ultimate plans for awhile in order to help clear the way for a more staple future. The class motto, "Forward Without Fear," boldly exhibited high on the stage, is indeed the spirit with which each faces the future. Reverend Myron L. Pontius ably delivered his famous address "The Road to True Dominion" to the class and the packed assembly room. The valedictorian, Donald Warner, proved his ability and originality by preparing and reciting the traditional valedictory in verse form. The members receiving diplomas were Everett Ringenberg, Harold Murphy, Mary Sheefel, Wilma Custer, Donald Friend, Marcella Furnish, Wayne Grogg, Evelyn Kline, Donald Romine, Betty Rudolph, Donald Warner, Paul Watson, and Wayne Worman. The fourteenth member of the class Jacob Hoover, now in the army, is preparing to bring his last semester's work up to passing at the time of induction so that he too may receive sufficient credits to enable him to graduate in the near future.

Celebrating the first day as graduates, the now ex-seniors enjoyed a free day on Thursday, April 20, at Potowatomi Inn anl Pokagon Park. A genuine good time was enjoyed in games, horsebacking, hiking, reading, skating, bowling, and of course—eating.

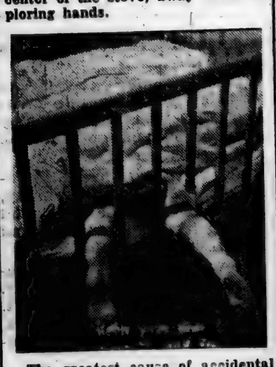
Child Health Day

May 1, 1944

America is proud of its winning battle against children's diseases, but an ever-darkening spot on the nation's record is the number of children killed and injured each year by accidents that might be prevented. National Safety Council statistics show that the child accident toll has increased almost 25 per cent since Pearl Harbor. Here are some of the most common types of mistakes which, according to the Council, cause accidents to children.

Burns kill more small children than any other type of accident. Parents should keep handles of pots and pans turned inward toward the center of the stove, away from exploring hands.



The greatest cause of accidental death to children under one year is mechanical suffocation, chiefly by bedclothes. Only such sleeping bags or patented crib blankets as are recommended by a physician should be used. Warm pajamas and ordinary covers are often preferred.

It's easy to keep medicine, insecticides, cleansers and all such preparations out of children's reach—if parents just think about it. Many children die from poisoning because they can reach a dangerous bottle or package.

Electric fans are exceptionally dangerous to leave within reach of a child. Other seasonal hazards are the "unloaded" gun, the fireplace without a screen, unsupervised swimming and open windows, several feet above the ground.

More than 3,000 children under 14 were killed by motor vehicles last year. Thousands more were injured. Careful driving on the part of adults and close observance to safe pedestrian practices by children will eliminate most of those accidents. Grown-ups should set good example in walking habits.

Alton Chaney had his goods moved to Ft. Wayne Monday by his son, Glen, vacating the Lela Northrup home.

Ensign Harold Kagey and wife, of Flint, Mich., and Lehr Wilder and family, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliffton Draggoo and family, were Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bendele in Fort Wayne. The ladies were school chums.

Probably the most dramatic and impressive story yet to come out of this war will be heard over Station WLW on Thursday, April 27, at 10:30 p. m., CWT., when Frank Laskier, British merchant seaman, relates some of his war experiences. Told quietly and beautifully in words and phrases that ring with sincerity, Mr. Laskier's recital, which was recorded recently in a WLW studio, is declared by station officials to be one of the most thrilling war stories ever carried on the station.

YOUR SUPPORT SINCERELY APPRECIATED

Townsfolk cheer troops of 45th Division advancing through Lieni, Italy.

HONORS FOR THE 45TH DIVISION—Soldiers distinguished by the "Thunderbird" shoulder patch—members of the fighting Infantry organized from the Colorado, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona National Guard—are the first in the Army to share the glory of a unit citation of an entire Division. While still battling the enemy with the 5th Army in Italy the 45th was cited for its gallant conduct in action. Besides the "Thunderbird" shoulder insigia the men now are entitled to wear the wide blue citation ribbon with the border of bronze oak leaves—badge of honor for the personnel of a unit cited for gallantry.

In the 45th Division upon its organization were 1,500 Indians, representing 28 different western tribes. While undergoing training these true Americans carried along their Indian clothing and regalia and frequently indulged in tribal ceremonies and war dances to the wonder—and sometimes the disquietude—of civilian spectators. On going overseas they left their warbonnets behind, but not their warwhoops, and carried terror to the hearts of Hitler's wehrmacht.

While made up largely of plainsmen and cow-punchers from the Southwest the 45th Division has representatives from nearly every State in the Union and all are imbued with the same dauntless fighting spirit. The nucleus of one contingent is the old 157th Colorado Infantry, organized in 1881, a regiment that bears on its colors three streamers inscribed to victories in the Spanish War, the Philippine Insurrection and the World War. Following the landing at Salerno the 45th was in action 66 battle days.

Many of us who have joshed the State of Maine about being foreign soil have never seen the road sign that stands beside a main highway near North Waterville. It points the way to Norway, Paris, Sweden, Denmark, Naples, Poland, Mexico, Peru, and China, all in one gesture. All but Mexico, Peru, and China lie in one direction. Norway, the nearest, Poland the farthest away. Peru is the opposite way, and only 46 miles off. All nine of course, are towns in southwest Maine, in Ford, Androscoggin, Cumberland and Kennebec counties. Mexico was biggest when last we heard, with about 5,000 population. Sweden was smallest with no more than 200 residents.

STATE'S SHOPPERS HELP WIN BATTLES SAVING BAG A DAY

Indiana's 961,500 housewives could conserve enough paper daily to make 50,078 containers for 75 mm. shells by saving one paper grocery bag a day. This daily paper saving would amount to 90,141 pounds.

Paper conservation also releases supplies for ammunition and food boxes, practice bombs bomb bands, plasma cartons, protection for ambulances in shipment, camouflage materials and many other items. More than ten times as much tonnage of munitions, food and materials is being shipped overseas in this war as in 1917-1918.

The paper shortage is creating a critical scarcity of bags in grocery stores. So far during the emergency bags have been available because of inventories and the elimination of variety bags, but in the future stores will have to depend entirely upon current reduced production and buyers' cooperation.

Food buyers and other shoppers are asked to conserve bags by having several items put into one sack, bringing their own bags for re-use or carrying home packaged items unwrapped. Housewives are not asked to return bags for re-use by others than themselves. If all housewives in the U. S. saved one ounce-and-a-half bag each day, the saving would amount to nearly 600,000 tons a year.

Allocations of pulp for the manufacture of wrapping paper and bags during the second quarter of 1944 have been set by WPB at less than one-third the quantity used during a comparable pre-war period. Labor shortages in the wood pulp industry and the loss of pulp imports, as well as military demands, have caused the paper scarcity.

Maxine Converse and sister Betty Ebert, are visiting at Smethford, Ford City and Kittanning, Pa., for a week. After a few days rest, Mexine expects to enter the International Business College in Fort Wayne.

COMPLETE PRIMARY VOTE GIVEN NEWS READERS

GILLIE IS WINNER BY MAJORITY OF 12,713

Congressman Carried Every County in District—Robert Bushee, Democrat, Had Majority of Only 577

The primary election in the fourth district Tuesday resulted in the renomination of Dr. George W. Gillie of Fort Wayne for congress by the republicans and the selection of Robert W. Bushee of Ossian for the office by the democrats.

State Senator Charles Phelps of Fort Wayne also sought the GOP nomination, but he polled only 2,789 votes as compared with 15,502 for the incumbent, the Gillie majority being 12,713.

Howard B. Minier, Fort Wayne labor leader, gave Mr. Bushee, an attorney, a real race, the vote being 5,027 to 4,450, a majority of 577.

Dr. Gillie carried every county by impressive margins, as follows: DeKalb, 1,426 to 295; Adams, 794 to 106; Allen, 7,077 to 1,490; LaGrange, 1,285 to 211; Noble, 1,497 to 235; Steuben, 1,648 to 257; Wells, 933 to 91; and Whitley, 842 to 104.

Bushee and Minier each carried four counties. Those favoring Bushee and the votes follow: Adams, 1,556 to 663; LaGrange, 54 to 44; Wells, 1,331 to 589; and Whitley, 200 to 171. The Minier counties lined up as follows: Adams, 2,098 to 1,297; DeKalb, 514 to 251; Noble, 266 to 240; and Steuben, 105 to 98.

PICTURE SHOWS TO START MAY 13

Plans were completed last week for the weekly out door picture shows to start a week from Saturday night, with a full season schedule of pictures that will please the public.

F. B. Leighty was elected president, and Herman Zuber, secretary and treasurer of the group. Each business man or firm is to make his contribution without a collector calling. Last year the shows run for 20 nights with an attendance of 10,000 people.

Plan now to be on hand and make St. Joe your Saturday night shopping town, meet your friends, and see the pictures.

4- H CLUB NEWS

The first 4-H meeting was held April 28th in the Old Assembly. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Butler, then the whole club recited the Pledge to the Flag, and the Pledge to the 4-H Club. Mrs. Butler gave a n interesting talk on the responsibilities of a club member. Each member then selected the project she would take this year.

Election of officers was held and result follows: President, Doris Trenary; vice president, Joan Trenary; secretary, Audrie Trenary; treasurer, Dale Butler; club reporter, Leona Dake; song leader, Jean Perkins; recreation leader, J o Bowser; health director, Opal Trenary. The Junior Leaders are Pat Carpenter and Doris Trenary. It was decided that the meetings will be held each Friday at 1:30 P. M. in the Old Assembly.

The president appointed a refreshment committee for the next meeting, composed of Marlyn Wade, Jean Perkins, Jo Bowser, and Joan Curie. The vice president appointed a program committee: Janice Bragg, Beverly Ridgway, and Luella Washler. There were 23 members present.

A pot luck lunch closed the session in a very sociable manner, giving all an opportunity to talk of their individual farm problems.

Rev. Clague had charge of the devotions, stressing faith in God, in our homes, and in the mothers of today.

Farmers: Help Prevent Inflation

by Asher Hobson
Chairman, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
University of Wisconsin

FARMERS remember the "Silk Shirt" era of the last war. That era was marked by 75 cent butterfat, 20 dollar hogs, and 100, 200 and in some states 300 dollars an acre for farm land. Farmers also remember the "no shirt" era of the Thirties — 25 cent butterfat, 5 dollar hogs, and land so low the mortgage took it. One way of keeping one's shirt after this war is not to buy too many silk shirts now, so to speak.

There is an old saying to the effect that he who sleeps on the floor never falls out of bed. None of us want to sleep on the floor, but we should see to it that our beds are not so high as to cause serious injury in case of a fall. Unduly high prices are likely to be followed by unduly low prices. That is one reason why most people in responsible walks of life appreciate the necessity of acting now to prevent inflation. Farmers are equally concerned.

Inflation is another term for unhealthy high prices. Inflation has a younger brother. He is a bad actor. His name is deflation. He has a habit of following his brother inflation. Deflation often means serious unemployment, lower property values, more tax delinquency, and mounting foreclosures. Add these together and the sum is farm relief. That is not the answer farmers want.

Farmers can well afford to take steps now in an attempt to avoid that sort of a situation. But inflation is not easily handled after it arrives. One cannot build a cyclone cellar after the old clouds begin to roll. Then one has time only to grab the baby and run—with no place to go. Something like that is apt to happen when inflation strikes. The best way to handle inflation is to prevent its striking.

What can farmers do? They can help keep prices from getting out of hand by helping to hold prices down now. If prices are to be held in line, the pressures under prices must be removed. The Government cannot do this job alone. There are no anti-inflation white rabbits in the magician's hat. Only the concerted efforts of you and me can turn the trick.

The forces causing prices to go up may be summarized in the statement that there is more money available for spending than there are goods and services to be bought. This is another way of saying that the demand for goods and services exceeds the available supply. Let us be specific. At the end of 1943 it was estimated that there were 42 billion dollars of spendable income in this country in excess of goods and services to be bought at the then existing prices. A year earlier the excess was 33 billion dollars. If prices are to be held in line this excess purchasing power must be brought down to the level of the supply of goods and services, or the supply of goods and services must be boosted in keeping with purchasing power.

Farmers are doing their utmost to increase the supply of agricultural products. In this way they are helping to prevent inflation. The other way in which they may help is to buy less. In general there are two ways of reducing consumer purchasing power. They are:

Heavier taxes
Voluntary savings

The greater the voluntary savings the less the need for more taxes. Let us do it the voluntary way by buying more WAR BONDS and holding those Bonds until manpower, plant capacity, and raw materials are available for increasing the supply of consumer goods. Spending then will be less likely to boost prices through the ceiling. Saving has always been an outstanding farmer trait. It is now a patriotic duty.

Someone in Spencerville said that we seem to have more confidence in a Washington theory being called a program than if it is said to be a plan.

A good way of putting the wings on a Winged Victory, is by spending money on war bonds.

Many years ago on an island in the Solomons, the cannibals there killed and ate an official who tried to collect taxes from them. Well, there is always that way out.

A St. Joe boy overseas writes home that it is unusual to see women in shoes. Over here it is too, if you call those open-toe, heeless models, shoes.

They tell us that the large-mouth style of makeup is 'out.' As far as Frank Sellers is concerned, anything large-mouthed, but bass, has always been out.

A News reader remarks that by the time you get your clothes back from the laundry these days, the styles have changed.

A worthwhile tip: when advertising for help wanted be sure and say "Please."

Lee Bragg says they may have a twelve-year old boy in Yale, but until they get one of fourteen, on the faculty, he isn't going to be impressed.

"Making dress goods out of milk and an ice cream out of cotton," sighs Bill Keeler, "nothing is going to be left for our grandchildren to work out."

We should do our utmost to encourage the Beautiful, for the Useful encourages itself.

Philip Smith says we have had more spring fever here than spring.

Swedish experts say the flu germ is brought to earth from other planets, but heavens knows what they take home with them in the form of our national diseases.

Some of those folks stranded in Florida who went there to find the Fountain of Youth, would exchange it right now for a gasoline pump with half the flow.

FRUITS OF RESEARCH

Four hundred leaders in agricultural chemical research, meeting in the Tenth Chemurgic Conference in St. Louis, considered how industry could absorb more farm produce and help avert a surplus after the war. They heard President Wheeler McMillen advocate state-owned laboratories for a much bigger research program.

They reported such advances during the year as these: A hundredfold increase in production of penicillin, due largely to the work of a chemist in an American agricultural laboratory—adaptation of a German process for making high-protein livestock food from wood—more new synthetic fibres to threaten cotton, wool and silk—other new protein feeds from corn and wheat germ, made by a process that prevents spoilage—a prediction that "soybeans will find their greatest post-war opportunity in the foods fields," and that plant breeders would develop the plant in that direction—a new, inexpensive substance for treating roads, driveways, feeding lots to make them moisture proof—a far bigger future for sweet potatoes (for alcohol, cattle feed, starch,) thanks to new high-starch varieties like Louisiana's L 45 and to dehydration—a prediction that farmers will use far more rubber after the war than ever before.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Those in Spencerville who wish to profit by mistakes might like to know the four common errors made by Victory gardeners of last year: poor planting, which meant too much of a certain crop came up at one time and made too long a stretch in between with nothing to harvest; poor timing, so that early crops were planted too late and some of the more tender crops were planted too early; covering small seeds too deep and sowing too thickly; failing to control insects. So experience teaches us if we won't take our lessons from a book or our nighbor's advice. If blunders of last year were discovered at that time, we have already corrected them for this year and expect to better our crops in order to "grow more in '44."

CIRCUS TIME

What about forgetting the world's worries and personal headaches to remind ourselves that this is the season for something besides gardens, spring rains and house cleaning. Regard the matter of circuses! War doesn't completely erase the colorful display of The Greatest Show on Earth. The call of the robin doesn't carry any more weight to a small entusiast than the billboard poster announcing the arrival of the first circus. The carnival has changed a lot since the days of parades down our childhood Main Streets, when large, red wagons of animals were drawn majestically by plumed horses and not by unimaginative things like motors. Too bad if they would pipe water to the elephants rather than use the earnest lad with the water bucket who was working out the price of admission to the big tent. The fellow who buys a war bond along with a circus ticket for his youngster is keeping the ball rolling in war and peace. You can't let the small one miss the joy of spangles and sawdust of our youth, if it can be helped.

SUGAR STILL SWEET

This May is our second anniversary of sugar rationing and it finds few of us not already in line with the policy. As life goes, one must take the bitter with the sweet and since war is the bitter, we must take the latter in accordance. Rationing does it. In peacetime we consume about seven million tons of sugar each year. During the first year of war our civilian use was reduced almost half this amount. In case some of St. Joe has forgotten the days of "K-K-K-Katy" and "There's a Long, Long Trail," we recall to you the meatless and wheatless days and how the increase in food prices made you draw in your breath and out on your money, and ask if you remember having to sign whenever you pruchased sugar, this form in duplicate: "I hereby certify on my honor that I am the head of a household consisting of....members, and I agree not to purchase in excess of two (2) pounds of sugar per month for each member thereof, and I further agree to cut the consumption of sugar, if possible, to even below the two pounds alloted to me by the United States Government." It looks as though honor meant something in those days too, though they also had their black market and hoarding to prove there is no new sin under the sun. This May finds us still managing to satisfy your sweet tooth, since sugar rationing gives all of us as much as we need.

THEY TOLD US SO

We can't be too sure, in the months ahead, that we won't come home from the grocery carrying a dozen of eggs in our hands or a fist full of string beans. It looks as though that paper bag and wrapping paper shortage that has been threatened, is about upon us. Then watch us conserve! We have been throwing away paper containers because there always seemed to be more where they came from. But stores are finding their supplies running low and manufacturers unable to fill new orders due to an increased demand by the government. Paper bags and wrapping paper is made from new pulp, due to the necessary strength required, and so we can see the reason for a shortage. This doesn't mean that we should let up on our salvage of waste paper but it does look as if we might have to start carrying the family market basket on all of our shopping trips.

UP IN FRONT

No industry is more alive to the need for progressive post-war policies than is railroading, judged by the advertising the nation's railways are running which picture the many conveniences planned for passengers after the war.

It is easy to see that the railroads intend to do everything in their power to make transportation by rail as efficient and pleasurable as possible.

They intend to develop their particular field of transportation to the maximum in order to render the greatest public service. Main line trains will move faster and more frequently. More comforts and luxuries will be provided in sleeping car accommodations. Express and freight traffic will undoubtedly be speeded up, and constantly increasing attention will be given to the special needs of shippers and travelers.

Railways have done a magnificent war job. In fact, they have done what the pessimists at the outset of the present hostilities said could be done. They are facing the challenge of the future with the same determination to render superlative service with which they faced the challenge of the war.

There is no reason to suppose or assume that the railroads will not be in the front line of progress in any matters relating to efficiency and conveniences for the traveling and shipping public in the transportation field.

April 14, 1944
Somewhere in Italy.

Dear Friends:

The time is now 1920 and the sun just faded from view. A cool breeze has sprung up and it will soon be cool enough to drop the sides of the tent.

The weather here is really fine. Spring has finally come to Sunny Italy. For a while we thought the term "Sunny Italy" had been dreamed up by some tourist-seeking Chamber of Commerce over here.

I have received two issues of The News at the tim of this writing. The first one had a very interesting letter from Lt. W. B. Rectenwall. I enjoyed it so much more because I'm going through the same things myself.

I wonder how many people at home are already discussing the peace to come after this war. I've heard the statement made: "Let's win the war before we worry about peace." But I'm not at all sure that this is the proper attitude to take. When the war ends it will be necessary to produce a peace policy in a very short time. Unless joint objectives on which everlasting peace should be based have been arrived at in the minds of the people, we shall again fail.

I'm glad to see the American Legion Post looking into the future and purchasing a new home. We are all looking forward to joining their organization when the war is over.

I am assisting in the training of enlisted replacements at present. We must keep the men busy and in the best of physical condition. Although I have been over here for some time without seeing any action; my status is still a Replacement Officer and I can expect to be called at any time.

I had the pleasure of meeting Dale Collins in North Africa. We spent one evening together before I left for Italy. A recent letter from Dale informs me that he is now in Italy with a regular unit.

During my spare time I have been able to visit a number of ancient Roman ruins and caves over the country. The history behind these ruins is very interesting, but it sometimes takes a lot of research to bring it out.

Two of us made friends with a British Naval Officer who was also interested in the ruins. He was able to give us not only the ancient history, but some modern history about several old locations. War certainly is an education, to say the least.

Yours truly,

"INTERPRETATIONS"
—BY—
Rev. Frank Stevenson

Prayer is talking with God on a two-way comunication system. The frequency and fervenecy of Jesus' conversations with the Father made His disciples conscious that He had something they lacked. They asked Him to teach them how He did it. It was in response to this plea that Jesus gave them the model which we call

The Lord's Prayer

In every generation the disciples of Jesus contine to ask for instruction in prayer. The Model Prayer isn't enough. Indeed this prayer pattern often becomes a stumbling block to the exercise of true prayer. Saying these words easily becomes a substitute for heart-talks with God the Father.

The abusive use of the Lord's Prayer is proof that learning to pray means more than memorizing a prize-winning prayer. The 'how' of prayer requires the cultivation of the art of praying rather than mere faultless repetition of fine sounding words. It was easy to record and transmit the words Jesus spoke but the spirit in which He thus answerded His students must be learned anew by each new disciple.

We all know more about praying than we are willing to practice. For us, learning to pray is primarily a matter of developing the habit of prayer. The fact that we pray so little or not at all must be charged to indifference rather than to ignorance. It is a lack of faith in God, a lack of love for others, and a lack of personal zeal for things eternal and invisible—a general pre-occupation with second-hand and second-rate values—that keeps us from praying as we ought.

Six of the seven petitions of this Model Prayer ask for those immaterial blessings which God the Father offers us for the sake of His son in response to our prayers but most of our prayers are patterned after the one petition (the fourth) which mentions those material gifts which God gives "even unto the wicked without our prayers." Yes, Lord, teach us to pray!

-WAR BONDS

EMBLEM OF THE GRANDMOTHERS LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, D. C.: "Grandmother's Bond with the Future—War Bonds" is the slogan of the Treasury's new campaign urging grandparents to buy Bonds and stamps for their grandchildren. The official emblem is the old-fashioned sampler reproduced above.

The Grandmothers League was founded by Mrs. George C. Marshall, wife of the Army Chief-of-Staff, who bought Bonds from Secretary Morgenthau for her three grandchildren. Mrs. Marshall suggests that grandparents insure their grandchildren's future by buying Bonds or starting stamp albums for them.

GILLIE'S MAJORITY LARGEST IN COUNTY

Hugh Sanders, Charles Miser and Frank Hilkey Win GOP Races — Democrats Give H. B. Minier Lead of 263

DeKalb county polled its lightest primary vote Tuesday, but decided four republican contests and one democratic race.

This county favored the renomination of Dr. George W. Gillie of Fort Wayne for congress. He received 1,426 votes against 295 cast for Charles A. Phelps of Fort Wayne, the majority being 1,131.

Hugh G. Sanders of Auburn won renomination for prosecuting attorney. The number of votes cast for him by the republicans was 998, as compared with 729 for James A. Angelone of Butler. The margin was 269.

Charles T. Miser of Garrett was renominated for state representative by the republicans by a majority of 1,057. His total was 1,370, while 313 were cast for Clarence E. Appleman of Butler township.

The republicans again nominated Frank Hilkey of Jackson township for commissioner from the southwest district. His total vote was 1,166 as against 416 cast for A. J. Custer of Keyser township, a majority of 750.

The only democratic contest was between Robert W. Bushee of Ossian and Howard B. Minier of Fort Wayne for the congressional nomination. Minier carried DeKalb county 514 to 251, a majority of 263.

The republicans cast a total of 1,721 votes in this county for their congressional candidates and the democrats 765 for their candidates. Thus the grand total was 2,486, as compared with 4,989 in 1942. The number of votes cast in the general election in 1942 was 10,350.

The absence of soldiers from home was a factor in the small vote, but the chief cause was the small number of contests. The candidates involved in the contests did not put much fight into the campaign.

Other Nominations Made

The republicans renominated the following candidates without opposition:

For state senator for DeKalb, LaGrange and Steuben counties, Harry M. Shull of near Auburn.

For county clerk, Murray A. Steele of Auburn.

For county treasurer, Grace Fry Phelps of Butler.

For sheriff, Paul F. Miller of Garrett.

For coroner, Kenneth Kaylor of Auburn.

For surveyor, Wayne T. Van Auken of east of Auburn.

For commissioner southeast, Lloyd W. Yeiser of Concord township.

Following are the democrats nominated without opposition:

State senator, Henry S. Bir of LaGrange.

State representative, Carson N. Schlosser of Garrett.

For treasurer, Fern A. Morr of Waterloo.

For commissioner southwest, Roy Whittington of Butler township.

It is expected the vacant democratic places will be filled by the party's county committee.

The parties also elected delegates to the state conventions and also precinct committeemen Tuesday without any contests.

The republicans cast their fewest votes in Smithfield south, the number being 9. The smallest number cast by the democrats was 4, in Wilmington No. 4.

Cecil Ramsey and family moved Tuesday to their home he purchased north of town, familiarly known as the J. R. Knisely property near Bear Creek.

Miss Anna Passen, of Fort Wayne, Fred Passen, wife and daughter, of White Pigeon, Mich., were here Sunday guests of their mother, Mrs. Minnie Passen.

Bonnie Kees, who has been staying in the Lysher home for four years, has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kees, south of Garrett to stay permanently.

Bessie Arnold, who several years ago cared for Mrs. Anna Dilley a short while, and is now married, has received word that her husband is in a German prison camp in Italy. The letter was written in German and was purported to be a copy of the one he had written to his wife. It stated that she should not worry that he was treated well, and was comfortable.

When buying meat just for two, you often wonder just what. For pot roasts a one pound or two pound piece will do very well as a larger amount though you must watch it more carefully as it cooks. Instead of stuffed shoulder or veal, mutton or lamb, buy a slice in place of the shoulder and spread your stuffing on it. Then roll up with the stuffing inside, brown it and bake it and you have a grand roast. For baked ham, buy a one-inch thick slice of raw ham. Brown it on both sides in the pan, then cover it with flour and sugar, mustard and top with cloves. Add a bit of water and cook moderately for an hour.

Rationing of many meats is removed

OPA in Surprise Announcement Says all Cuts of Pork, Veal, Lamb and Mutton will be Point-Free at Midnight

Washington, May 3.—There's going to be more meat on American dinner tables.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles today ordered all meats—except beef steaks and beef roasts—removed from rationing, effective at midnight tonight.

Bowles' surprise announcement said all cuts of pork, veal, lamb and mutton will be point-free after midnight.

The point-free category also will include flank steaks, beef hamburger, beef stew meat, all variety meats, sausage of all types, ready-to-eat meats, canned meats and canned fish.

Points on choice beef steaks and roasts will not be changed from their present levels. Bowles said the volume of these preferred meats, beef steaks and beef roasts, now coming to market is not large enough in relation to demand to warrant any point change at this time.

However, a record run of hogs has been coming to market and slaughter is near peak levels.

Lend-lease, which ordinarily takes up to 35 percent of the pork production, he said, now has adequate stocks and no pork currently is going to lend-lease.

Army and navy demands for meat, he added, have been brought to a "current basis."

Lamb and mutton production now is greater than it was at this time last year, largely because droughts have dried up pasture lands in some producing areas and supplies of dry feed are very tight.

At the same time, Bowles ordered the monthly allotment of 60 red points for each individual cut to 30, beginning May 7th. Because of the wide selection of meats now made available without red ration points, Bowles said the monthly point allotment slash was necessary to keep ration values from becoming "watered." Previously OPA validated 30 red points every two weeks.

Red stamps R8, and T8 will be validated next Sunday. After that, no more red stamps will become good until June 3rd.

Under today's orders, the only red-point items requiring ration points, in addition to the choice beef cuts, are butter, margerine, cheese and cheese products and evaporated milk.

At a press conference Bowles indicated that points might be lowered later on the beef steaks and roasts when the full run of cattle begins to reach market.

He added, however, that he could not say when or whether the meats now being point free will again have to be given point values.

"Much depends upon the feed situation," he explained, "which, in turn, is dependent in large measure on the weather."

Today's action by the OPA comes just a few weeks after Canada lifted all meat rationing. Members of congress, who criticized the OPA for continuing rationing after Canada's action, are hailing the OPA's new order but some republicans say it should have been done a long time ago. Representative Andresen, republican of Minnesota, calls the OPA action a purely political move. He charges that the administration is preparing for the fall elections by what he terms "a program of appeasement."

WILL CONDUCT INQUIRY INTO SUPPLY OF FARM MACHINERY

Washington, May 3.—Senator Guy Gillette says he hopes prospects of more farm equipment will come out of a senate investigation of farm machinery production and distribution.

The Iowa democrat heads the agricultural sub-committee which will conduct the investigation, using a $5,000 fund alloted by the senate yesterday.

The investigation resolution was proposed by Gillette and Democrat Bennett Clark of Missouri. It provides for a check into diversion of American-made farm machinery to foreign fields. The subcommittee also will probe production plans for tractor parts, fencing, poultry brooders and a long list of other farm items.

Gillette plans to call representatives of the agriculture department's machinery section first. Also called will be War Production board representatives. Through their testimony, Gillette hopes to determine whether more materials can be released for production of farm implements and replacement parts.

HOOSIER PROTESTS AGAINST MONTGOMERY WARD SEIZURE

Telegrams and Letters Sent by Two Hoosier Organizations to Congressmen and Senators

Indianapolis, May 3.—Telegrams and letters protesting the federal seizure of property of Montgomery Ward & Co. in Chicago have been sent to Indiana congressmen by representatives of two Indiana organizations.

Letters to all congressmen were sent by Fred C. Tucker, president of the Indianapolis Real Estate Board.

The telegrams were signed by E. B. Wilkinson, attorney, and C. C. Lydick, managing director of the Coal Trade Association of Indiana.

The telegrams read:

"The Coal Trade Association of Indiana, whose members produce over 90 percent of the 25,000,000 tons of coal mined annually in the state, by unanimous vote of all those present at a meeting held April 28 at Indianapolis, deplores and protests the recent demonstration of official lawlessness in the current Montgomery War case.

"We trust that you, as a member of congress, will insist upon a full and complete congressional investigation of this procedure and then take such action as lies within your power to prevent such miscarriage of justice and guarantee against the infringement of the constitutional rights of the citizens of this country by unlawful search and seizure and deprivation of property without due process of law, the very rights for which our sons are engaged in a war to maintain."

Mr. Tucker said the letters were sent with unanimous approval of the board's directors following a meeting last week. Describing the government's action in the Ward case as "appalling," the letter asked:

"Do you think the congress of the United States is allowing our country to come to this?

"We are hastening to confer thus with each of our congressmen and senators from Indiana, urging that something be done now to stop this sort of thing."

The letter pointed out that it was authorized by the board of directors and was written "on behalf of the Indianapolis Real Estates' Board, an organization composed of 480 representative citizens and taxpayers."

PREDICTS DEMOCRATS WILL MAKE GAINS IN CONGRESS

Chicago, May. 3.—Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert Hannegan finds the political weather very encouraging for his party. Hannegan passed through Chicago today on his way east from meetings in Omaha and Kansas this week.

Hannegan also says he has talked with many life-long republicans who will vote the democratic ticket this fall and he predicts that the democrats will add to their majorities in both houses of congress. The reason for this, he says, is that they recognize President Roosevelt's strength in world affairs and they want to keep him president.

He denies, however, that his statement means Mr. Roosevelt will run for a fourth term. The democratic chairman declares his remarks were only meant as complimentary, although he hopes that the president will run.

SYNTHETIC DRUG TO REPLACE QUININE DEVELOPED IN U. S.

Cambridge, Mass., May 3.—Two young Cambridge scientists have developed a synthetic anti-malarial drug.

Their accomplishment ends nearly a century's search for a chemical method of duplicating quinine. It's not yet certain whether the synthetic product can be produced immediately on a large scale. But military men hope it will serve to replace the vast quinine bearing tree plantations in the Dutch East Indies now held by the Japanese.

The synthetic drug was discovered by two 26-year-old scientists, Dr. William von Eggers Doering of Fort Worth, Texas, a Harvard graduate and Dr. Robert Burns Woodward of Quincy, Massachusetts, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

They say the synthetic cannot be distinguished from the natural quinine product.

Another quinine substitute, altabrine, developed by the Germans, is already being used to a considerable extent.

OPA IS ATTEMPTING TO PLUG ANOTHER MEAT POINT FRAUD

Chicago, May 3.—OPA, having discovered a huge meat point forgery racket, today was attempting to plug another point leakage through which tons of meat is being moved into Chicago's black market.

The new leakage, which may run into several millions of red meat points, has been caused by dealers overcounting the number of points they have received from housewives.

Suspension suits were filed today against two food dealers whom Homer C. Clay, OPA enforcement attorney, said had overcounted their points returns by nearly 1,000,000, representing well over 100,000 pounds of rationed meats.

At the same time, OPA was delving further into the ramifications of the forgery racket, through which over 3,000,000 meat points have been put into circulation in Chicago in recent weeks.

A noose around leaders of a huge black market ring flooding the midwest with millions of counterfeit gasoline coupons was being closed today by secret service agents and OPA investigators.

Shifting from Chicago, where more than 50 "small fry" arrests have been made, operatives yesterday seized 12 men in Peoria.

BLAMES PARENTS FOR WAVE OF JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Seattle, May 3.—Sheriff Harlan S. Callahan blames parents mostly for the wave of delinquency authorities uncovered last week among teen-age boys and girls living in defense housing projects.

Commenting on reports published earlier that federal agencies were responsible, he said:

"The new deal doesn't have anything to do with the juvenile delinquency problem here. As a matter of fact I blame parents for 60 to 70 percent of what happened."

The delinquency investigation disclosed drinking and promiscuous sex relationships, mostly among teen-age residents of two federal housing projects. The expose resulted in the arrest of 15 boys and three adults.

The fourth district meeting of the American Legion will be held at Decatur Thursday evening. Dinner is to be served at 6:30 followed by a business session and a dance. Auxiliary members have been invited to attend the dinner and the dance.

While supervising the tabulation of primary election returns at Anderson, Ind., Wednesday afternoon, Scott Edwards, age 60, was stricken with a heart attack and died. He was a former deputy treasurer of Madison county.

INSURE your future— Save WITH WAR BONDS

Another Boost for National Debt Limit

Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee has introduced legislation to increase the Federal debt limit to $260,000,000,000, the highest ceiling in United States history.

The limit now is $210,000,000,000 —raised from $125,000,000,000 in March, 1943.

President Roosevelt, in his budget message to Congress last January, estimated the public debt would reach $258,000,000,000 by June 30, 1945.

NEARLY 184,000 PRISONERS OF WAR WORKING IN U. S.

The war department reveals that nearly 184,000 axis prisoners of war in the United States are being used to relieve labor shortages.

The men are employed in areas where they do not compete with American labor. They are segregated by nationalities in 203 camps throughout the 41 states. About 133,000 are Germans, some 50,000 Italians, and 350 Japanese.

Between June, 1943 and March 31, 1944, the prisoners put in more than 19,000,000 man-days of work harvesting and canning crops, and doing lumbering and general work for the army.

Only 285 of them have escaped since the war started, and all but five who made the breaks have been recaptured.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. Yeiser, Publicity

The Lions entertained the Zone Meeting at the Community Hall, Spencerville, Monday evening, and in honor of the occasion, the Lions entertain their ladies. It was a "drag-in" feast and of course, the ladies must be given credit for the abundance of fine food.

A "blind" attendance contest had been held extending over several months and Lion Rectenwall and his fellow losers did a fine job, making it a real banquet.

Lion President F. B. Leighty presided and after the roll call by Secretary Wicoff, presented Lion Rectenwall, who acted as chairman and in turn asked Lion Wicoff to introduce the speaker, R. H. Miller professor of religion and philosophy at Manchester college. "The Boys We Have in Our Armed Service" was the subject of his very interesting address. He advocated a liberal treatment by the federal government when the boys are ready to come home. A duty will also be upon the local community to help the boys re-establish themselves. If we are to avoid a dictatorship we must solve many problems intelligently.

We should polish up our community and homes in honor of their homecoming. The small communities come in for considerable criticism by the "city slicker," but we prefer to live where we know our neighbors and call them by their first nams and are interested in their welfare. Mr. Miller would banish gossip and promote kindly interest in our smaller communities.

Drained out of the small communities to the cities are the people, the moral and religious foundations and the human interest in its people. The small town can offer everything in modern conveniences and it can well have small factories and industries. In his home town of North Manchester, a committee made up of all the interests of the town meets frequently and plans for community advancement. One of their projects is a headquarters and recreation center for returning soldiers and for the youth of the town. Have a place where the boy can have wholesome recreation and as far as possible let the youth be the governing body. Let them make their own rules and enforce them. Mr. Miller touched Spencerville and St. Joe when he said flies and MOSQUITOES would finally be eliminated.

Says the writer: "God hasten that day."

"The health of our democracy is the small community," was the summing up sentence of Mr. Miller's very fine address.

Team Winner Chairman Ridgway was profuse in his thanks to the losers for their fine supper.

Guests introduced were Lions John Adams and Herman Schmenk, of Avilla, H. C. Willis and Lion Bartholomew and wife, of Waterloo.

Twenty-seven members responded to roll call out of a membership of 32. The next session of the club, May 22nd, will be with the Auburn Lions Club.

Lion C. O. Duker will attend the state convention at South Bend which starts Sunday at 4 o'clock in the Baptist Church.

THANKS TO THE VOTERS !

Please accept my sincere thanks for your support at the recent Primary Election.

Burley Ensley, of Auburn, auditor of DeKalb County, was elected chairman of the DeKalb County Republican central committee at the meeting of precinct committeemen and precinct committeewomen at the assembly room of the court house Saturday afternoon. Two names were presented, Mr. Ensley and E. E. Turner, of Grant Township, and the vote resulted 51 for Mr. Ensley and 38 for Mr. Turner.

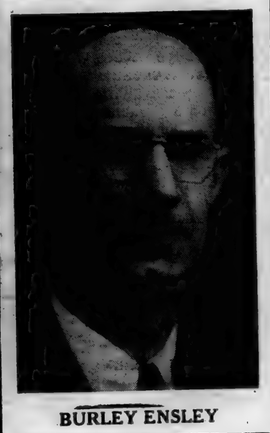
First vice chairman, Mrs. Mabel Lyons, of Auburn, re-elected.

Second vice chairman, Mrs. Helen Clarke, of Auburn.



BURLEY ENSLEY

Secretary, Jay Olinger, of Keyser Township.

Treasurer, O. S. Fisher, of Butler, cashier of the Knisely National bank.

Mr. Ensley takes the place of Attorney H. C. Springer, of Butler, who has served as county chairman of the Republican organization for 17 years. Mr. Springer asked that he not be re-elected this year as he expects to devote most of his time to the State Republican campaign.

Mrs. Lyons has served two terms of two years each as vice chairman and her election Saturday is the third.

Mr. Olinger, a well known school teacher and farmer, takes the place of E. E. Turner as secretary.

Mr. Fisher takes the place of Philip Carper, of Jackson Township, who has served as treasurer for 32 years. Mr. Carper declined re-election and nominated Mr. Fisher as his successor.

Mrs. Clarke is manager of the automobile license bureau in Auburn and will assist Mrs. Lyons in the campaign work. The office of second vice chairman is a new one created this year.

Mr. Ensley resides in Auburn and is a life long resident of DeKalb County. He comes from a pioneer family in DeKalb County, his grandfather, George Ensley, settling in Butler Township in the year 1841. Mr. Ensley was born in Auburn and for 31 years was eployed in the sheet metal department of the Eckhart carriage factory and the Auburn Automobile Co. For the last 10 years of his service with the Auburn, he was foreman of the department. He was elected county auditor in 1938 by the largest majority and was second high in 1942 when he was re-elected to this office. He is a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Auburn, a trustee of the Odd Fellows lodge and master of the exchequer of the K. of P. lodge.

Mr. Ensley in a short acceptance speech asked the cooperation of the committeemen and committewomen in the coming campaign. He expressed his appreciation of the confidence the group had placed in him and said that he hoped to fulfill that confidence with their help and do a good job.

Mr. Springer thanked the group for their cooperation during his long term as chairman and said that he believed that the 1942 Republican organization in DeKalb County was the best in the history of the county. He declared that with cooperation and hard work he was sure that the Republicans could have a similar organization this year. He said that the election this year is an important one and that in his opinion the real goal in 1944 is to beat Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Springer said that it is time to get rid of what he called the crack-pots in Washington. He declared that the new deal never could run the country in peace times and they were not doing such a good job of running the war. "Let's clean house, get the war over with as soon as possible and end the terrible mess of the last twelve years," he said.

Democrats Make Choice

The Democratic committee of DeKalb County reorganized Saturday at a meeting held in the commissioners' room in the court house, with Clayton M. Bailey, of Garrett, elected as chairman.

Mrs. Maude Roberts, of Auburn, was chosen as vice chairman, Miss Helen Ellert, of Ashley, as secretary, and Buster L. Hetrick, of Jackson township, as treasurer.

The outgoing officers are Leighton F. Tombow, of Butler, chairman, Mrs. Cleo O'Neal of Waterloo, vice chairman, Mrs. Ruth Anderson, of Auburn, secretary, and C. H. Heinzerling, of Garrett, treasurer.

Mr. Bailey has been active in politics for many years and served as county chairman for four years prior to 1940. He is now director of the railroad department of the Public Service Commission of Indiana. Mrs. Roberts was vice chairman during Mr. Bailey's previous tenure in the chairmanship. Miss Ellert, a school teacher, and Mr. Hetrick, have also been active in the party.

Mr. Bailey announced that the committee will fill the vacancies on the county ticket for prosecuting attorney, county clerk, coroner, surveyor, and commissioner southeast.

The Farmer Buys War Bonds

by O. B. Jesness
Chief, Division of Agricultural Economics
University of Minnesota

FARMER Brown does not have to ask himself whether he ought to buy War Bonds. He knows that every citizen with an income should lend part of it to the government to help win this war. The real question which Mr. Brown and all his fellow farmers must decide is how large his investment should be. The simplest and best answer to this is "buy all you can."

But what are some of the points which a farmer needs to weigh in deciding what that amount is in his particular case? Farm income certainly is one. Most farmers are receiving considerably larger cash incomes because of the war. Some of the increase may be needed to pay pressing debt. Higher taxes will take some. But most of it ought to be salted away in War Bonds for future use.

Part of the current cash income represents wear and tear on machinery and equipment. War shortages prevent farmers from buying machinery or building freely. Less money can be spent for these purposes now, but more cash will be needed later on because of this. Each farmer ought to figure the amount which this involves. The best storage place for the money which prudent farmers will set aside for this use is War Bonds.

Farm homes will need new equipment as well. Electricity has recently been installed in many farm homes and more will get this service as soon as possible. Funds saved up now can be used later to buy things to add to the comforts of the home and to ease the drudgery of farm work.

War prices will not last forever. The future will bring years of low prices or bad crops as well as good years. Some of the present income will come in mighty handy in times of low return. Farmers also are saving for educating their children, for old age and for the proverbial rainy day. Each family should think about all of these needs and set aside money to meet them. There is no safer place for such savings than War Bonds.

Should debts be paid before Bonds are bought? Each farmer must answer for himself. Due and pressing debt should be paid. If necessary, long-term debt should be reduced to a point where it can be carried. After that, available income better go into Bonds. Your own conscience will tell you when you are using debt merely as an excuse for neglecting to do your share in buying Bonds.

What about buying land? Can you handle more land profitably? Is it worth the price asked? Can you pay for it out of earnings when prices drop? A speculative boom in land may get out of hand. Better buy Bonds than speculate in land.

What about the farmer who says "I prefer to keep my funds in cash?" Stop to think, brother, how smart is that? Do you believe it good business to have idle dollars lying around? If they are hid away somewheres, they may get lost, stolen or destroyed. Put them to work and make them produce a return for you. War Bonds are the safest investment available. They are backed by the same government as the dollar. One is as safe as the other. While farmers buy Bonds intending to hold them, the E, F and G Bonds ordinarily bought by individual investors can be redeemed for cash if need arises. Unlike the liberty bonds of the last war, these cannot be sold on the open market and, hence, will never sell for fewer dollars than they cost.

Farmers have done a good job in buying War Bonds. They can make an even better showing if each one will buy all he can. Remember, you help yourself as well as your country.

Only 1 in 100 would know!

WE WERE going to make a survey. 100 interviews. Then we had a better idea.

"Why bother all those busy people? Probably not more than one of them would know the answer, because it's something they take for granted. . . . Let's just print it here and save a lot of time!"

So here's the question: "What's the smallest item and BIGGEST bargain in most family budgets?"

Look at the last item in these recent cost-of-living figures from the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (reprinted at right). Considering how many household jobs electricity does daily, that's a rather startling statistic.

Then remember that electricity is still sold at low pre-war prices—remember that the average U. S. family gets about twice as much electricity for its money as it did 15 years ago—and you'll realize that there's no bigger bargain today!

(Of course, if you already knew all this, you're pretty smart. In fact, you're that one in a hundred!)

LOCAL FOX HUNTERS CAPTURE MANY PUPS

It has been the belief, for some time, that our game birds and animals are being depleted faster by the red fox than by hunters, and this belief is being made stronger when we hear of what our sportsmen are finding in the fox dens, when it is made necessary to raid their den in the banks along our streams and gullies.

Men who enjoy the outdoor sport of hunting in this community are finding their greatest joy when they can capture the entire family of red fox, including the pups.

Only a few days ago on the Stanley Hollabaugh farm near St. Joe, M. H. Hollabaugh, Beeks Erick, Wilmer Sechler, and Paul Tustison captured a family of ten pups, all of them were out of the den in the sun. Some were shot and others were run down by the boys and caught. There seemed to be two sizes of pups in this family, indicating that for the duration two families were living in the same home.

St. Joe boys became enthused over the capture of ten by Spencerville, so last week, Ed Storer, Willard Hurni, and Frank Leighty drove to the H. H. Squires farm, where a family of red fox were being raised under an old house. The boys took up the floor and were able to capture eight pups. The old fox were away from home at the time, but the boys secluded themselves awaiting their return, but they were evidently warned that their home was being raided and the boys were unable to get a shot at them.

The day following they proceeded to dig out a den on the Joe Foltz farm, but only found a large white duck. Other places feathers of quail, pheasants, rabbit fur, and white chicken feathers were in evidence. In another section boys reported finding small pig skeletons, indicating that they refuse to go hungry.

The county pays a bounty of $1.50 for pups and $3.00 for older fox.

REFUGEE IMMIGRATION OPPOSED

Immigration squabbles are brewing with a showdown coming when and if a suggestion to establish free ports for refugees is sent to Congress.

The War Board is considering such a plan, under which designated areas near eastern ports would be fenced and refugees admitted until permanent homes were found for them. Thus they would not be subject to quota restrictions.

Closed-door advocates in Congress will fight the plan as an evasion if not a violation of the immigration law, which limits admission of aliens for each country.

One organzation already has raised its voice on the immigration problem. It is the Daughters of the American Revolution, which demands all entrance to the United States be suspended for five years after the war except for "technical and essential experts not in competition with citizens of this country."

MOTHER'S DAY

Fashions in Mothers have changed since motherhood first came into being. One admits that the later Whistler's "Mother" is probably a far different picture than today's vision of the busy American woman who serves briskly on church boards, Red Cross committees, heads philanthropic movements, manages salvage drives, guides Scout groups, helps unite schools and parents, keeps up with current events, reading and radio, taking an interest in art and music, carrying on with cleaning, cooking and sewing in the home, or maybe undertaking a war job in a factory, a technician in a laboratory as well as maintaining the artful niche of housewife and homemaker. Mothers of yesterday were no less mothers, some say they were more so, but the outside interests were not so varied, the attachment for the home excluding many of these other procedures. Mother's activity in church and welfare and social organizations keep her busy. With war drawing on her for more outside attention as well as asking that she keep the battle of the kitchen a victory through careful and economic planning, shows us that mother is not just a sentimental institution but is the backbone of the country.

This May 14th is named as Mother's Day in tribute to her virtues, stresses her importance in the world order, since the soul of motherhood is the keynote of peace and love and these two the elements for international harmony. Within each of us lies the desire to protect the heritage handed down to us from those mothers who have long passed before. Dutifully sharing, acknowledging and producing a sense of values that makes motherhood the prize we know it to be, we in St. Joe honor the hand that rocks the cradle called world.

WRECK AT NEWVILLE

Sunday evening, April 30, two cars sideswiped just west of the U. B. Church at Newville. One car driven by Kenneth Roberts came to a stop on the right side of the road with his running board missing and the left side of his car damaged. He was on his way home from Newville. The other car driven by Joe Culler of Auburn, was returning home after visiting Mrs. Culler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keesbury in Hicksville. After sideswiping Kenneth the car dove off the road on the river side.

It went over the little cement bridge or culvert across from the Miller gravel pit. The cables caught the car and it hung there eon its side just like it was in a hammock. Mrs. Culler suffered slight bruises on her knee and was taken to Auburn immediately by Ernest Hurni. Kenneth opened the door and assisted Mr. and Mrs. Culler out of the 1933 Chrysler.

It required the services of two wreckers to put the car back in the road. Only the left front wheel suffered damage. The other three were in perfect condition. The rest of the car was in surprisingly good condition. It is almost certan the cables saved their lives. They were very lucky it didn't happen a week sooner as the river was backed into this territory then.

A Program For Agriculture

Constructive suggestions for a post-war program for agriculture were presented by the official representatives of five major farm organizations who responded to the invitation to confer on April 3 and 4 in Chicago with members of the Committee on Agriculture of the Republican Post-war Advisory Council consisting of five governors and four congressmen.

As a result of this conference with farm leaders recommendations will be submitted to the committee charged with drafting the Republican party's 1944 platform, to be adopted at the national convention to be held in Chicago in June.

Governor Bourke B. Hickenlooper, chairman of the Republican Post-war Advisory Council's Committee on Agriculture, and Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, assured the farm leaders—"We want to end political exploitation of farmers. We seek a constructive agricultural program that will assure a permanently prosperous agriculture as part of a permanently prosperous nation."

In attaining this objective Republican party leaders have indicated their earnest desire to be guided by the recommendations and counsel of the official spokesmen for the millions of farmers who are enrolled in the major farm organizations.

Service Station Operators Protest

Whereas, in war time it is necessary that good citizens submit cheerfully and patriotically to regulatory laws such as the Price Control Act which is operated by the Office of Price Administration; and,

Whereas, it is unAmerican, unnecessary and unreasonable that such acts be enforced by Star Chamber methods and that citizens of the United States be deprived of their constitutional rights, including their day in court; and,

Whereas, it is unconstitutional, unAmerican, unpatriotic and unfair for said act to be enforced by an OPA commissioner who acts as judge, jury, prosecutor and bailiff all rolled into one without any right to appeal to the Courts of the State or Nation; and,

Whereas, such "kangaroo" courts suspend citizens from business as a penalty for alleged violations of regulations and this suspension without recourse to duly constituted courts denies the citizen his right to his livelihood in violation of the fifth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, providing that no citizen shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law—such trials before a hearing commissioner not being due process of law; and,

Whereas it is the duty of all good citizens to maintain freedom on the home front while our boys are fighting and dying for it on the battlefronts.

Now, therefore, be it hereby resolved by the Wichita Independent Service Station Operators' Relief Association:

1. That Congress be petitioned to amend the Price Control Act so that all alleged violations of said law or regulations promulgated thereunder will be prosecuted and tried in the duly constituted courts of our State or Nation.
2. That we enlist the support of all other interested citizens in bringing this matter to the attention of Congress and in attempting to obtain prompt, proper and effective Congressional action; and,
3. That we keep faith with our boys who are offering their lives on foreign seas and shores to prevent despotism from being imposed upon us from without by pledging our consecrated efforts, our fortunes, and our sacred honor, to prevent tyranny from being imposed upon us from within while they are away.

It was Andrew Jackson, one of the patron saints of the Democratic party, who said that "as our government secures to us the rights of person and of property, it will be worth defending." He had not heard of the "redistribution of the social surplus" by popular vote.

There is talk about Congress not working in harmony with the president, but it might be quite as true to put it the other way around.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

DeKalb County Fair

Charles Romeiser, president of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce, was elected the Auburn City Director for the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair Association at a meeting of the Fair Association, Thursd a y evening, of last week. Ora Shambaugh, president of the association has previously served as the Auburn City Director prior to his election as president. Other important business transacted at this meeting included the decision to advertise in the local and county newspapers, solicitation of all individuals and organizations to participate in the County Fair.

Space is now for sale for concessions at this event. W. E. Walter, of Auburn, Jackson Township farmer, is in charge of selling the space and will collect the money. All space is to be paid for before the lights will be turned on at the opening of the Fair which will be Tuesday evening, September 26. Any persons or organizations desiring space should contact Mr. Walter direct.

Another important decision was that there will be no exclusive rights sold to any concessionaire at the Fair. The reason for this action was that the Fair Directors wish to protect the public attending the Fair, since some concessionaires, having exclusive rights at such events, often do not give them value received. Open competition should eliminate this condition.

School Children Salvage Pods.

To help solve the problem of collecting milkweed pods at harvest time for use by the government in the manufacture of life-preserver jackets, life-rafts and life-preservers for soldiers, sailors, marines and aviators, Indiana school children will be asked "to pick milkweed pods to save lives" Dr. Clement T. Malan, state superintendent of public instruction has announced.

Pointing out that the light, buoyant floss of the common milkweed (Asclepias Syriaca) is regarded by the U. S. Department of Agriculture as the only satisfactory substitute for kapok which is no longer available from Java. Dr. Malan says he will urge all school administrators in Indiana to promote this salvage project in early September. F"ll information and instructions will be supplied this summer. The government will pay schools a fee for the pods. It is estimated milkweed floss will be harvested in the northeast states in which natural stands of milkweed grow in abundance.

A government defense plant at Petoskey, Mich., is the only plant in the world equipped to separate milkweed floss from the pods and seeds, thus making the fibre available for replacement of kapok, which prior to the war was imported at t h e rate of 20,000,000 pounds annually. Milkweed floss is also used for thermal and acoustical insulation o f aircraft. Because of the new importance of milkweed floss, the U. S. Department of Agriculture is launching a three-year collection program dependent largely upon the efforts of school children.

' INTERPRETATIONS"

—BY—

Rev. Frank Stevenson

What we believe determines what we do. Right belief is essential for right action, and knowing what we beleve often expedites action and emanates trust. F a l s e beliefs create false gods and result in ungodly living. Christian virtues are t h e natural fruits of lives rooted in the Christian beliefs about God.

The Apostles' Creed states what Christians believe about the central fact of life, God—God the Creative Father, God the Revealing Son, God the Indwelling Spirit, ever one God.

The Christian's willing obedience to the Ten Commandments and his Christ-like exercise of the privilege of Prayer rests finally upon his beliefs about the God whom he is "to fear, love, and trust above all things." Even the worth attached to the Sacraments is in direct proportion to his belief in the power, love and presence of God.

The Scriptures are the ultimate source of information about the true God but the central teachings thereof have been summarized into brief statements for the purpose of study and confession of faith. Repetition of creeds is no substitute inner convictions arrived at from first hand study of the Bible. Creeds are dead if they are not personal creeds but to know in a few easily memorized phrases what the millions of other Christians have held vitally true should lend guidance and strength to our conclusions. Frequent use will keep your beliefs at a high polish and your life overflowing with positive action,—service in Christ's name.

Mother's Day 1944

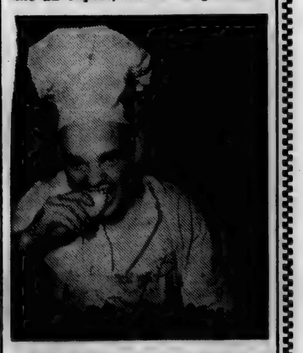
● On Mother's day American soldiers all over the world are reminded of the many services they once took for granted at home. K. P. duty has taught them that mother's task was no easy one. These "housekeeping" pictures were taken in the Aleutians and might well inspire the following sentiments.

"Isn't this a fancy mop-wringer? But I still don't like it—it weighs about five times as much as yours. And our mess hall is about as big as our whole house. To think I used to gripe when you asked me to wash off the back porch with the garden hose."

"Sometimes, Mom, I think the army ought to make it a rule that potatoes should always be baked—with the jackets ON!"

"After a year in the army I've finally gotten so I can sew a button on a shirt, but this mending tears in pants stuff gets me. Honest, I thought all you had to do to mend a rip is sew it up. But it's a complicated affair. Probably the wrong kind of thread."

"Seems funny, my being a cook, doesn't it? I couldn't even cut a pie straight and now I'm carving meat like an expert, and cooking it too."



"I baked these cookies all by myself. It gets a bit cold nights in the Aleutians and the boys like hot cocoa or coffee with cookies to warm 'em up. The boys say they taste pretty good—but they're just kind-hearted."

TRILLIONS NEXT!

In predicting that the national debt limit will be raised, one commentator says that next year the national debt will reach 250 billions of dollars or a "Quarter of a TRILLION."

It wasn't too many years ago that money was measured by millions. Once the debt reached the billions the nation gave up trying to conceive the enormity of a billion dollars. Now that the first mention of "Trillion" has been made—well, that's something for Superman to toy with. By the way, what comes after a Trillion?—Redwood Falls, Minn., Gazette.

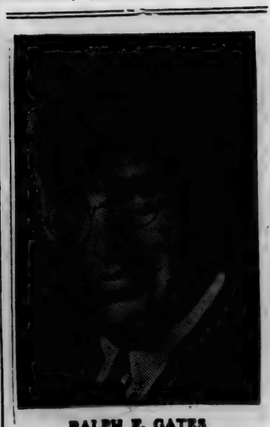
PREDICTS GATES TO BE REPUBLICAN CHOICE

The campaign manager for Ralph Gates believes that the former Republican state party chairman will win the nomination for governor. Jess Murden says Gates' nomination is assured because a great majority of the 1,743 delegates of the state GOP convention are definitely pledged to him.



RALPH F. GATES

The announcement, Murden says, follows a careful check up of delegate lists from Indiana's 92 counties, following the primary election. The campaign manager said:

"The great ajority of the elected delegates are pledged to Gates as the man to lead the Republican party to victory in every county of the state in the November election. The Republican party is unitd as never before."

Gates recently resigned as GOP state chairman to campaign for the gubernatorial nomination.

The Republican state convention will be held in the state fairgrounds coliseum June 2. And the party also will nominate candidates for U. S. senator and other state offices.

SPENCER TWP. WIFE ASKS SEPARATION, SUPPORT

Her husband seized her while in a rage and choked her, but she was saved by the pleas of their little children, Leah Schaftner, of Spencer Township, alleges in a divorce complaint filed in the DeKalb Circuit Court Monday against Bernard C. Schaftner.

The plaintiff, whose attorney is Howard S. Grimm, claims the defendant drinks to excess and that he cursed her. She says he squandered money for liquor. The couple married Oct. 1, 1932, and parted Monday. The children are Mabel, 11, and Barbara, 7.

Mrs. Schaftner states that she and the defendant have acquired about $6,000 worth of property, including $625 in a bank deposit, an equity in 36.79 acres of land, livestock, poultry, household goods and an automobile. She demands $3,500 alimony. She also wants the custody of the children and an order for their support.

The defendant was restrained from molesting his family or disposing of any property pending a hearing Saturday.

WE REMEMBER

One year ago May 9, there slipped away from this earthly abode to a "Tabernacle not made with hands" a friend and a neighbor. Quietly and unostentatiously as he had lived he went from us. No flowery eulogy, just "one clear call" and in the hearts of those who knew him and loved him best there was left an aching void as they said, "We have lost a friend." Yet a little farther from this inner circle others who had met him "on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho" said, "We have lost a neighbor."

Yet farther in an ever-widening circle, philanthropic and charitable organizations, church, school and missions, those whose lives he had touched only in that he had never refused support to any worthy cause said, "We have lost a brother and a Godly man." It is not vital that his name be mentioned—those who miss him most well remember that it was just one year ago. If this tribute fits another as well as he, it is good, and others can say with us of those they have loved and lost for "a little while," "One year ago we lost a neighbor and a friend."

Robert L. Kelley and Everett Ringenberg, of near Auburn, former students of Spencerville High School, passed their physical examinations at Indianapolis last week and have been selected for the Navy.

Eugene Harter, who was home on a 12 day furlough, returned to Fort Benning, Ga., the first of the week.

After spending a five day furlough at the home of his parents at Concord, Cpl. Ray Littlefield left for Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where he will take four months of training at the motor school.

Pvt. Junior Freeburn, of Maxton, N. C., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Emma Freeburn, and other relatives for a few days here.

Cecil Ramsey has had orders to report for physical examination at Sneedsville, Tenn., by May 23. He leaves this week to visit his parents a few days. His family will remain here, having just purchased the Mrs. Bessie Shroyer property near Bear Creek.

The following letter was received by Mrs. Mattie Hart, of Coburntown, from her grandson, S. Sgt. Geo. Hart.

Somewhere in England.
April 29, 1944.

Dear Folks:

I'm really sorry I haven't written for so long, but we have been so busy, I just haven't had time. Have received all the letters I should have I think, it takes about 15 days for V-mail to get here, and not much difference in air mail. There isn't an awful lot I can say and there's not much news.

As you probably will notice I am now a Staff Sergeant (as we say it Stiff Sgt.) I have in 11 missions as of now only 29 more to go, and I want a round trip ticket for every one. I am not going to be able to write more than this one letter, so you had better pass it on.

I want to tell you about my visit to London on pass. We took a tour of the town, saw Westminster Parliament, Downing St., the new Waterloo Bridge, Tower of London, Nelson's Statue, St. Paul's, and of course, Picadilly. Westminster was by far the most interesting. Some of the most interesting being the two candelabra, and Poets Corner, and the Coronation Room. I saw the changing of the palace guard, and the obelisk, Cleopatra's Needle, and the monument to the fire of London, Scott's polar ship the Discovery is anchored on the Thames. The next time we go I am going to the Wax Museum.

What I miss most is fresh milk, this white powdered water is horrible. Grandma, I am well and healthy, and don't worry. To you all as you put it, be careful, Brother it just doesn't pay not to be, so careful that nothing can happen. Oh, yes, with my 11 missions now, I will be eligible for the air medal and one oak leaf cluster. As the joke goes, an English statesman in Washington was asked what he thought of the American soldier in England, he said: "they are overpaid, over-decorated, over-rated, and oh, yes, they are over there."

We live well and the English treat us swell, but I have never worked so hard before, several hours in the air on oxygen are really work, in several hours one is exhausted to the point of not caring any more.

I will try to give you an idea of how much the different organizations do to entertain us. It is surprising how much they really have, the Red Cross has clubs at practically all the places called Aero Clubs. They have a library, reading and writing rooms, lounges and a snack bar that serves sandwiches, cakes, coffee and tea.

They have a gymnasium and movies at times, in the lounge is a radio phonograph with plenty of records. For the literary minded, they have French and Spanish classes, training on practically any subject. These clubs are in most of the larger cities and they have sleeping facilities also for men on pass. They sponsor dances and parties on holidays and week ends.

Over here in the United Kingdom they have a radio station just for us called A.F.N. (American Forces Network,) which broadcasts 12 hours a day from 11 A. M. to 11 P. M. We hear most of the programs from the states, as Jack Benning, Fred Waring, Bob Hope, and lots of others.

Well, this is all the time I have now, more later.

Love to all,

Staff Sgt. George T. Hart, 15329745, 384 Bomb Gp., 546 Bomb Sq., A.P.O. 557, % P. M. New York, N. Y.

The first meeting was held at the gymnasium April 26 for the purpose of filling out the record books and discussing material and patterns for the clothing projects as well as other problems. QUAIL AND PHEASANT WILL BE SHIPPED TO CONSERVATION CLUBS

Approximately 76,000 pheasant and 58,000 quail chicks will be delivered to Conservation clubs throughout the state this year, with the shipment of pheasants starting May 19, Harrell F. Mosbaugh, director of the Division of Fish and Game, said.

There are 421 pheasant brooders in operation this year as compared to 422 last year, and 324 quail brooders in operation as compared to 375 last year. However, all reports have not been received on clubs planning to operate quail brooders, since shipment starts later in the season.

Chicks are shipped in quantities of 180 from the Jasper-Pulaski and Wells County State Game Farms. They are kept in brooders owned by the Conservation clubs for eight weeks when the Division of Fish and Game pays the club fifty cents for each bird. The clubs then release the birds in their counties. No club may hold contracts for more than two brooders, Mr. Mosbaugh said.

Due to climatic adaptabilities, pheasant deliveries will be concentrated in the northern part of the state, and most quail deliveries in the south.

DECORATION DAY IN SAINT JOE

Decoration Day services will be held in St. Joe, this year, on Sunday, May 28. This is the first time in a number of years that the services have not been held on the regular Decoration Day, May 30.

On account of so many people working in defense plants and also on account of the heavy farm planting to be done, this change was made. It is hoped that in this way more people will be able to take part in the observance.

The services will be held in the school gymnasium and fraternal organizations are urged to join with the ex-service men in making this a fitting tribute.

The program will appear in next week's paper.

U. S. PATENT NO. 828,227—1906

Feeding Device for Poultry

This is described in Letters Patent as an improved device that compels exercise by forcing the fowl to race on an inclined revolving platform to get her food. It sure would make a hen hustle for her dinner.

More exercise-More eggs for Victory

WE DON'T know whether the patent shown above was ever marketed or not. The inventor certainly had the right idea—to keep hens laying, give them plenty of exercise.

Electric lights do this easily and at low cost. For a few cents a night, you can turn your henhouse into a "Night Club."

With electric lights, your hens keep exercising and feeding and laying more eggs for Victory.

WHERE PRAISE IS DUE

Putting in extra detail work for the amount of business they get, finds longsuffering tradesmen in need of a bit of appreciative comment from us. Take the butcher and grocer who have put up with a lot of complaining from customers, arguments that cause friction in spite of both sides. To those of us who have difficulty with our ration stamps, expiration dates, shortage of articles, wait for delayed produce, it is something that does take patience. But what about that groceryman who needs more help in the store, has shipments delayed, food prices to check, changing orders from the government, trying to contact favorably jobbers who supply him? It is just as hard for the grocer to get you goods as it is for you to locate it on the shelf when tardy shipments do come in. Let us exercise more patience and make the job a less difficult one for both this and the other side of the counter.

WHEN IT STARTS

There has been a most eloquent, meaningful prayer written by the president of the Federal Churches of Christ in America, the Bishop Henry St. George Tucker, which has been offered for all churches to read the day the invasion starts. To gather in our churches, all over this country, on a certain day of note, to offer prayer from the hearts of all civilians back home for the lives of our American and Allied Soldiers, is a fitting and potent gesture. Every home in this community would find comfort in the thought that a nation prays for its sons. Their blood and their sacrifice will be greatest at this time than ever before in battle, we are told by military authorities. We are to face losses that will plunge many homes into deep sorrow, losses that we may gain a victory and bring about peace. Well might we pray in unison on the day the invasion begins.

HIGH TIME FOR ACTION

Whatever the outcome of the Montgomery Ward seizure by Federal government, it has focused attention on a Congressional bill long overdue for consideration, the Gwynne "Fair Government Practices" act.

Introduced by Rep. Gwynne, of Iowa, it aims at protecting Constitutional processes and civil liberties, at preventing usurpation of authority by the Executive and his agencies. It would require the holding of hearings, the compliance with "orderly processes" and review by the courts.

Arbitrary extension of the War Powers Act to cover seizure of a mercantile concern would be declared illegal. All in all, the Gwynne bill would seem to be putting the law behind the assertion that "This is still America."

Languishing overlong in the Judiciary Committee, the Iowan's bill should be brought out for immediate action.

The Oil Choke

America's shortage of gasoline for civilian use is becoming actually acute, especially in the East where light fuel for oil-heated homes was a serious problem all winter. War's motor fuel demands are increasing, and the only apparent way to meet them is by deeper cuts into uses at home. In 1943, oil fields of the United States yielded 1.5 billion barrels of crude oil, and new fields discovered will furnish only about one-sixth that much.

No relief is in sight; 350,000 barrels daily came out of storage tanks in January, 1944. Oil producers started more than two years ago to warn government authorities of just what is happening now. Then, and for several months later the calamity could have been avoided with a fair increase in the crude oil price, but it was not allowed. Here is the rub: When oil prices were frozen in 1941, the national average was $1.17 a barrel, and now it is $1.20.

Books Show Red

Counting all puny, scattered price advances in two years, the gain has amounted to 3 cents a barrel while costs to get oil are up 60 cents a barrel. The country needed oil even in 1941. Exploratory wells should have been drilled—new fields found. But men can't spend more than they receive. Owners of small wells could have boosted the yield from many of these with sound engineering methods but the money was lacking. Many wells have been shut down.

The argument offered against a higher oil price ceiling is that it would make car owners pay more for gasoline. They would gladly pay more, however, if they could get the gasoline. Meanwhile old oil fields are dying by inches. More than 13,000 little oil wells were junked last year because they couldn't be made to pay; 10,000 perished the year before. This should never happen when our flyers need motor fuel.

We Fight Success

It probably delights our enemies to see small, successful, private enterprisers squeezed out of the oil business while the government buys into it with taxpayers' money. It is a trend fundamentally wrong and, right now, dangerous. Up near the Arctic Circle, on Canadian soil, our government has put 135 million dollars in a pipeline and refinery within the last two years. Its practicability is now gravely questioned, even as a peacetime venture. Some say work on it was abandoned, for the long Arctic winter.

The latest government mirage of far-flung oil wealth is on the sands of Arabia. People in a position to know estimate its cost at 150 million dollars. Two years may see it finished. Two years will see the European war over, experts believe, so the Arabian pipeline is no part of the war effort.

It's No Secret

Congressman H. L. Gavin of Pennsylvania, ably and eloquently told this story in a radio talk on February 14. He had his facts and figures straight. He is probably right that there is plenty of petroleum still under ground in America. I'd like to see oil fields developed at home, near to our aching need for gasoline and heating oil. Legislation to this effect should be enacted by Congress if action is not obtained otherwise.

American planes in all branches of service, trucks and tanks and ocean craft are looking to America for fuel; not to the frozen North nor the arid East. Surely most of the big money spent by our government now should be hastening victory and peace, not fortifying government in business to cramp and impoverish future generations.

PERSONAL PROPERTY OF GRADUATING CLASS DISPOSED OF BY CLASS WILL.

Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class of Saint Joe, Indiana

Due to the fat that the Senior Class has passed through twelve long years of pain and misery, (we wish to call to your attention that no Senior Class has ever lasted longer than twelve years——as a whole,) it was duly pronounced dead, after prolonged suffering, by the St. Joe Coroner, Ned Keller. Undertaker James Kees took full charge of the corpse. An inquest was held by Chief Detective Miss Jean Hurni and after a long drawn out investigation, a will was found by the Janitor, in the coal bin, under the one and only shovel of coal and was immediately turned over to the proper authorities, who advised that it be published so that all may know the last requests of the deceased:

Owing to the flighty condition of her brain, and the unusual disturbance in her grey matter, she begs me to state for her that she may quite possibly have been mistaken in her inventory; but such things as she thinks she has she hereby gives into your possession, praying that you will accept them as a sacred trust from one who has gone before.

We give to the dear faculty who have been our instructors in all the wisdom of the ages, a sweet and unbroken succession of restful nights and peaceful dreams. No longer need they lie awake through the long watches of the night to worry over the uncertainty of whether this one has done her home work, or that one will have her mathematics in morning class. It has been a hard strain on them, for Seniors are said to be all times and under all conditions difficult to manage. But they had done their duty, and now, shall they have their well-earned regard.

We give to the leading paper of our city, the St. Joe News, and to the talented editor thereof, all the events of our lives, past, present, and to come, with all the wonders, sensations, hair-breadth escapes, glorious attainments, and other deserved or undeserved notoriety and fame with which we may have been, or may hereafter be associated, trusting that they may furnish plenty of material for news items and brilliant editorials for ages yet to come, and serve as an inspiration for those younger students who so naturally look to us for examples.

To, Mrs. Wicoff we give all the amazing knowledge and startling information that we have furnished her from time to time in our various examination papers in Physics. We know that much which we have imparted to her in this way must have been entirely new to her, as well as to all teachers and students everywhere, and would throw much new light on many a familiar line of thought. We trust they will also feel at perfect liberty to make use of such bits of wisdom and enlightenment for the education of the classes to come after us.

To the Junior Class as a student body, Maxine Converse wills her knowledge of Psysics, Sociology, History and Dramatics. We trust the class may be able to survive it.

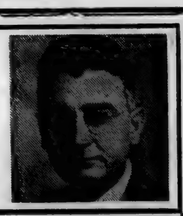
Farmers Buy War Bonds

by Lawrence A. Bradford
Associate Professor of Farm Management
University of Kentucky



FARMERS are buying War Bonds. Not all farmers, but most of them. Their total purchases are significant. Some farming counties bought an equivalent of thirty percent of their gross farm sales last year. Why?

No other single group of men has as much of their traditional way of doing things at stake as do American farmers. They are traditionally and temperamentally independent in both thought and actions, and they wish to be able to remain so. A profound simple sense of patriotism is inborn in the American farmer. They chafe at Government restraint more than other individuals and they fully realize that dictators embrace agriculture early in their confiscating actions. Farmers are both bed-rock and lease of democratic life. They provide cities with citizens steeped in the American way and they fully appreciate that agriculture has furnished the people who have made America great.

There are lesser reasons which have appeal to some farmers, and will appeal to others who have not already accounted for their just share of purchases. Farmers should buy Bonds because they now have funds for many things they need or want but cannot buy. Farm improvements, new machinery, home furnishings and improvements, education, travel. These "twenty-fivers", "fifties", and "five hundreds" constitute a savings account for things they have always wanted but could not afford, an insurance to safeguard the future as well as a help for sons of seven seas and a start when the lads get home. A more strictly selfish reason is for old age benefits, as farmers have no governmental social security provisions.

But these are minor reasons because the farmer is individually unselfish. Farm, home, family, country, opportunity, opportunity for others, complete freedom, sons and daughters home again—these are the things they want most to provide for. These are the things they hope War Bonds will help provide. These are their principal reasons.

Signed: CLASS OF '44.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

As I gaze into this magic crystal, I see the events of nineteen years in the future of the class of 1944 pass before my eyes. As I steadfastly look into the future, I see a large airport near New York City. A large plane, the design of which was not thought of in 1944, is about to leave for Egypt. A beautiful and distinguished looking lady is about to board the plane. She is dressed in expensive and very stylish clothes. Since nothing is hidden from this ball, I can plainly see that she has bought her large selection of exclusive clothes from the Style Shop on Fifth Avenue which handles nothing but the garments designed by the Allen Haller. My attention is now called to the Lady's face who has turned to bid her friends good-bye. I am greatly surprised to see it is Mary Louise Woodcox. She now boards the plane and is cordially greeted and helped to a seat by the stewardess of the plane. The extra warmth of her greeting is explained when I see it is none other than Bessie Baughman.

As the plane glides swiftly over the great expanse of water, everyone on the plane is singing with the music on the radio the latest song hit written by Beverly Swander.

After the short ride, the plane lands at the mammoth airport in Egypt and Mary Louise is greeted by the Rajah's favorite wife, Jean Hurni.

The scene now changes and I see a large crowd—thousands of people are cheering—yes, it is in Paris, France. The Olympic swimming prize is being awarded to an American swimmer. The scene comes closer and I see it is Patricia Carpenter.

The cheering crowds fade away and I see a new plastic automobile speeding down the road. The driver, who so expertly handles the car, is James Kees. There is something by his side—no, it isn't his wife—it is a bag of mail. He is leaving a letter in a mail-box addressed to Virginia George, Saint Joe, Indiana, R. R. 10. It is from Gerald Means, the famous photographer in Saint Joe. Virginia has come home all the way from New York to have her picture taken by him. Let's see what the letter contains:

Dear Virginia:

It will be impossible for me to find a place for you sooner than day after tomorrow, the 10th, as I have tomorrow taken up with sittings of Paul Avey—the American ambassador to Russia. If you were not the latest Power's Model, I couldn't make a place for you even then.

Yours very truly,
Gerald Means.

Now, all is dark. Can it be that all the rest of the class of '44 have passed into the Great Beyond? No, I see a light. It is coming nearer. Now I see all the colors of the rainbow sparkling and shining in all directions. The face I see in this splendor is Max Likens. He is holding the largest diamond ever found in his hands. He has just found it in his own diamond mine in Africa. Now, all is light and I see the diamond on the work bench of Joan Diederich in New York. She is the greatest diamond cutter in the world. (She still hopes to get one of her own on the third finger of her left hand.)

Before my eyes I see a great hospital, and on the operating table lies the still form of Maxine Converse. The skilled hands of the noted physician work carefully and surely. Then, later I see the patient smilingly accepting the good wishes for her quick recovery from the hospital's famed dietician—Ned Keller. Now I see the reason for her hospitalization. She was in the midst of an explosion while working in her laboratory. She is now known as Mme. Curie II. The directors of the hospital are considering changing the name of the hospital from Mayo to Bragg, after the tireless Dr. Elliot Lee Bragg, who so miraculously saved Maxine's life.

—June Strong.

"INTERPRETATIONS"

—BY—
Rev. Frank Stevenson

(Public Confession Part I)

I Confess that I am by Nature Sinful and Unclean

In common with all 'humanity in the raw' I am naturally selfish in my intentions and divided in my interests. To be by nature sinful and unclean is part of my social heritage. To confess this in no way excuses my own sinning as though it were beyond my responsibility, but to face this fact of human life does help us to understand why "to err is human"—why in-so-far-as we are members of 'humanity in the raw' we do so easily sin against God "by thought, word, and deed."

I Confess that I am by Nature Sinful and Unclean

This human trait is sometimes called "original sin" to distinguish it from actual expression in sinful actions. It is the warp of character, the inner confusion of values, which, if left as it is, leads us to waste our energy in acts of destruction rather than to increase it through creative living.

I Confess that I am by Nature Sinful and Unclean

As Christians we are no longer in our natural state, we are no longer 'in the raw.' We are no longer wild, self-willed animals but 'domesticated' creatures of God's Household. We are still human beings but our old nature has been conquered and we have been reworked, regenerated, reborn, made fit and willing for service under God. The unclean spirit has been driven out and we are now temples of the true and living God. But as domesticated animals sometimes hear and answer the "call of the wild" so we sometimes respond to the 'dying but not dead' Old Adam in us. Yes, I must in all honesty say—

I Confess that I am by Nature Sinful and Unclean

One-Way Ride

When a nation of free people turns its political course in the direction of State Socialism, there is something strangely final about it. Not one comes back without a revolution. Many an ignorant European toiler has danced in colorful costume beneath what he was told to call an arch of triumph for Government Management, learning very soon that it was a yoke of endless bondage.

Why do they blunder into such traps? This question puzzles many Americans. Don't Europeans know any better? Can't they see what happens to other nations nearby? To both questions, the answer is "No." In many European countries the enlightened class is the ruling class and it is small. Many poor folk who read a little can't afford a newspaper. They don't have a chance to use their heads. Craftier people fool them and rob them endlessly.

Can Happen Here

Somebody is always trying a European shell-game on the American people with rather poor success because the average American is equipped to protect himself. Unfortunately socialistic flim-flam has fooled some people on this side of the ocean. Americans who boost government management have little to say in its favor. They talk more about the abuses of Private Enterprise than about the advantages of other systems.

I wonder how often I have heard some intelligent person say, "In America, 5 per cent of the people own 95 per cent of the wealth." Most people who repeat the falsehood have no idea where they first heard it. It sounds like statistics but it's not. It is plain propaganda to dissatisfy honest people with what they have and make them want something else—anything else.

Here's the Truth

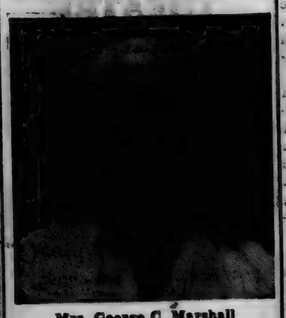
Just recently the U. S. Department of Commerce gave out some real figures on national income, and they ought to blot out that 5-95 myth everywhere. National income is no puzzle either: Everybody understands personal income; that's what one person earns. Family income is the sum of what everybody in the family earns. Just so, national income is the grand total of what all Americans earn.

In 1943 our national income was 150 billion dollars. Two thirds of this (100 billion dollars) went to working people in the form of salaries and wages. Farmers got 13 billion more. Corporations got eight billion dollars, and most of them were not big corporations. If all corporations are big-bad-wolves with greedy hearts, how did they permit workers to beat them to 87½ per cent of the money last year?

A Fatal Decision

Whether they have any reason for it or not, most advocates of government management (which leads eventually to government ownership) are angry at corporations. They have not been taught that corporations provide the jobs at which workers earned their 100 billion dollars; nor that the 13 billion dollars received by farmers was money used to feed the families of those same workers.

If prejudiced people turn to government management as the plainest road leading away from capitalism; if they can get enough other people to turn with them, they should understand that they are taking a one-way road. Private enterprise has made the world's most prosperous country; State Socialism has consistently failed. Some systems can be changed, but nations going to government management do not return without violence.



Mrs. George C. Marshall

MRS. GEORGE C. MARSHALL FOUNDS THE GRANDMOTHERS' LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, D. C.: General George C. Marshall's wife founded the Grandmothers League as a roll of honor for grandmothers who buy War Bonds for their grandchildren.

Mrs. Marshall herself buys Bonds and stamps regularly for her three grandchildren, Tupper Brown, age 1, Jimmy Winn, 4, and Jimmy's sister Kitty, 9 months.

"Those Bonds fight for America today," Mrs. Marshall said in Washington. "When they mature they will bring to the coming generation the educational and other privileges that make America worth fighting for."

GRANDMOTHERS' SALARIES BUY BONDS FOR GRANDCHILDREN

Mrs. Elizabeth Taggart (left) and Mrs. Edna Neff

NEW YORK, N. Y.: The slogan of the Grandmothers War Bond League, "Grandmother's Bond with the Future—War Bonds," is a common bond between two hard working grandmothers at the Aero Spark Plug Corporation in New York. Mrs. Elizabeth Taggart (left) and Mrs. Edna Neff invest part of their salaries in War Bonds every pay day. ●

Mrs. Neff's 10-month-old granddaughter, Barbara Ann, receives War Bond gifts as part of her grandmother's "back the attack" program in honor of Barbara's Marine daddy, a master technical sergeant, the highest rank of an enlisted Marine. Mrs. Neff also has a son, Herman, fireman first class in the Navy. Her last letter from him came from Guadalcanal.

In endorsing the Grandmothers League founded by Mrs. Marshall, wife of the General, Mrs. Neff agrees with Mrs. Taggart that "in buying Bonds with our grandchildren as co-owners, we have an emergency fund to use if necessary. But we don't expect that. We want the Bonds to be there for the children's education."

VOL. LXIX (59 YEARS (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1944 NUMBER 21

PIONEER CITIZEN OF CONCORD TOWNSHIP CALLED

Rev. J. N. Scholes Stricken With Cerebral Hemorrhage Sunday Morning While He Stood Before His Sunday School Class.

One of the pioneer ministers of DeKalb County, Joseph Nelson Scholes, passed away at his home east of St. Joe Sunday afternoon at 2:30. He was taken ill while teaching his Sunday School class at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ and asked to be taken home where he passed away. A cerebral hemorrhage proved fatal.

Mr. Scholes was born June 10, 1861, on the same farm where he passed away Sunday. He had resided in DeKalb County all of his life except 40 years in which he was engaged in the ministry of the Church of Christ. He married Lillian Akins and they celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary last October 10th.

He was graduated from Tri-State College at Angola and began his ministry at Corunna. He next served a church at Bryan, Ohio, and for five years was pastor at the First Church of Christ at Cleveland, Ohio. Later he served at Wheeling, West Virginia, Lima, Ohio, Bellaire, Ohio, and was at Johnstown, Pa., for seven years. His last pastorate was at Waynesburg, Pa. While at that place he was given an honorary degree from Waynesburg College. When he came back to his farm in DeKalb County he engaged in evangelistic work for a number of years.

Mr. Scholes was an active member of the DeKalb County Ministerial Association and rarely missed a meeting of the organization. He was slated to become president of the group at the next election of officers.

Mr. Scholes is survived by his wife; one son, Walter S. Scholes, of Fort Wayne; a foster daughter, Miss Gertrude Lewis, who resides at Winchester, Mass., where she is engaged in teaching, and three grandchildren. Two sons, Ford and Paul, and one daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Rodebush, are deceased.

The body was taken to the Walter Funeral Home at Spencerville and remained there until Wednesday noon when it was taken to the Coburn Corners Church. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church and burial made at the Alton Cemetery near the home of the deceased. J. J. Whitehouse, pastor of the Church of Christ at Angola, assisted by Rev. William Clague, pastor of the Coburn Corners Church, will officiate at the funeral.

ALTON CHANEY DIES AT HOME OF SON

Alton B. Chaney, 58, formerly of Antwerp, Ohio, died Sunday at 4 A. M. at the home of his son, Glen, Rt. 1, Ft. Wayne. Death was due to coronary embolism, after he had been ill for six weeks.

Alton lived in St. Joe until only recently, and worked for the Myers Elevator & Coal Co.

Surviving are the son, Glen; four grandchildren, and a nephew, Don Harris of Fort Wayne. His wife died in 1931. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Schilb Funeral Home, being conducted by Rev. N. H. Bradley, interment being made in the Maumee Cemetery.

The LIONS CLUB

L. W. Yeiser, Publicity

Twenty-one members of St. Joe Lions Club were in attendance at the Auburn Lions meeting Monday evening, and a fine sociable time was enjoyed. Judge Clyde Carlin, of Angola, brought the message on the subject "You Be the Judge," and his talk was interspersed with humorous situations in a judge's life, and the difficulties in making sane and wise decisions in cases.

The Auburn club was the sponsor of the local club four years ago this fall, and this was the first time the club, as a whole, had called on its parental club.

The next meeting of the local club will be held on June 12, at which time the nominating committee will make its report to the club for officers to be voted upon at the June 26 meeting, and the new year beginning July 1, will be manned by a new set of officers.

A speaker has already been purchased for the June 12th meeting.

ST. JOE BUSINESS CHANGES OWNERSHIP

An unexpected business change materialized Monday morning, when Ford Jackson became the owner of the grocery stock and fixtures, formerly owned by George and Helen Wade, and known as the West End Grocery.

Mr. Wade is foreman of the extra gang on the B. & O. west and is away from home most of the time, leaving the business responsibility to Mrs. Wade, and because of George being sent farther west, it was deemed best to sell the buisness and his family would then be able to be with him.

The new owners will be Mrs. Ford Jackson and daughter, Iris Hudson. Mr. Jackson will continue his carpenter work.

The Wades proved themselves very successful merchants and had built up a very successful business.

We bespeak success to the new owners.

MAURER—PATTERSON

The marriage of Simeon H. Maurer, 82, Auburn real estate dealer, and Mrs. Addie Patterson, 78, of Fort Wayne, and formerly a St. Joe resident for many years, took place at the Fairfield Manor Apartments, Sunday afternoon, with a few close friends and relatives attending.

Rev. Hugh F. Craven, pastor of the Auburn Presbyterian Church, officiated. They will make their home in Auburn, at 514 South Indiana Avenue.

The couple is well known here and have the best wishes of their large circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley were among the wedding guests.

WITMER—GUILFORD

Marcia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Guilford, of St. Joe, was married on May 16, 1944, to Pfc. Winston J. Witmer, of Grabill, Ind., and who is located at the Army Base Hospital, at Harrington, Kan.

The ceremony was performed at the Ft. Wayne Gospel Mission. The young couple will visit relatives here until next Monday, when they will leave for Kansas. Both are popular young people in their communities, and have the best wishes of their many friends. Mrs. Witmer was a sophomore in the St. Joe school.

Stephen O. Cromley, 63, former variety store proprietor and realtor at Hicksville, O., died Sunday morning at his home following a long illness with asthma.

THEY SHALL NOT BE FORGOTTEN!

Walter Whitehurst Post 283, urges everyone to attend Memorial Services Sunday, May 28. The Legion Boys will be at Spencerville Cemetery at 9:00 A.M.; at Newville Cemetery at 10:00 A.M.; at the Alton Cemetery at 11:00 A.M.; at St. Joe Gymnasium at 2:00 P. M.

A number of our men about town have taken several evenings off to treat the back water puddles with motor oil in an effort to lessen the mosquito crop. It is evident that this has had some effect on the number of mosquitoes, but of course they are unable to control the production entirely. There is still enough to go around, and in fact, no one has been slighted as yet.

Tractor Riding "Grandma" Praises War Bond League

Mrs. K. C. Henkle of Kenton, Ohio, does more than her share of war work. She and her husband run two farms at maximum production and with almost no outside help. In addition, Mrs. Henkle is chairman in her township for War Bond sales for the Red Cross and for the combined scrap paper and grease salvage campaign. She is also a writer and has composed poems for War Bond and Red Cross programs over Stations WMRN, Marion, and WLW, Cincinnati.

Mrs. Henkle, who has an Army son, a Navy son, and an Army son-in-law, enthusiastically endorses Mrs. George C. Marshall's appeal to grandmothers to buy Bonds for their grandchildren. She herself takes turns buying Bonds for her five grandchildren ranging in age from 4 months to 11 years. "Those Bonds," she says, "will help educate the children and set them up in businesses and farms ten happy years from now."

Mrs. K. C. Henkle

The Grandmothers League was founded by General Marshall's wife and has been widely accepted as a worthy and unselfish Bond-buying drive.

It's NOT done with mirrors!

It's NOT done with mirrors!

A mirror makes two out of one . . . but it's just an illusion, of course. You can't collect on it.

There is a 2-for-1 that the average American family can and does collect on. And that's the double amount of electric service such a family gets today . . . for the same money it paid 15 years ago.

Yes, your bill may be as much as — or more than — it was in 1929. But you're using more electric conveniences now — and getting about twice as much for what you pay. Remember, too, that unlike other prices, the price of electricity has stayed down.

What's the secret of low-priced electricity? Efficient business operation. Experienced men, women and management who know their business from long years of serving you!

HELL CAN'T BE FAR FROM HERE

Once there was a time, they say down Georgia way, when the famous Warm Springs, haven for the afflicted from infantile paralysis and favorite vacation spot for the President, was no haven at all. That was when there was a large warm spring in Meriwether County, just off an old north-and-south wagon road. On this road, traveling through a dense forest wilderness, two north Georgia teamsters traveled their homeward way in the 1850's. Tired from peddling in the southern part of the state, they slowed up, as night was overtaking them and, spying the spring, decided to make camp near its spillway. One of the men took the bucket out from under the seat and went off to fill it at the spring. The other staked out for the night. The man with the bucket, being thirsty, knelt down to get a drink. Leaping to his feet with his first mouthful, he spat it out. Then he ran to his partner shouting: "Hook up, Jim! Hook up! We can't stay here! Why. Hell can't be half a mile from this place!"

MAY PASSES

Comes the blossoms on the peach branch and the plum tree into bud. From way down under shoots forth small spikes that could be daisies or delphiniums. It might even be a wandering radish that manages its growth better when surrounded by lovely flowers. Look to that mulch that must be taken from the tenderest of plants, the blossoms that are already May beauty to a late garden plot. Wet weather kept us from our work, or it was too cold or we were too busy, but May still inches up with glory. Watch the progress of your favorite trees, following the little pinhead buds that grow into broad leaves, develop into fruit or flower. Look to the lawn and watch its green come alive and see what wonder May has wrought.

Dear Jim:

Sorry this letter is late, but I'm up to my ears in the 5th War Loan Drive.

As head of the town's committee, I'm busy almost every waking moment selling bonds. This is, by all odds, the most critical period of the war. Everything is at stake — everything. (As if I needed to tell you that.) Our quota calls for two billion dollars more in this loan than the last — everyone's got to buy two or three times more than he's ever bought before — if things are to go as we solemnly pray they should.

Thank God most of the people I talk to seem to realize the critical need. They do without things they actually need in order to plunk down another hundred or two. I guess they feel as I do. With a man you love over there, the least you can do is your utmost.

I want you to know, Jim, that the folks here at home are with you — and their money is fighting with you - every last dollar they can scrape up. Mother and I send love.

Dad.

The following is a reproduction of a letter from Pvt. Harold L. Yeiser, written to his mother, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser and was received Monday morning:

May 15, 1944.

Dear Mom:

I promised you last night in a V-mail I would write you a long letter tonight. There wasn't any mail at all came in today, think I got my share last week.

Friday night I went into town and saw a show given by the "Eighth Air Force" called "Skirts." It was an all male cast and was really good. After the show we, Moon and I, went walking around town and I have seen quite a few historical places and hope to see a lot more. I have traveled over more of England than the average Englishman.

The narrow roads, that one of our average trucks can hardly get down, are all tar bound, and along most of them there are high walls, fences of piled stones, or just hedge. It seems funny even after being over here for such a long time, to see every house and almost every barn made of brick or cement. They also use a lot of steel, they don't have any wood to use for buildings, so they use cement and steel.

The homes aren't heated like they are at home, all they have is a fireplace, maybe every room has one. The Pubs (beer gardens) are just any type of building, some of them have been stables, and built a long time ago. I was in one that was built in 1300 and that is a hundred and ninety-four years before Columbus discovered America. The people over here just live on old traditions and seem to think if it was good enough for father it is good enough for them.

The people go to the Pubs and sip beer at night and play darts, a small town like St. Joe would have six or eight Pubs. The women and all drink the same, they don't get a bottle, they get a pint which is bigger than our pints, and the women drink about half of a pint, they call it a fifth.

While I was in town I weighed myself and guess what, I weighed 11 stones and five pounds. A stone is 14 pounds, so I weigh 159 pounds and am 6 foot tall. My 32 waist pants just fit me and my blouse is getting tighter around the chest, and I'm not getting fat either. Guess it's about time I put on a little weight, don't you think so.

Some of these days will be able to tell you exactly where I am, but believe me I am safe and having as much fun as can be expected over here. There is nothing to do like in the States. There are no skating rinks, bolling allies or nice parks or recreation centers like those at home. If you don't drink over here there isn't much to do only walk around and talk to the girls, and I don't do that so I just walk around and whistle at them. Believe me I am no wolf. Well, I am all run down now, so will quit for tonight.

Love,

A COMBAT SOLDIER

The following poem was sent by James Maxwell, who is overseas, to his father, Roy Maxwell, with instructions that it be given The News for publcation. James does not claim to be the author however.

He can hike sixty miles,
And then run five at that;
He could do the obstacle course
In nothing flat.
He digs slit trenches quicker
Than three men combined.
But Jones is no soldier—
His shoes are not shined.

Private Jones never goldbricks,
He's a glutton for work.
But he holds no rating,
Like the company clerk.
He keeps up morale
With songs that are gay.
But Jones is no soldier—
He needs a shave today.

With a rifle he's an expert—
He never misses a shot.
And he's as cool as an iceberg
When the action is hot.
He's killed fifty Jerries,
And wounded twenty to boot;
But Jones is no soldier—
He forgets to salute.

With a grenade he is deadly,
Also with a bayonet;
And out on patrol
He's the best I've seen yet.
As a scout he's uncanny,
Never known to guess wrong,
But Jones is no soldier—
His hair is too long.

If I'm ever in trouble,
And I need help real quick;
If I'm cut off from my outfit,
And the Jerries are thick;
If the mortars are falling
Like a lot of hailstones,
Well—the heck with all the soldiers,
Send me private Jones.

FRED BAYS ELECTED AS DEMOCRATIC LEADER

Hoosier Democratic leaders Saturday elected Fred Bays of Sullivan, to his fourth term as state party chairman.

Bays was re-named to the office at the biennial re-organization meeting of the Democratic state committee. Other officers of the committee also were re-elected. They include Mrs. Edna Bingham, vice chairman; Charles Skillen, secretary, and Clarence Gramelspacher, treasurer.

After the meeting, Bays said his party enters this year's political campaign "free of all factional and inter-party strife and confident of victory in November."

He added that he will begin immediately a campaign of state organization, with particular attention given to the prominent part women will take in the coming elections.

A WAR LABOR BOARD SOMERSAULT

The Sixth Regional War Labor Board has refused to order the Minneapolis store of Sears, Roebusk & Co. to bargain with a certified union on grounds that it is not essential to the war effort.

The history of the case is a two-year fight between rival labor unions for the right to represent 1,100 Sears' Minneapolis employees.

The mail order house is in the same line of business as Montgomery Ward and the ruling in the Minneapolis case was in sharp contrast with the President's executive order seizing Ward's plant in Chicago. The Sears Roebuck dispute centered on which union, CIO or AFL was the bargaining agent for employees. The company refused to deal with the CIO local claiming that to do so would result in a strike of AFL members. WLB voted 4 to 2 against exercising jurisdiction.

WRITES OF TRIP TO HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

Huntington, W. Va.
May 29, 1944.

Dear Fred and Lora:

Left home at 5 A.M. Sunday morning, arrived here at 6:30 P.M. Had a wonderful trip all the way, no trouble of any kind and no detours. We drove in a bad fog from St. Joe to St. Marys, Ohio, which took about 2 hours and 35 minutes. We averaged 35 miles per hour all the way, including one stop for breakfast at Van Wert.

At 8:45 we passed Indian Lake at Lake View. The highway bordering the lake for miles. The shore was lined with fishermen with dozens out in boats. At West Liberty we went out of our way to visit the Ohio Caverns. Between Belfountaine and West Liberty there was a Union Church with 775 or more cars parked in the yard, this was in the country. At Zanesville, O., we saw the little brick Dunkard Church built in 1825 with the original benches and old hearth stone stove. It stood in an old cemetery, inscription on some stones gone with the years, but is kept in excellent condition. Ate our dinner in Columbus.

At Chillicothe the cherries were turning red, most of the corn a foot high, roses and peonies all in full bloom, straw berries on road side markets. Several fields of alfalfa hay being made. At Portsmouth, Ohio, we saw a large lighted V 6 in a yard, upon further notice of the home we saw 6 service stars in window.

At Chesapeake we crossed the Ohio River paying 25c toll entering Huntington, W. Virginia, arriving at the trade court at 6:00. There are 15 trailers now parked here with room for many more. Rent is reasonable with plenty of shade. The cement bath house and laundry are all new and modern, city water is piped into all the trailers.

The trailer court is on Washington Ave., which is the main street of the city, population being over 77,000, bus stops at the court for all points in the city and for a few cents we can go by bus into Ashland, Kentucky, which is about ten miles away. They are having plenty of rain here too, and is pretty warm today.

Sincerely,
Pluma Hamilton.

The welfare of the disabled men in hospitals, and women and children in fatherless homes, were aided by the purchase of a crimson poppy bought by you on Poppy Day.

BAPTISM—Part I

Baptism is a Sacrament—a gift of God, rather than a sacrifice,—something which man does for God. It is given to demonstrate to our dull spirits the gracious agreement by God to make us members of His spiritual Israel for Jesus' sake. It is not a fruit of faith but a divinely instituted means by which faith is built up in us that by such faith we might take full advantage of our sonship to God as His reborn children.

Baptism consists of water and the Word of God. The water is a monetary, visible sign of the continual outpouring of God's mercy and love through His eternal Word. It is this Word (made living flesh in the person of Jesus Christ) which "works the forgiveness of sins, delivers from death and the devil, and gives everlasting salvation to all who believe." The water used has no power to cleanse us of anything except dirt which may have accumulated on our skin but sin is spiritual in its nature and must be destroyed by that which can wash the very soul of a man—his heart and his head, his emotions, intellect and will—to make it new again, full of life and free. There is nothing which can do this except the Word of God. Nothing else is at once powerful enough to destroy evil and make alive that which is good. In the vision of Ezekiel it is the Word of the Lord, not a flood of water, which made the valley of dry bones come to life to form an exceedingly great army of the Lord, even redeemed Israel. (cf. Ezekiel Chapter 37, verse 4) "O ye dry bones, hear the Word of the Lord."

Water baptism signifies burial itself. The latter is a daily Holy Spirit but it is only a sign of such burial and not the burtl itself. The latter is a daily invisible reality; the former is an event in history. Dipping for a moment in water makes a most vivid form of this sign of the true immersion in the Word of God and if we always remembered what such baptising signifies, namely, that the old Adam in us must be drowned and die so that Christ in us can come forth and live, in other words, if we are careful not to confuse the sign with that which it signifies, dipping would be the most dramatic mode of administering baptism to adults. BUT WHAT ABOUT SMALL CHILDREN? Next week we shall continue this interpretation in order to answer that question.

4-H CLUB NEWS

The Get-To-Gether 4-H Club met Friday, May 26, in the school house at St. Joe. The president called the meeting to order and the Pledge to the Flag and 4-H pledge were given. Roll call was answered by giving their favorite flower. Plans were made for Achievement Day. The guest, Miss Mary L. Moore, judged articles that the club members brought in, followed by the work period. The refreshment committee served cookies and lemonade, after which the girls played games out side.

PATENTED 1913

Rocking Chair Churn

Thirty years ago, a citizen of Maine patented this ingenious device for churning butter. Mounted on a platform at the side of a rocking chair to which it is attached, the churn is revolved by a ratchet device while Grandma rocks and does her knitting.

Yesterday-today and TOMORROW

ON a "Yesterday" thirty years ago, the patent illustrated was intended to save time on the farm. The flip of a switch today puts an electric churn to work and makes 20 pounds of butter at a cost of less than a penny, at our low rates.

In the years B.E. (Before Electricity), most inventions were designed to save labor for men and women. Today, because of American inventive genius, little electric motors do much of the work in farm and home for a few cents a day. They are helping to produce the food that will help bring Victory.

When the war is over, look forward to devices for elimination of labor by electricity.

Republican in Politics, with fairness to all, for the best interest of the community and county as a whole.

THE FOURTH TERM

It is a healthy sign when an outstanding American business man champions "sound government"—and furnishes the right answers. The man who is doing that is Eugene W. Castle, who rang the bell in his appearance before the Cincinnati, (Ohio) Club. "The need for good Federal Government now is not an issue in the rank and file of labor or the rank and file of management or between Republicans and Democrats; it is not a partisan issue; it is a patriotic issue," he declared. and added that the question is so vital that "it goes down to the roots of Democracy and fundamenal rights."

The speaker emphasized the importance of reminding ourselves just why it was that we went to war, and then he pressed the issue:

We went to war because the treacherous Japs attacked us at Pearl Harbor, and a few days later their criminalr partners in Germany and Italy declared war upon us. We went to war to permanently feed and finance the entire world. We did not go to war to impose our way of life and our form of government upon other peoples and nations. We did not go to war for any imperialistic purposes. For us this should mean a new concept of the four freedoms:

'1. Freedom from amateurish managment.

'2. Freedom from bureaucracy.

'3. Freedom from catering to pressure groups.

'4. Freedom from violation of State's rights.' "

The degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Mr. Castle this week by Defiance College in Defiance, Ohio. It is one of the signal honors bestowed upon him since he has engaged on a mission that has grown almost into the importance of a crusade.

Available men fit for the presidency," Mr. Castle says, "can be found among a score of able Republicans and Democrats, all of whom have had wide and distinguished experience in State and Federal Government." He defends the obvious fact that when this war is won by our armed forces international problems cannot possibly be settled naturally on this planet in one, or two, or six, or seven years. "Whether we like it or not, if we accept the idea of the indispensable man, then we are faced with the tragic possibility of voting not for a fourth term, but for a fifth or sixth term as well. If we really believe that one 'indispensable' man who happens to be in the lime-light is the only American capable of guidng our future destiny, 132 million of us will have to beseech the Almighty to give this man eternal life," he challenges.

Here is more of the Castle philosophy:

He recalls that after Britain's total defeat at Dunkirk when Britain's powder keg was dry—when all believed that Britons had lost their empire—Britain changed horses b y replacing Chamberl a in with Churchill, and all the world now acknowledges that this swapping of horses in midchannel started Britain on its march to victory.

Then, in his original way, he adds an "important statement from an important American" which is a s follows: "There will be many in this nation during the coming months who will implore you not to swap horses crossing a stream. But it seems to me that the more truthful, the more accurate plea to the people of the nation should be this: 'If the old car, in spite of frequent emergency repairs, has been bumping along downhill, it is time to get another car that will start uphill on all four.' "

To the People of this Community

This is a home front communique on the most vital war action now in progress in every community of the land—the Fifth War Loan.

We are advancing on our objective. However, we must make certain that we reach and pass our goal by July 1. This can be done if every one of us puts something extra of ourselves into the fight.

No one needs to remind you that it is an American trait to go into a sprint with the goal in sight.

We started this push June 12. Reports from every city and town in America tell us that the number of individual buyers of extra War Bonds today has reached an unprecedented total. We all know that in addition to numbers we need fire power. Your extra War Bond is absolutely essential. The greater the stockpile of War Bonds, the easier it will be for us to get this war over.

This very moment our boys are waging a life-and-death struggle. Every additional War Bond you buy will play its part in the outcome. Last month's War Bond, last week's War Bond, yesterday's War Bond are already in the embattled foxholes. Today is another day for the home front just as today is another day for the boys on the battlefronts.

The apple trees on the Fay Hanna farm were a solid mass of blossoms, possibly a record in years. One transparent, an early apple tree, was an exception. The tree looked like a huge ball of snow. Map of the Invasion Territory

PARACHUTE TROOPS SEE ACTION!

(U. S. Army Signal Corps Photo)

U. S. Parachutists float earthward from troop carrying planes as an effective means of landing behind enemy lines and disrupting his communications. This scene was repeated many times as the invasion got under way.

INVASION MAP

(Soundphoto)

Invasion moves as depicted on the map above were planned to isolate German troops in fortified zones according to forecasts by military experts. How close those forecasts came to being right is now indicated by the actual invasion.

GAS WON'T STOP THEM

Allied troops are equipped for gas attacks. The job of making gas masks was speeded up by the use of gypsum cements, which have been used widely to make patterns and models for many vital war materials.

"GOING TO THE MAT" IN EUROPE

British sappers, above, are laying a piece of "portable highway" to permit safe passage for transports and tanks as they land on European shores. Bundles of steel landing mats are unloaded from ship to shore, to form highways to speed men, munitions and guns to the front line fighting. Landing fields are quickly completed this simple way, too. Steel mats, many of which are made by United States Gypsum Company, are one of the innovations of this war. When the war ends this USG production will be returned to metal lath, used widely with gypsum plaster to add fire-safety and beauty to walls and ceilings.

BATTLESHIPS BLAST INVASION COASTAL AREAS

The above Naval photo shows an American warship blasting enemy shore installations, part of the "softening up" process that preceded the invasion.
